NEW BILL WOULD MAGNIFY POWER OF GOVERNMENT

Biddle Sends Plan to Senate.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—Another war powers bill, which greatly extends the government's control over materials and facilities and the rights and possessions of private citizens, was introduced in the senate today at the request of the justice department.

Sen. Van Nuys.

Sen. Frederick Van Nuys [D., Ind.], chairman of the judicary committee, who received the bill from Attorney General Francis Biddle, said he introduced it "almost blindly." The committee, however, will give it "close study," beginning Monday morning with an explanation by Biddle, Sen. Van Nuys said.

[Senate and house conferees on the price control bill are reported to have agreed to subject business and industry to a rigid licensing system. It is estimated that 2,500,000 retail and wholesale firms will be affected. Story on page 23.]

Amends Many Acts.

The new war powers bill is an omnibus measure containing proposed amendments to many other war power acts and other laws already on the statute books. Its principal provisions would:

1. Authorize the seizure of any real property, together with all personal property on the premises.

2. Extend the President's authority under the priority control act to deliveries under any contract or order, subcontract or suborder. The President also would be authorized to require the acceptance of any contract the performance of which he deemed necessary to the war effort.

3. Authorize the President to allocate [ration] the supply of any material or facilities "for defense or for private account or for export."

Control of Truck Operations.

4. Amend the motor carriers act to give the interstate commerce commission authority "to make reasonable directions with respect to equipment, service, and facilities of motor carriers and to require the joint use of equipment, terminals, warehouses, garages and other facilities."

4. Exempt dollar-a-year and W. O. C. [without compensation] men from the prohibitions of the Hatch act, which forbids "pernicious" political activity by federal officers and employés. Dollar-a-year men and W. O. C. men in the office of production management were assailed as lobbyists for their respective big business organizations in a report filed only yesterday by a special senate committee investigating the war program.

Extends Reserve Bank Powers.

6. Permit the federal reserve banks to buy and sell government obligations privately. Under existing law the federal reserve board may require the reserve banks to buy or sell government obligations but this may be done, "only in the open market."

7. Amend the federal employés compensation act to give protection to air raid and fire wardens engaged in civilian defense.

8. Permit soldiers, sailors, and marines assigned to duty outside the continental limits of the United States to mail ordinary letters free of postage.

9 Facilitate the naturalization of aliens who serve honorably in the armed forces of the United States during the present war.

The bill also would make it a misdemeanor to violate priority orders and regulations, punishable by a maximum of one year in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Senators Doubt Need.

Senators who were apprised of the sweeping terms of the bill [copies were not immediately available] said they knew of no necessity or excuse for the war power amendments. The series of war power acts passed dur-

KNUDSEN TO GET GENERAL'S RANK TO PUSH ARMS

Nelson Is 'Dictator' After Shakeup.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—In a sweeping shake-up and reorganization President Roosevelt today sought to bring about order and efficiency in the vast undertaking of producing the implements of war required to defeat Germany, Italy and Japan. He issued an executive order making Donald M. Nelson of Chicago the unfettered dictator of all phases of armament production.

W. S. Knudsen.

He appointed William S. Knudsen director of production for the war department, placing him in "entire charge of directing and expediting" the production of arms on the army munitions program. He will be subordinate to Mr. Nelson. On Monday the President will appoint Mr. Knudsen a lieutenant general in which rank he will function virtually as a deputy chief of staff for production.

Smooths Awkward Setup.

By this arrangement the President smoothed over an awkward situation created by subordinating Mr. Knudsen, hitherto the chief director of war production, to Mr. Nelson in the new setup. At the same time the President succeeded in retaining Mr. Knudsen for services that he is judged better qualified to render than the larger scale planning of the position he has held. The arrangement was effected at a meeting between the President and Mr. Knudsen earlier in the day.

[The war department has placed contracts totaling 3½ billion dollars with the automobile industry since the attack on Pearl Harbor. Story on page 23.]

A White House statement described Knudsen as "one of the great production men of the world," and said he "will have entire charge of directing and expediting the gigantic production involved in the war department munitions program, with special emphasis on the production of airplanes, tanks, guns and ammunition" already outlined for this year and 1943 by the President.

Praises Knudsen's Ability.

"Bill Knudsen is one of the great production men of the world," the President's statement said, "and his acceptance of this new post means that he can give his entire time to the direction and expediting of production, a field in which he has no equal."

"The country is already immeasurably indebted to Mr. Knudsen and in accepting this assignment at my request, he is undertaking one of the most important tasks of the war," the President said. "He will, of course, continue as a member of the new war production board."

Appointment of Mr. Knudsen to the rank of lieutenant general is unprecedented in the nation's history, the war department said. No other civilian ever has entered the army as a lieutenant general.

Fate of OPM in Doubt.

White House Secretary Early was questioned, when he made the Knudsen announcement, as to the further fate of OPM and particularly what Knudsen's OPM status would be. He declined to answer, saying these developments were in an "evolution ary" stage.

The President announced last Tuesday that he had chosen Mr. Nelson to direct the vast undertaking of mobilizing American industry for war, but the scope of his powers, responsibilities, and duties was not defined until the issuance of the executive order today. The order vests Mr. Nelson with supreme power to get the big job done. In fact, it is known that Mr. Nelson himself drafted the order giving himself authority he deems essential to the most expeditious execution of his task.

Arms Production Goals.

As outlined by the President in his recent message to congress, Mr. Nelson's biggest job will be to organize

WHY UNITED ACTION ON THEIR PART IS SO VERY IMPORTANT TO AMERICA

INDIA FEARS QUININE FAMINE AS FAR EAST WAR PERILS IMPORTS

LONDON, Jan. 16.—With the Dutch owned island of Java holding a virtual world monopoly on the quinine yielding cinchona plant, India is now seriously alarmed over the prospect of a quinine famine, in view of the spread of the war to the Pacific, according to the British medical journal.

Pointing out the importance of maintaining a supply of the cheap drug to combat malaria, the journal says that the demand has arisen for a revival of native cinchona tree cultivation in India. At present India produces only 70,000 pounds of cinchona bark annually, whereas her annual needs are at least 1,000,000 pounds.

"It is not suggested," the journal says, "that Java should be ousted from her present position of world monopoly, but at least India should cater to her own needs."

IT SEEMS TO RUN LIKE THIS IN THE STUKEL FAMILY

Two years ago in July Motorcycle Policeman Stephen Stukel was in a hospital recovering from injuries suffered in a street accident. While he was in Loretto hospital, his wife had a baby there. A month later, when the baby was christened, Stukel was again in the hospital and couldn't go to the ceremony.

Yesterday at Clybourn and Chicago avenues, Policeman Stukel was hit by an auto. He was taken to Loretto hospital.

Yes, in the same hospital was his wife, Mary. And beside her was a newly born 8 pound baby girl.

The Stukels live at 1018 South Menard avenue. He is 33 years old.

Japs Bomb Australian Island Twice in 7 Hours

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 16.—Japanese planes struck twice today within 6½ hours at Rabaul on the Island of New Britain, just off New Guinea in the Bismarck archipelago. Damage to property and public services was caused. There were no reports of casualties. [Formerly German, New Britain is under Australian mandate.]

Killer of Four Put to Death in Electric Chair

"I got it coming!"

Those were the last words of Bernard [Knifey] Sawicki, 19 year old murderer of four persons, as he walked the last mile to death in the electric chair early today in county jail.

The slayer was able to walk to the chair, somewhat to the surprise of officials, who had expected to carry him. He was white faced. There was nothing in his hands, altho it had been expected he might carry a Bible, the only thing to interest him in the last few weeks of his cell stay.

Three Priests Attend Him.

Three priests stood alongside, intoning prayers, as the current was turned on. It took eight minutes for Sawicki to die.

Sawicki was executed for the slaying of Park Policeman Charles Speaker. His other victims were Henry Allain, 72 years old, a farmer whom he blamed for being sent to the Illinois training school near St. Charles; John J. Miller, 19, who resisted a robbery and was slain, and Charles Kwasinski, 17, a friend who refused to join Sawicki in a holdup.

The young killer had cursed the judge who sentenced him. He had made bets with his attorney that he would get the death sentence. He had said "I know I'll die, and I don't care."

Several weeks ago the County jail chaplain succeeded in interesting Sawicki in the Christian faith. He became a model of decorum.

Writes Letter to Widow.

Yesterday the young slayer began to crack. He wept when Warden Frank Sain told him that Gov. Green had refused to grant clemency.

During the evening he wrote the following letter to the widow of the slain policeman:

"Dear Mother Speaker, that is, if I may call you that?

"I would like to express my gratitude for the way you took my message from Father Connolly, and I would also like to thank you for saying the stations of the cross for me. I know I'm no good and I hope you forgive me for what I've done to your husband. If I knew then what I know now this tragedy would never happened.

"I know that Mr. Speaker is up there praying for me; I will probably meet him there tonight if God wills it.

"Please say a prayer for me. I need it. May I always be your friend."

At his last meal at 10:15 he ate only four bites.

MOTORISTS DISCOVER U. S. AUTO STAMPS HAVE GLUE ON BACK

Motorists who bought the federal automobile stamps that went on sale again yesterday discovered that they are like postage stamps. The adhesive is on the back of the stamp instead of on the face as in the case of city vehicle tags and safety lane stickers.

Accompanying each stamp is a card containing printed directions that it is to be placed on the instrument panel, the windshield or some other conspicuous place on the car. Some authorities have suggested that the lower right hand corner of the windshield be used, but in Chicago this is the location of the city license, and two stamps in this corner tend to obstruct the driver's view.

Last evening George A. Schirmer, 2140 Irming Park road, telephoned the Chicago Motor club with a suggestion: Paste the new stamp on the back of the rear view mirror. The adhesive on the back can be used, yet the stamp can be seen from outside the car. The club recommended Schirmer's suggestion to Chicagoans.

A COMMISSIONER TURNS DETECTIVE TO RECOVER LOOT

County Commissioner Dan Ryan became a detective yesterday and by astute deductions restored three microscopes and a blood pressure machine stolen from County hospital.

Ryan obtained the serial numbers of the missing machines and toured the second hand shops in the vicinity of the hospital. In the Logan Brothers medical book store at 1814 Harrison street he found the machines—also two other microscopes sold by the same man who peddled County hospital's property.

The management reported that the devices were sold to the store by a man who said he obtained them from physicians who were called to army service. The seller was paid with checks that were cashed in a nearby restaurant.

DAY'S HIGH SPOTS OF WAR ON ALL FIGHTING FRONTS

Yesterday's developments on the world's fighting fronts:

The United States navy announced that five more Japanese ships have been destroyed by the Asiatic fleet in the western Pacific. The sinking of three transports and two cargo vessels raised to 24 the number of enemy vessels destroyed by the navy and the marines in less than six weeks.

The war department disclosed that Japanese invaders of the Philippines were increasing the fury of their attacks against Gen. MacArthur's weary army on the Island of Luzon. The enemy used dive bombers, artillery, and special shock troops.

Destroy 20 Jap Tanks.

Organizing a final defense for the showdown battle for Singapore, Australians and other fresh troops of the British empire struck costly blows at the Japanese in southern Malaya. Twenty enemy tanks were destroyed. There were indications that the momentum of the Japanese drive had been checked. Singapore itself was bombed by 50 enemy planes.

The Japanese claimed that Johore, southernmost state of the Malay peninsula, had been penetrated by their forces following a defeat of British troops about 120 miles north of Singapore.

There was a suspicion that the Japanese were preparing new invasion stabs in the Netherlands East Indies as enemy air raiders attacked Dutch bases on a 2,000 mile line. Amboina, the second most important naval and air station in the Indies, was assaulted for the second consecutive day. Far to the west and on the other side of Singapore, an airport on the east coast of the Island of Sumatra was bombed.

Reds Repulse Counter Drives.

On the other side of the world Moscow disclosed that German counterattacks had been beaten back in some sectors of the battle front. The Nazis were said to have suffered heavy losses. On the central front before Moscow, the Reds said Siberian "ghost troops" were smashing Nazi armies by fierce flanking attacks. Red artillery pounded Mozhaisk, German stronghold 57 miles west of Moscow; Kharkov, Russian industrial city in the south, and Taganrog on the Sea of Azov.

From Africa came word that "Free French" columns of tanks and armored cars rolled up to reenforce the British besiegers of the axis holdout garrison at "Hellfire Pass"—300 miles east of advanced British forces operating in the Libyan desert. The main axis force south of the Gulf of Sirte, which is halfway between "Hellfire Pass" and Tripoli, was putting up stubborn resistance.

REPORT LINER BLOWS UP; 21 ARE MISSING

Fear Ship Crashes in Nevada.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 16 (AP).—A Transcontinental & Western Air luxury liner carrying 18 passengers and a crew of three was feared to have crashed and burned 40 miles southwest of Las Vegas, Nev., tonight.

Aboard the plane, a Douglas Sky Club, were Carole Lombard, actress wife of Matinée Idol Clark Gable; her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Peters; Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer publicity man, Otto Winkler; 12 army pilots, and three other passengers.

Gable chartered a plane to go to the scene.

Miners Hear Explosion.

The plane, flight three from New York to Los Angeles via Albuquerque, left Las Vegas, Nev., at 7:07 p. m. Thirty minutes later workers at the Blue Diamond mine reported they saw a flare, then heard an explosion.

Pilot Art Cheney of Western Air Lines later reported he saw a large fire while flying over Table mountain.

First report of the apparent crash was telephoned to police at Las Vegas. Two ambulances, bearing doctors, and searchers in some 25 automobiles left Las Vegas immediately for the scene, which was located as half way between Goodsprings and Blue Diamond, Nev.

At Edge of Desert.

The location of the crash is in rugged country near the edge of the desert, at an elevation of about 8,100 feet. The ground is covered with heavy snow.

Searchers also set out immediately from Blue Diamond, and other men waited there to guide the Las Vegas parties to the scene.

W. W. Baker, station manager at Boulder City, Nev., led a searching party toward the scene. TWA prepared to send another party from Los Angeles.

The Lombard party was returning from Indianapolis, where yesterday all participated in a defense bond campaign.

Lieutenants Among Flyers.

The 12 army pilots boarded the plane at Albuquerque. TWA did not list their names but said several were lieutenants. Four additional passengers had left the plane at Albuquerque to make room for the flyers.

Capt. Wayne Williams, who began flying in 1928, was piloting the big ship with Morgan A. Gillette as copilot and Alice Getz as hostess. Their addresses were not given. Williams recently was in the TWA office at Kansas City.

Army Plane Falls.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—An army pursuit plane which took off from Knoxville, Tenn., late Wednesday for a cross-country flight to Bolling field, Washington, apparently crashed into the sea off Cape Charles, Va., 150 miles off its course, army air headquarters announced here tonight. The body of Second Lieut. Rush Williard, 25, of Bay City, Mich., a passenger, was recovered, but there was no trace of the body of the pilot, Second Lieut. James Allison Fannin, 33, of Memphis, Tenn. Both were stationed at Gunter field, Montgomery, Ala. The plane took off from Knoxville in good weather, it was said, but later Wednesday night was reported missing and a search was instituted.

SENATORS LASH 'STUPIDITY' IN U. S. SHORTAGES

Blast Failure to Develop Nation's Resources.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—Official shortsightedness and muddle headedness was blamed in senate debate today for the existing shortage of raw materials. Senators predicted revolutionary changes in the social and economic system as a result of the rubber shortage.

Sen. Sheridan Downey [D., Cal.], who introduced a resolution calling for a senate investigation of the rubber supply, said there was too much complacency, folly, and stupidity in Washington.

Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.] assailed government agencies for failing to encourage the production of raw materials in the western states. O'Mahoney also spoke scornfully of the navy's battleship building program, implying that the lessons of the present war in the Pacific were ignored by the admirals.

Recalls Committee Efforts.

O'Mahoney recalled that a senate subcommittee on public lands had endeavored for more than a year "to induce the executive arm of the government to take the initiative in developing the raw materials of this country."

He said the subcommittee was holding hearings last July when it was first suggested that automobile production might have to be curtailed in order to conserve steel and other materials. The subcommittee, he added, pointed to the fact that Germany had invaded Russia to get the raw materials of the Donetz basis.

"We know now that Japan is seeking to gain control of the rubber and tin and oil of the Southern Pacific and to expel the Dutch and the British and the Americans from that area," O'Mahoney said.

Back Yard Neglected, Senate Told.

"With Germany invading Russia for raw materials and Japan invading China and Thailand and the Dutch East Indies in search of raw materials, we were paying no attention to the raw materials in our own back yard—in California, in Oregon, in Washington, and other states.

"The navy department was insisting upon building huge new battleships. Indeed, it was not three days after Pearl Harbor that the navy department sent down to congress a proposal for expanding the fleet, and that proposal contained a suggestion for the construction of six or seven battleships. That was after the Repulse and the Prince of Wales had been sunk by a few Japanese bombing planes. Enough steel went to the bottom of the sea in that attack to keep the automobile industry going for a long period."

O'Mahoney urged modification of the tax laws to make it possible for private enterprise to develop western raw material resources.

Jones' Estimate Questioned.

Sen. Downey questioned the estimate by Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce and Federal Loan administrator, that an annual production rate of 400,000 tons of synthetic rubber can be reached in 18 months or two years.

"Suppose we do reach a production of 400,000 tons of synthetic rubber within two years," Downey said. "That 400,000 tons a year will not be sufficient even to take care of our military needs at that time. So, looking ahead two years, if the hopes of Mr. Jones, which have not yet even been reduced to written form, are borne out, we still would not be producing in the United States enough rubber to provide the requirements for our military program.

"Yesterday we passed the so-called guayule rubber bill; but unfortunately we probably cannot hope for great relief from that source until the beginning of the fourth year.

Course Termed Clearly Shown.

"If three years ago what was clearly indicated to the slightest common sense had been done, and we had invested 25 million dollars in guayule rubber shrub culture, we would have no problem. If we had invested 250 million dollars in synthetic rubber factories we would have had no problem. If we had invested another 250 million dollars in a stock pile we would have had no problem today.

"Let me say that while we debate whether rubber would cost us 8, 9, 10, 11, or 12 cents a pound now, we are going to measure its cost in dollars and perhaps in the tens of dollars. Bernard Baruch, who has been urging upon this nation the sheer folly and stupidity of not laying in stocks of strategic materials, could have been paid a million dollars a day—yes, Mr. President, a million dollars a day for five years—and, had his policy been carried out, we would have saved tens of millions."

Predicts Transport Crisis.

Downey predicted that within one year "at least 25 per cent of the workers who travel to and from their working places to their homes on rubber will have tremendous difficulty transporting themselves."

Sen. Prentiss Brown [D., Mich.] told the senate that "there are 70,000 workers estimated to be employed at the Ford bomber plant in Ypsilanti, Mich.

"There are no adequate housing facilities for those workers at Ypsilanti," Sen. Brown said. "The only way they may be transported with any efficiency is thru the use of automobiles from Detroit, 26 miles away. How they are going to carry on the construction of those bombers in the Ford Ypsilanti plant without the use of automobiles belonging to these workers is more than I can see."

A tradition was observed yesterday when members of the Old Time Printers' association laid a wreath at the statue of Benjamin Franklin, their "patron saint," in Lincoln park. The annual dinner-dance of the organization will be held tonight in the Hotel La Salle. More than 400 persons are expected to attend. The association's membership includes Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, Postmaster Ernest J. Kreutgen, and Douglas McMurtrie, typographer.

ARMY DENOUNCES STORY OF BODIES WITHOUT COFFINS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—The war department denounced today as "utterly false" what it described as a "whispering campaign" report that 1,500 bodies had arrived without coffins at the Brooklyn, N. Y., army base from Hawaii.

The war department acted after being advised by the army base commander, Brig. Gen. Homer M. Groninger, that the reports were circulating. He said it was reported that help was needed to put the bodies in coffins. Several hundred telephone calls were received at the base, the war department said.

"The war department states that there is no truth whatsoever in the report as to the arrival of any bodies and that, in no case, would shipments be made unless the bodies were cared for in coffins.

RUSH FOR SAFE NAVY JOBS HIT IN SENATE REPORT

Expose of Draft Dodgers Is Threatened.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—A special report denouncing draft dodgers who seek bullet-proof commissions in the navy's supply, intelligence, and legal branches was made public today by Sen. David I. Walsh [D., Mass.], chairman of the naval affairs committee.

Sen. D. I. Walsh.

The report was prepared by Chairman Walsh for the information and protection of senators who are besieged by commission-seeking draft dodgers and their families and friends. It intimated that there may be a senate investigation, with resultant publication of the names of those who receive such commissions.

Those wishing to avoid combat service usually seek commissions in the intelligence, legal or supply branches, according to the report.

Roosevelt Son in Supply Service.

President Roosevelt's youngest son, John, is an ensign in the navy supply service.

"Requests are repeatedly made of members of congress by applicants for commissions in the navy who do not meet the age, educational or physical requirements to secure from the navy department a waiver," says the Walsh report.

"In a democracy waivers must not be granted for the benefit of the individual, but only for the benefit of the government.

"The naval affairs committee is not informed as to how many waivers have been granted. It is the opinion of many members of congress that there may be an investigation of the system of granting waivers in the military and naval service with the resultant publication of the names of those who recommend the waivers and those to whom waivers have been granted.

Dodgers Seek Waivers.

"Objections are particularly made with respect to those cases where waivers have been granted to persons who are within the draft or military ages and where it may appear that waivers are sought and obtained to evade actual combat service. It should be stated, however, that applications for waivers have been made also by those who have sought commissions in actual combat services, which is indeed commendable, but requests for waivers in such cases are invariably disapproved.

"In the opinion of many members of the naval affairs committee, there is no justification for granting waivers to those who are motivated by a desire to escape duty in combat units of the armed services. Naval recruiting officers have stated that these cases are not infrequent and attempts are often made to use pressure, especially in those cases where, unless waivers are obtained, the applicant becomes subject to the selective service law.

Most Lack Qualifications.

"Waivers, apparently, are sought mostly by those lacking all the qualifications for commissions in the intelligence, legal, and supply branches of the naval reserve. The department admits that there have been waivers granted but not as generally as alleged.

"It is the opinion of several members of the naval affairs committee that even one waiver is in excess, unless it is justified as being of benefit to the government and not to the individual. The bureau of navigation should be encouraged to maintain a hardboiled attitude.

"The commissions which have been sought and been granted for service in the intelligence unit have been subject to most criticism, much of which it is believed is based upon suspicion due to the large number of applicants who have sought to bring pressure upon the members of congress and the navy department for commissions in this particular branch.

Favoritism Denied.

"Allegations to the effect that only applicants of wealth and fine social or scholastic backgrounds and in a position to command influence are given commissions, especially in the intelligence unit are, in the opinion of the committee, unfounded. The belief that favoritism exists in certain cases in obtaining commissions and sometimes in obtaining waivers is, in our opinion, due to the publicity that has been given a few isolated cases."

The report advises senators that the navy has hundreds of applicants for commissions in the intelligence service and that no commissions are available at present except in cases of very exceptional qualifications. No additional supply officer appointments are being made at this time but approximately 400 will be available in February or March. Applications for commissions in the legal division "are no longer desired."

ANNE SHIRLEY.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 16 (AP).—Twentieth Century studio today reported the separation of Anne Shirley and John Payne of the films. Payne's studio said Miss Shirley and the Paynes' 20 month old daughter, Julia Anne, had moved from the Payne Hilltop home to an apartment. Friends said Miss Shirley would ask a divorce. They were married about four and a half years ago. Miss Shirley, born in New York, has been in pictures almost all of her 24 years. Payne, a singer before he came to pictures six years ago, is from Roanoke, Va.

NEW PROHIBITION BILL SMOTHERED BY SENATE VOTE

Opening Wedge by Drys Is Rejected.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—On the 23d anniversary of the adoption of the 18th amendment, dry forces today lost the first skirmish in their campaign to return prohibition to America as a wartime emergency measure.

Their defeat came on an attempt by Sen. W. Lee [Pass the Biscuits] O'Daniel to mark the 18th amendment's birthday by calling up one of several pending dry bills for senate consideration. In a lengthy oration, O'Daniel urged immediate passage of the measure. In a resounding voice vote, the chamber refused to consider it.

Drys Use War Experience.

The efforts to outlaw the liquor industry at this time are regarded as an attempt by the drys to importune on the war emergency and make history repeat itself. It was during the last war that prohibition was born in this country.

On the pretext of conserving fruit and grain for food, the drys secured congressional approval of the first wartime prohibition measure in 1917. This was followed by the adoption of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act and the dawn of the bootlegging era.

The bill which the senate refused to consider today is regarded as the opening wedge in the new dry movement. Written as a defense measure, it would prohibit sale or possession of liquor on or in the vicinity of military and naval reservations. Maximum punishment for violators would be a $1,000 fine and a year in jail.

Opposed by Stimson.

In a letter to the senate military affairs committee, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson bitterly condemned these sections of the bill, stating flatly that in the interests of temperance in the fighting forces they should not be enacted into law.

Existing regulations forbid the sale of intoxicating liquor on military reservations but permit the sale of light wine and 3.2 per cent beer, subject to the laws of state and local communities where such drinks are prohibited. Stimson warned that passage of the bill would destroy the temperance advancements and mean bootlegging on military posts.

"This policy has caused a degree of temperance among army personnel which is not approachable in civil communities now, nor was as high a degree of temperance attained either in or out of the army during the days of national prohibition," Stimson said.

The secretary declared in his letter that the war department favors passage of another section of the bill outlawing prostitution in the vicinity of army camps. Such a law would be a valuable asset in the control of venereal diseases, he said.

SENATE COMMITTEE ORDERS CLOSER CHECK ON ARMY PROMOTIONS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—The senate military affairs committee today ordered a closer checkup on army promotions after charges had been made that some officers accused of inefficiency were promoted rather than punished.

Acting on instructions from the committee, Chairman Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.] named a standing subcommittee to investigate all presidential nominations for army appointments. Sen. Albert B. Chandler [D., Ky.] was named chairman of this group, which includes Senators Harley M. Kilgore [D., W. Va.] and Rufus C. Holman [R., Ore.].

Reynolds said the action was brought about partly because of criticism by the senate defense investigating committee of the part played by some army officers in the army cantonment construction program, as well as other phases of the rearmament effort.

HOUSE MEMBER, IN ARMY, WANTS HIS CONGRESS PAY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—Does a $10,000 a year congressman serving as a $21 a month army private have the right to choose which salary he shall get?

The case at issue is that of Rep. Frank C. Osmers Jr. [R., N. J.], who kept a campaign pledge and enlisted in the army after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. Osmers' congress pay checks have been held up by Controler Gen. Lindsay Warren and Osmers has protested.

Kenneth Romney, house sergeant at arms, said the problem was being considered by the judge advocate general's office. Osmers is 35.

YALE VOLUNTEER FINDS CONSCRIPT GETS THE BREAKS

Easy Diploma Plan Aids None but Draftees.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 16.—Yale university, faced with a substantial loss of students to the armed forces and a corresponding shrinkage in income from tuitions, is making it tougher for the volunteer to get a degree than the conscript.

Officials of this ancient institution of learning insist no vulgar monetary consideration enters into the distinction between drafted students and those who enlist before their studies are formally complete. They say maintenance of Yale's scholastic standing is the reason.

Under the present plan, if a senior is called into service, the university provides automatically for termination of his work and issuance of a diploma. On the other hand, if a student volunteers, it is up to his dean to decide whether a degree shall be conferred upon him.

Face Million a Year Loss.

Yale collected $2,198,527 in tuitions and other fees from students during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1941. The tuition for the undergraduate is $450 a year.

If the university suffers a wartime exodus of 50 per cent, which similar British institutions have experienced, then Yale stands to lose more than a million dollars a year in revenue. Yale wound up the last fiscal year with a small deficit.

Old Eli's faculty has been trying to discourage volunteering among students ever since the Pearl Harbor debacle. President Charles Seymour, an outspoken leader of the nation's pedagogical interventionists before Pearl Harbor, threw cold water on student volunteering in a statement issued Dec. 14.

Seek Maximum Service.

Urging scholars to stay at their books, Yale's president said:

"In devoting our facilities to the service of the state and nation, we also rededicate ourselves, both faculty and students, to their service. We urge our students to await the call of the government that each of them may serve where he may be of greatest use.

"We face a long and hard struggle in which the nation will need educated leaders. Unless the student's services are immediately called for by the government, we believe he will be of greatest value to his country by continuing his studies."

This was just a week after reports of the Jap attack in the Pacific burst upon the campus and a mob of 1,500 students marched thru New Haven's tree shaded streets shouting "To hell with Hirohito!" and "On to Tokio!"

Two Buildings Sandbagged.

Since then the campus has calmed down, enlistment fever has cooled under advise from the faculty, and outwardly there are few manifestations of the war.

A catwalk for air raid lookouts has been erected between the Gothic towers of the Sterling Memorial library. Potato sacks filled with sand are piled in an arc around Woodbridge hall, which houses the administrative offices, and around Wright hall, where the Yale postoffice is located. The sandbagging is for the protection of telephone exchanges in the buildings.

Two students were studying the Japanese language prior to Dec. 7, but there are 40 applications for the subject in the semester starting next Monday. The students, it is said, are eager to use their knowledge of the difficult enemy tongue for naval intelligence, possibly on radio listening posts. Robert Takahaski, Japanese divinity school student, is helping his schoolmates.

Inaugurate Speedup Program.

The faculty is busy changing over from the conventional four year undergraduate schedule to a year 'round speedup program which will enable the student to obtain his degree in two years and eight months. This will entail an additional term during the summer months of each year—tuition, $200 per term.

But the busiest office of all is that of James McL. Tompkins, supervisor of student employment, secretary of the committee on bursary appointments, secretary of the selective service committee and chairman of the bureau of military information. As such he handles the transfer of Yale students to the army and navy.

Tompkins was asked whether the loss of tuitions had anything to do with the university's distinction between volunteers and conscripts on the matter of degrees, and whether Yale feared a big drop in income if students began volunteering in droves.

Move to Maintain Standards.

"No," Tompkins said. "This is not monetary protection for the university, but protection from an academic viewpoint. You see, a student barely scraping along the bottom in his studies might enlist, but would not be qualified for a degree."

When a local draft board asked for a Yale senior student, according to Tompkins, his office asked deferment until such a time that his course could be completed thru accelerated study and teaching.

Up to date this school year, 84 Yale undergraduate students have left for the army, including a handful of volunteers. An additional 117 are expected to leave by early February. Figures are not available for the graduate schools, but the law school has been especially hard hit.

Yale's army Reserve Officers' Training corps now numbers 418. The government boosted the quota by 25 the day after Pearl Harbor. Yale's naval ROTC totals 310.

Many students are enrolling in the navy "V" courses, signing up for service after they are graduated.

PUBLIC TO GET NEWS—UNLESS IT AIDS THE ENEMY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—The interdepartmental committee on war information laid down the general policy tonight that the American people should be given all the information about war production that can be disclosed without aiding the enemy.

The committee is headed by Archibald MacLeish, director of the Office of Facts and Figures. Recognizing that conflicts must arise between the two considerations of informing the public and withholding information from the enemy, the committee said every effort should be made to resolve these by employing a form of publication which will provide information to our own people without helping the enemy.

Regarding information about locations of war industries, the committee ruled it should be withheld from general publication, but if it was of a nature generally known in the locality information of a nondetailed character may be published by local newspapers.

FEDERAL ORDER BANS TOWNSEND PENSION WEEKLY

Blame Tax Article for Suppression of Issue.

The current issue of the Townsend National Weekly was withheld from distribution yesterday at the request of the government.

The weekly is the organ of the proponents of the Townsend old age pension plan and has a circulation of more than 170,000 and is printed in Mount Morris, Ill. The issue held up was dated Jan. 24.

Expects No Permanent Ban.

It was rumored that the administration objected to an editorial in which it was held that the present campaign to sell stamps and bonds puts undue hardship on people of little income; that their purchases are diverted from small merchants.

Sherman Bainbridge of Chicago, editor, said that he did not believe there would be any permanent ban on the distribution, and that he was hopeful the matter would be straightened out today. He said there was no truth in the report that the whole issue had been taken over and guarded by FBI agents.

Refuses to Name Suppressor.

"There is an editorial in the weekly which advocates a 5 per cent gross income tax on both individuals and corporations," Bainbridge said. "That is only an extension of the plan that Senator George of Georgia wants to put on individuals. It is much less severe as a criticism of government than big business men have been making.

"There is nothing new about the suggestions. They are in line with our traditional policy."

Bainbridge would not say what agency was back of the movement to delay the paper. He said it had apparently listened to "some disgruntled person" and achieved the idea that the issue should be suppressed. Dr. Townsend and his organization, he said, are 100 per cent for an all out effort to win the war.

800 GIVEN ENSIGN COMMISSIONS; 27 ARE CHICAGOANS

Twenty-seven young men from Chicago and suburbs were among the 800 commissioned as ensigns in the naval reserve at the fifth graduation ceremonies of the Northwestern university naval reserve midshipmen's school yesterday morning. The ceremonies were in the Medinah temple, 14 East Ohio street.

The 800 will probably see service at sea in the near future. Under the command of Capt. B. B. Wygant, they have completed an intensive four month course in seamanship, navigation, and gunnery at Abbott hall on the Northwestern city campus.

Rear Adm. John Downes, commandant of the 9th naval district, gave the commencement address. A new class of 900 will begin training Jan. 22.

KNUDSEN TO GET GENERAL'S RANK TO SPEED ARMING

Nelson Becomes Dictator After Shakeup.

production of the following implements of war:

	1942.	1943.	Total.
Airplanes	60,000	125,000	185,000
Tanks	45,000	75,000	120,000
Anti-aircraft guns	20,000	35,000	55,000

With this panoply of arms American expeditionary forces are scheduled to take the field some time next year for the victory push against the axis powers.

Altho not vested specifically with cabinet rank Mr. Nelson attended the cabinet meeting this afternoon at the request of the President and stated afterward that he will participate in the cabinet meetings in the future. He declined to discuss his appointment and functions today, but is planning to do so at a press conference on Monday.

Name New War Board.

The President's order establishes in the Office of Emergency Management a War Production board, which as WPB becomes the latest alphabetical agency. Mr. Nelson's official position will be that of chairman of WPB. The other members of the board will be Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, Federal Loan Administrator Jesse H. Jones, William S. Knudsen, director general of the Office of Production Management, Sidney Hillman, associate director general of OPM, Vice President Henry A. Wallace, chairman of the Board of Economic Warfare, Leon Henderson, administrator of the Office of Price Administration, and Harry L. Hopkins, special assistant to the President supervising the defense aid program.

Nelson to Make Decisions.

The duties of the members of the WPB will be to advise and assist Chairman Nelson. But it will devolve upon Mr. Nelson to make all decisions after being advised and assisted by his colleagues. Thus for the first time Mr. Nelson becomes superior to Messrs. Knudsen and Hillman of the OPM and all other officials in directing the production of arms.

The executive order directs the chairman with the advice and assistance of the other members of the board to do the following things:

"1. Exercise general direction over the war procurement and production program.

"2. Determine the policies, plans, procedures, and methods of the several federal departments, establishments, and agencies in respect to war procurement and production, including purchasing, contracting, specifications, and construction; and including conversion, requisitioning, plant expansion, and the financing thereof; and issue such directives in respect thereto as he may deem necessary or appropriate.

Takes Over SPAB Powers.

"3. Perform the functions and exercise the powers vested in the Supply Priorities and Allocations board by executive order No. 8875 of Aug. 28, 1941.

"4. Supervise the Office of Production Management in the performance of its responsibilities and duties, and direct such changes in its organization as he may deem necessary.

"5. Report from time to time to the President on the progress of war procurement and production, and perform such other duties as the President may direct."

These provisions of the executive order take the powers of procurement and contracting away from the army and navy and lodge them with Chairman Nelson. Under the new setup the army and navy will tell Mr. Nelson what arms and other military equipment they want and Mr. Nelson will arrange for production of the material in such manner and at such times as he deems best suited to the most effective results.

Can Reorganize OPM.

To accomplish his purpose the chairman is authorized to shake up and reorganize the OPM, which has borne the brunt of criticism for the failures in arms production up to date.

Clinching the Nelson dictatorship the executive order provides:

"Federal departments, establishments, and agencies shall comply with the policies, plans, methods, and procedures in respect to war procurement and production as determined by the chairman; and shall furnish to the chairman such information relating to war procurement and production as he may deem necessary for the performance of his duties.

"The army and navy munitions board shall report to the President thru the chairman of the War Production board.

"The chairman may exercise the powers, authority, and discretion conferred upon him by this order thru such officials or agencies and in such manner as he may determine; and his decisions shall be final.

"The chairman is further authorized within the limits of such funds as may be allocated or appropriated to the board to employ necessary personnel and make provision for necessary supplies, facilities, and services."

The order abolishes the Supply Priorities and Allocations board of which Mr. Nelson has been executive director. This board, established Aug. 28 last, represented a feeble attempt to bring order out of chaos in the OPM.

TRAIN WRECK NEAR LITTLE ROCK KILLS 4 SOLDIERS, ENGINEER

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 16 (AP).—Four soldiers and a trainman were killed and 27 persons injured when a switch engine and a train collided on the Missouri Pacific main line at Perla, Ark., 40 miles south of here, late today.

Maj. Dwight Lawson, executive officer at the Army and Navy General hospital at Hot Springs, said 13 injured soldiers had been brought there. Eight were treated for slight injuries and released.

The dead were listed as: Otis Thacker, Patsey, Ky.; James L. Stewart, Newport, Ky.; Alfred Tackett, Landville, W. Va.; James S. Stevenson, Louisville, Ky., and Engineer C. S. Edgerle, Little Rock. Six other trainmen were injured. All were listed as residents of Little Rock.

ORDERS INQUIRY ON EXAMS HELD BY CIVIL SERVICE

At the request of County Commissioner George Miller, the county board yesterday directed its civil service committee to investigate recent civil service examinations to fill 294 positions in the bureau of public welfare. Miller declared that in some classes of jobs lists posted by the civil service commission showed only 3 per cent of the employés in the public welfare bureau qualified in the examinations. More than 2,700 took the tests.

Miller said this record indicates either that the examinations were at fault or that many employés are inefficient. The divisions involved in the examinations were the bureaus for old age assistance and aid to dependent children.

Joseph Moss, director of the public welfare bureau, said classes of jobs where only a small number of employés qualified were largely clerical groups. He explained that qualifications required by the federal society security division were more stringent than the county's.

NELSON RESIGNS $70,000 A YEAR POST WITH SEARS

Leaves 'Temporary' Job He Took 30 Years Ago.

Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the new War production board, yesterday resigned his $70,000 a year job as executive vice president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., the only company he has worked for since he left college in 1912.

The board of directors met at noon and accepted the resignation, which was announced the day after a special committee of the United States senate recommended discontinuance of the practice of putting $1 a year men in government posts. The committee proposed that the government pay salaries to the business men it has called into its service.

In U. S. Service 19 Months.

Nelson has been a $1 a year man since June 1, 1940, when he took a leave of absence from Sears to become associated with the armament program, first as director of procurement in the treasury department, and later in various capacities with the Office of Production Management and Supply Priorities and Allocations board. The leave of absence was terminated automatically by acceptance of his resignation, a company spokesman said. Sears, in its 1940 fiscal year, paid Nelson a salary of $70,421, according to the latest available proxy statement.

The new chief of the nation's war production effort thought he was getting only a temporary job with the big mail order house when he left the University of Missouri as a chemist in 1912 and went to work in Sears' testing laboratory. But by 1928 he was Sears' general merchandise manager, and in 1930 he was made a director and vice president in charge of merchandising. He became executive vice president in 1939.

Praised by Chairman.

As Nelson stepped out of the service of the company after about 30 years, R. E. Wood, chairman, expressed regret over his going, but pride in the accomplishments that took him to the top of the heap among the men assigned to the job of speeding up arms output.

"It is with great regret that we today received and accepted the resignation," Wood said. "But it is accepted with even greater pride in the patriotic achievements of one of our colleagues and in the outstanding service which he has been able to render in behalf of our country."

It is understood that Sears probably will not act in the immediate future on selecting a successor to Nelson.

New York, Jan. 16 [Special].—The Vichy radio today reported that the Paris chief of police had decided that theaters and music halls must close once a week to reduce the consumption of electricity.

RED LINK FAILS TO VOID CITIZEN RIGHTS: WILLKIE

Seeks to Upset Order on Communist.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—Wendell L. Willkie asserted today in a brief filed with the Supreme court that active membership in the communist party or belief in the principles of the organization was not sufficient grounds for denial of American citizenship.

The 1940 Republican presidential nominee urged the tribunal to reverse a decision by the 9th federal Circuit court ordering cancellation of the citizenship of William Schneiderman, state secretary of the communist party for California and a native og Rumanov, Russia.

Oral arguments on the litigation, involving whether communist membership prevents allegiance to the United States government, will be heard by the Supreme court next month.

Employed to Argue Case.

Willkie was employed after the Circuit court decision to argue the case for Schneiderman before the Supreme court. He said he was serving without compensation.

"Congress alone," Willkie contended, "has the power to specify the prerequisities of naturalization and to date has not specified active membership in the communist party or belief in the principles thereof as enunciated in its constitution as a ground for denial of citizenship."

Willkie asserted also that the Circuit court decision "constitutes a drastic abridgment of freedom of political belief and thought, of free speech and freedom of the press."

Schneiderman's American citizenship was ordered canceled by the federal District court at San Francisco on the ground membership in the communist party had been concealed. Cancellation was ordered in 1940 which was 13 years after Schneiderman had been naturalized and 32 years after he came to this country at the age of 3.

The district court held that Schneiderman had obtained citizenship illegally because he failed to reveal that during a five year probationary period he belonged to an organization advocating overthrow of the government by violence.

Defends Free Expression.

Willkie asserted that "free institutions can only be preserved by free expression of the popular will, and an oath to support the constitution and the laws of the United States imports no more than a willing obedience to them while in force."

"Advocacy of change therein in a lawful manner does not import lack of attachment to the constitution," the brief said, "nor does it mean that the applicant swears falsely when he takes an oath to support and defend the constitution.

ASK LAW TO GIVE GREATER POWER TO GOVERNMENT

Would Permit Seizure of Private Property.

ing the last two years should be broad enough for the exercise of any reasonable authority with respect to property seizure, priorities, and allocations, the senators declared.

The original property seizure bill proposed by the administration last summer authorized the seizure of any property, real or personal, tangible or intangible. Congress limited the seizure power, however, to military or naval materials and materials required for their production.

Clearly the bill introduced today would permit the taking of private homes and all personal property on the premises. It authorizes the secretary of war, the secretary of the navy or any other officer, commission or governmental corporation authorized by the President to "acquire by purchase, donation, or other means of transfer. . . . Or to acquire by condemnation any real property . . . together with any personal property located thereon or used therewith that shall be deemed necessary for military, naval, or other war purposes." Altho condemnation proceedings would be required, the bill authorizes the taking of immediate possession upon the filing of a condemnation petition.

Auto Seizure Discussed.

Some senators expressed the opinion that the administration wants authority to seize automobiles for the use of workers employed in munitions factories. There were predictions in the senate today that many thousands of munitions workers who rely upon automobiles for transportation will have difficulty getting to work within a year or so because of the rubber shortage.

The bill introduced today apparently would not authorize the seizure of automobiles. Presumably it would authorize government control of bus transportation facilities for the benefit of munitions workers.

DEMAND PRIMARY REGISTRATION BE MADE IN ONE DAY

Demands for one city-wide registration day before the April 14 primaries with all 3,791 polling places open were made yesterday at a meeting of the Honest Ballot committee in the La Salle hotel. The representatives of 27 organizations agreed that this method is necessary to prevent the loss and misfiling of voters' cards when registration at fire stations is permitted without regard to precinct lines. Mrs. Harriet M. Robertson is president of the committee and the organizations participating included the Illinois and Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs, the Chicago Woman's club, and the Women's Bar association.

REVEAL ATTACK ON LIFEBOAT BY JAP SUBMARINE

Almost Rammed on Way to Torpedoed Ship.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—A Japanese submarine, the navy disclosed today, tried and failed to ram a coast guard lifeboat launched into heavy seas to rescue survivors of the tanker Emidio, shelled and torpedoed off the northern California coast Dec. 20.

Twice later, after the power driven lifeboat had eluded the ramming attempt, the little coast guard vessel came into close contact with the submersible, within sight of the glow of lights from Eureka, Cal.

The story was revealed in the report of Chief Boatswain Garner J. Churchill of Samoa, Cal., who took the lifeboat out with a crew of four coast guardsmen when squally weather and rough seas prevented the cutter Shawnee from leaving its station in Humboldt bay.

Story Given to Navy.

They set out the night of Dec. 20 and their story, as related by the navy, follows:

About 3 a. m. on Dec. 21 a large unlighted object loomed up on the port bow. It proved to be a vessel lying to. The lifeboat's headway carried it to within 100 yards of the vessel, which appeared to be long, low, and rakish, without mast, stack or housing.

Churchill attempted fruitlessly to signal the vessel by searchlight and suddenly it got under way, headed towards the lifeboat. Churchill pointed his boat northeast at slow speed. The vessel followed. Churchill speeded up the lifeboat to full speed. The vessel still followed, rapidly overtaking the smaller craft. When the vessel approached within 50 yards it was evident that it was attempting to ram the lifeboat.

Escapes by Quick Turn.

Churchill changed course sharply to southeast, assisted by a following sea. The unknown ship continued northeast and passed the lifeboat. A later check showed that there were no United States navy vessels in this area at that time and the vessel must have been a Japanese submarine.

At 4:05 a. m., the lifeboat proceeded to the torpedoed Emidio but there were no signs of life on board. Directed back to port by a navy patrol plane, the lifeboat turned homeward.

An hour later the crew sighted a periscope about 600 yards away. Churchill shifted course and the periscope disappeared.

About 15 minutes later the periscope again appeared at approximately 600 yards. It followed the course of the lifeboat at about the same speed for about five minutes, when it disappeared and was not sighted again.

Lake County Test Blackout Made Effective in 2 Minutes

Eighteen of Lake county's 22 municipalities, in addition to Fort Sheridan and the Great Lakes Naval Training station, blacked out last night for a half hour in a practice effort that was described by military and civil officials as eminently satisfactory.

The only towns that remained visible during the half hour were Zion, which was left lighted to serve as a contrast, and Highwood, Deerfield, and Highland Park, which did not have their civilian defense setups completed in time for the practice.

Observers in an American Airlines plane, carrying military and civil officials and an announcer for radio station W-G-N, which broadcast the feat, said the entire area, with a few minor exceptions, was as dark as the lake that fronted it.

Lights Out in Two Minutes.

In virtually every city and town the lights went off within two minutes of the starting hour, 7 p. m. A few squad cars were visible in Libertyville, and r Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific train went thru that town, fully lighted and with all the railroad stop signals swinging, in the middle of the blackout.

From the plane the observers could see the lights go out town by town. Skokie road was left open and traffic that could not wait was rerouted over that thorofare. From the plane the observers could see several lighted trains moving thru the area and commented on the fact that a blaze of light in the American Steel and Wire company's plant at North Chicago, working at full blast, would have made it a perfect target.

This plant was kept operating, however, because its war work was too important to stop for a mere practice.

Two Naval Officers in Plane.

In the plane besides the reporters were Lieutenants R. C. McKee and P. H. Faust of the navy, Fire Marshal Anthony J. Mullaney of Chicago, and Sheriff Thomas E. Kennedy of Lake county.

"It was much more successful than we ever had imagined it would be" was the comment of the naval officers.

Only one serious accident was reported from the whole area. On Grand avenue near Edic road, outside Gurnee, a truck and an auto, both occupied by air wardens, collided. Seriously hurt and taken to St. Therese's hospital in Waukegan was Ernest Peyer, 48 years old, farm manager for A. B. Dick. There were no lights on the truck, driven by Peyer's son, Allen, and the car was fitted with blue lenses.

Wins Race with Stork.

A tearful citizen arrived at St. Therese's with his wife in a mad race thru the blackout with the stork. He was Robert Carlson, a nurseryman, who lives at Grayslake. With his wife, Marie, 22 years old, he started for Waukegan because time and babies wait for no war, and was stopped 11 times on the way by police and defense wardens. He got there in time, tho.

In Waukegan crowds gathered on several downtown corners, causing some irritation to Mayor Frank A. Wallin. In Barrington, half in Lake county and half in Cook, the blackout was complete and Mayor Earl Hatje said he was pleased.

In Lake Forest, 177 of the street lights are still of the gas variety and individually controled. Nevertheless, 136 of them were turned off by block wardens, the others being left at wide intervals for protection.

Then there was the story of the Lake Forest woman who didn't hear about the blackout and was busily taking a bath. A civilian, perturbed at the light streaming from the window, ran across the lawn and banged on the window, giving the woman the fright of her life.

U. S. Gobs Beat Blackout in Hawaii; Dance by Day!

HONOLULU, Hawaii, Jan. 16 (AP).—Daylight dances, prompted by blackouts, are the newest thing at the Pacific fleet's recreation centers at Pearl Harbor. A "flying squadron" of feminine members of Honolulu's younger set danced with sailors at the inaugural daylight dance under sponsorship of the fleet recreation and morale officer.

Argentina Nazi Leaders Held for Collecting Funds

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Jan. 16 (AP).—Leaders of two German organizations were ordered held without bail today on charges of illegally collecting funds from German nationals in Argentina. The organizations involved were the union of German Workers and the German Charity and Culture Circle.

HOSPITAL UNIT CONDUCTS FIRST AIR RAID DRILL

Four minutes after the Alexian Brothers hospital received a trial signal of a bombing raid yesterday, its emergency air raid unit was at the imagined scene of a bombing, the Hudson avenue police station two miles away. Splints were applied to the legs of "patients," who were three male nurses, Thomas Frey, John Glowienki, and Mack Cooper.

Brother Hugh, superintendent of the hospital, said this first medical field drill under the civilian defense program had been successful and will be repeated weekly.

When the hospital, at 1200 Belden avenue, received the signal, it sent out calls to physicians in the field and ordered them to the station, at 1501 Hudson avenue. Simultaneously, two ambulances, carrying eight nurses and four stretcher bearers, were sent to the hospital.

Britain's China Envoy Gets Cripps' Post at Moscow

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, career diplomat, will replace Sir Stafford Cripps as British ambassador to Moscow, it was officially announced tonight. Cripps, who is credited with paving the way for the Anglo-soviet military alliance, is relinquishing his post at his own request, it was stated. Kerr will be succeeded as ambassador to China by Sir Horace Seymour, assistant undersecretary of state at the foreign office.

NAVY CONFIRMS SECOND SINKING OFF LONG ISLAND

Some Survivors Rescued; Details Lacking.

New York, Jan. 16.—The tanker Coimbra has been destroyed, presumably torpedoed, by an enemy raider within seeing distance of Long Island's south shore, but as darkness blacked out the cold North Atlantic tonight the whereabouts of her crewmen was uncertain.

Amid a welter of confusing and contradictory reports concerning the crew there stood out just one fact—the navy's announcement in Washington that "an unknown number of survivors has been picked up."

Another navy source said an unidentified number of crewmen had been taken aboard a rescue vessel at the scene of the attack—approximately 20 miles off the society playground of Southampton, Long Island, within 100 miles of New York harbor and approximately 50 miles from the spot where the Panamanian tanker Norness fell victim to a boldly surfaced submarine last Wednesday morning.

Navy Confirms Attack.

The attack on the 6,768-ton tanker, which flew the flag of an allied nation, was confirmed by the navy department in Washington today, some 24 hours after the coast guard made it known.

The communique said:

"A tanker named Coimbra flying the flag of a foreign ally was observed in a sinking condition on the morning of Jan. 15. Its position was approximately 100 miles east of New York. An unknown number of survivors has been picked up. The cause of the damage is unknown, but it is assumed to have been torpedoed by an enemy submarine."

Time of the attack, unofficially, was placed at about 9:30 a. m. [E. S. T.] yesterday, approximately 32 hours after the Norness shivered to the impact of three carefully aimed torpedoes and went down by the stern, leaving 50 feet of her prow sticking out of the water.

Day of Official Confusion.

A day of confusion in official sources followed the coast guard's announcement. Officials of the New York office of the 3d naval district declined to confirm the report and then ordered the coast guard and other naval sources of the district to refrain from giving further information.

In Washington, the navy department said last night it had no knowledge of the attack, but today an official Washington announcement said the confusion was due to a mixup in naval communications.

Meanwhile, the mystery concerning the whereabouts of the Coimba crewmen was heightened by the absence of official information as to the location of the rescue vessel nearly 36 hours after the tanker was known to have been hit and left—like the Norness—a useless, slowly sinking hulk and a menace to navigation.

Maritime circles said they presumed that survivors were picked up yesterday or last night because numbers of coast guard and naval craft searched the scene all day long, after a coast guard plane dropped food and whiskey to men seen in a lifeboat and on a raft.

Raft Machine Gunned, Says Officer.

Sea-battered survivors of the tanker Norness arrived in New York today with one ship's officer asserting that bullets were fired at seamen struggling in the water after torpedoes had forced abandonment of the vessel.

Capt. Harald Hansen, however, said he did not hear any machine gun fire after the third torpedo spelled the tanker's doom. It was the 34 year old second officer, Einar Anderson, who stated that his group on a small life raft was fired on. He is a native of Sandefjord, Norway.

"I was about 75 yards away when it fired five or six shots at us—one for each man on the raft, I guess!" said Anderson. "We all lay as flat as we could. You know, being on a raft is like being in the water. We swallowed plenty, and we got plenty wet!"

Two Crew Members Lost.

There were 36 survivors of the tanker in the party that arrived from Newport, R. I. Two members of the crew were lost and two others were left in a hospital in Rhode Island, one having been on the sick list before the attack.

Kaare Reinertsen was lost when an oil drenched lifeboat capsized while being lowered. Egil Bremseth, 17 years old, youngest of the crew, was blown off the deck when the second torpedo struck.

They were Scandinavians, mostly Norwegian, and for the most part husky, blond young men. They were wearing warm mackinaws, flamboyant plaid shirts, and varicolored wool caps—provided by the Red Cross, for most of them had lost their clothes and other belongings.

They struck a beeline for a restaurant in the railroad station, where they put away a lunch of soup, ham steak, carrots and peas, potatoes, rolls and butter, raisin pie, and coffee. They told their stories between mouthfuls.

There was no doubt it was a submarine that sank the Norness. Many of them said they saw the U-boat as it closed in for the kill in the early morning darkness. The biggest surprise to most of the survivors was that such a thing could happen so close to United States shores.

Captain Awakened by Torpedo.

Capt. Hansen, who was asleep when the first torpedo struck, fixed the time as 1:37 a. m.

He grabbed his cap and overcoat, and rushed to the deck to direct the lowering of lifeboats and rafts. He emphasized that the task was made difficult by fuel oil that splattered the ship's deck and tackle.

Paul Georgsan, a broad shouldered, 21 year old Dane, told with unconcealed emotion how he had to kill his pet dog just before taking to a life raft. He bought the white haired mongrel, called Pitt, in Buenos Aires five months ago.

ARGENTINA ORDERS ARMY KEPT AT DOUBLE SIZE 3 MORE MONTHS

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Jan. 16 (AP).—Altho Argentina lagged in joining the South American move for a united front against the Axis, its government today took steps to maintain the Argentine army at twice its normal size, or at about 90,000 men.

Conscripts whose term of service would have ended Dec. 31 will be kept under arms until March 31.

A decree said the action was based on "the international and political situation which imposes on the government the obligation of extending certain measures of vigilance and protection of the territory."

BRITISH WIPE OUT 20 JAP TANKS IN MALAYA CLASHES

Fresh Australian Troops Help Check Advance.

SINGAPORE, Jan. 16 (AP).—Australians and other fresh empire troops dealt costly blows to the Japanese in southern Malaya today and the RAF struck harder than at any time in the last six weeks as the British command organized a final defense for the showdown battle of Singapore.

Maj. Gen. Gordon Bennett.

Battling the invaders along a shortened line, mixed imperial forces were reported to have knocked out 14 Japanese tanks and 10 armored cars along the west coast above the plain of Malacca.

The Australians, who had moved into the lines with jovial shouts and songs, smashed six more enemy tanks in eastern Negri Sembilan state and cut down the invader in heavy numbers. This clash occurred in an area just above Johore province.

Aussies Ambush 200 Japs.

The first blow of the Australian counterassault was delivered upon 200 Japanese troops caught in ambush after a bridge had been blown up behind them, cutting them off from their accompanying forces. Australians leaped from the jungles along the road and killed the entire enemy advance party. Australian losses were slight.

Indications tonight were that the momentum of the Japanese drive had been perceptibly checked.

The Australians went into action after training and living in the jungle for months. Their commander, Maj. Gen. Gordon Bennett, was one of the phantom captives claimed by the Japanese long ago.

In Australia, Prime Minister John Curtin announced the receipt of this message from Gen. Bennett: "The troops are eager for a fight; I trust the enemy will soon realize I'm alive."

To an official Australian correspondent, the general gave this word for the world:

"My men are going in with their chins up. Every move the Japs make from now on will be countered by Australians who can outmarch, outfight, and outwit them. Hang on we must and hang on we will!"

RAF Strikes in "Large Force."

British bombers struck hard against the Japanese operational base at Sungei Patani, well up the peninsula in Kedah state, and "utterly smashed" a Japanese landing attempt from barges at Sungei Linggi, 20 miles north of the town of Malacca on the west coast.

This morning the British command said the aerial counteroffensive was extended in "large force" to Japanese transport and rolling stock in the Tampin area to the northeast of Malacca.

[The use of the term "large force" caused interest in London, but authoritative persons there remained silent as to whether air reënforcements had reached the western Pacific.]

Fifty planes bombed Singapore for hours, but visibility was bad and correspondents later saw no evidence of heavy damage or disruption of work at the navy base. One bomber was shot down.

A British rear admiral confidently asserted the Japanese would never take Singapore Island. This base, like Gibraltar, he said, is a fixed point in the imperial defense.

"Johore Penetrated"—Japs.

TOKIO, Jan. 16 [Official Broadcast Recorded by Associated Press].—A Domei war-front dispatch claimed tonight that all Japanese forces advancing thru Malaya had penetrated Johore, southernmost state of the peninsula, and "are now taking up positions to annihilate the British army."

The thrust into Johore was declared to have followed the defeat of British forces south of Gemas, on the border between Johore and Negri, Sembilan state, some 120 miles above Singapore. Gemas is on the main route to the British naval bastion.

[This account failed to bear out the Japanese controled Saigon radio, which said Japanese troops were within 62 miles of Singapore.]

Claiming still another broad advance, Domei said Japanese forces striking down the western Malayan coast crossed into Johore from Malacca yesterday and by nightfall had reached the Muar river, 30 miles southwest of Gemas.

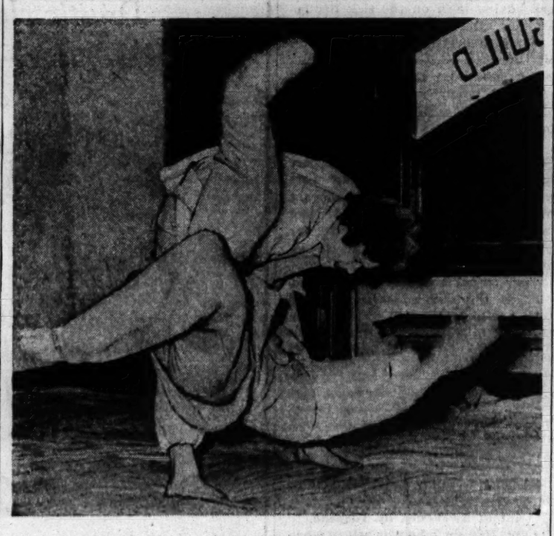
Imperial army headquarters announced that Japanese planes shot down 25 American made Brewster Buffalo fighters in a raid on Singapore, bombed the British Sebmawan and Tengah airdromes on the island, and again raided the east Malayan port of Endau, on the Pahang-Johore frontier. Headquarters said 16 British planes were shot down and 7 destroyed on the ground yesterday at a cost of only 2.

31 ALLIED SHIPS SUNK, 78 SEIZED BY JAPS: TOKIO

TOKIO, Jan. 16 [Official Radio Recorded by Associated Press].—Summing up naval operations from the war's start to Jan. 10, Japanese headquarters announced today that 31 enemy vessels totaling 191,000 tons had been sunk and 78 aggregating 171,000 tons captured. Of this number, it listed 20 vessels of 132,000 tons destroyed by submarines, 10 of 57,000 tons by aircraft and one of 2,000 tons by other means.

In this period it listed the loss of 11 Japanese army, navy, and privately owned ships totaling 46,800 tons.

Brush Up on Personal Defense



Mrs. Beatrice Vedal tosses Gilbert Gerow in exhibition at physical science institute. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

DON'T GET FRESH IN BLACKOUT, IS SCHOOL MOTTO

Pupils Learn How to Handle Attackers.

BY HERMAN KOGAN.

A poetess, a radio technician, an office worker with red tinted toenails, and a beverage distributor threw each other around last night in the interests of civilian defense.

All this and more, too, took place on the mat covered floor in the tiny headquarters of the Physical Science institute, 28 East Van Buren street, where the quartet was showing prospective air raid wardens, factory watchmen, guards, and other wide-eyed spectators what to do if some one comes from behind and grabs them during blackouts.

Under auspices of the Chicago defense council, free classes will be held by the institute each Monday and Wednesday night.

Better Than Having Gun.

"All this has gone by the name of judo," said Gilbert Gerow, the radio technician and one of the instructors, as he leaped up after being tossed in the air by Miss Rosalie Whitney, 19, the pretty office worker. "That's out now. We call it simply physical science. It's better than having a gun to protect you!"

"A man or girl learns how to fall," breathed Mike Reichert, the husky beverage distributor, as he leaped up and threw himself on the mat, "and the rest comes along easily."

Mike, who holds the order of the Black Belt, highest honor in ju—physical science, then approached Rosalie as if to kiss her. She flicked out her hand and jabbed his Adam's apple and he fell back. "See how simple it is?" he told the watchers.

Weak Can Master Strong.

Gerow crept behind Mike and encircled his neck with a sturdy forearm. In a second, he had been hurled up and over and landed with such force that the elevated railroad structure outside trembled.

"This is a sport where the small and weak can master the big and strong," murmured Gerow as he showed a few essentials to a blonde neophyte, Mrs. Michael Mulea, 25. "Go on," he told her, as he tried to embrace her neck, "all you have to do is let your arms fly and my grip is broken!"

Then Gerow grabbed the hand of Mrs. Beatrice Vedal, 22, who in her quieter moments writes poetry, and squeezed. With astonishing ease, she administered the "old armbar," twisting her assailant's arm and with her free hand pressing his elbow in an opposite direction until he said "Ouch!" Then she tossed him aside, too.

Mrs. Vedal said she's been practicing on her husband and he's getting a little tired of it.

BRITISH ENGAGE JAPS TRYING TO CROSS BURMA

RANGOON, Burma, Jan. 16 (AP).—British forces have clashed with Japanese invaders apparently attempting to drive across southern Burma to the Bay of Bengal, British combined headquarters announced tonight.

A brief communique said contact was made last night at Myitta, in a broad valley 12 miles inside Burma, about 20 miles from Tavoy. Tavoy lies on the estuary of a river of the same name emptying into the waters between the Malacca straits and the Gulf of Martaban. Headquarters here had no details of the engagement.

To span Burma in this area the Japanese would have to cross rugged mountains rising in some places to 6,000 feet, or force a narrow pass just north of Tavoy.

RAF planes blasted a Japanese airdrome yesterday in Thailand, severely damaging planes on the ground, and machine-gunned an armored train, disabling its locomotive. All British planes returned safely.

U. S. MISSIONARIES SLAIN BY JAPS ON ISLE, CHINA SAYS

CHUNGKING, China, Jan. 16 (AP).—An army communique said today that the Japanese slew all American missionaries on Hainan Island after the outbreak of war in the Pacific. [Hainan, Chinese island off the south coast of China, was occupied by the Japanese in March, 1940.]

The communique mentioned the names of the Rev. and Mrs. D. H. Thomas and Miss M. Burkwall, registered nurse, as among those slain.

According to the 1941 Protestant mission directory, the American Presbyterian mission [North] maintained stations in four centers of Hainan. There is also a Roman Catholic mission on the island but no mention was made of it in the communique.

BURMA ROAD TONNAGE SETS NEW HIGH AS U. S. ARMY TAKES A HAND

RANGOON, Burma, Jan 16 (AP).—December tonnage set a new high record on the Burma road, China's only important route for American lend-lease supplies, it was revealed today. New Chinese administrators, aided by hard boiled American army officers, were given credit for the 15 per cent increase over the previous monthly record.

Reliable informants said United States machine guns, trucked in at full speed late last year, helped rout Japanese troops at Changsha this month.

T. V. Soong, foreign minister and head of the China mission to Washington, has cabled Chinese officials that 20,000 tons of American supplies will be landed monthly at the southern terminus of the Burma road thruout 1942.

Several alternative routes have been prepared in case the Japanese drive toward the Burma road.

JAP FLYERS RAID DUTCH BASES ON 2,000 MILE FRONT

Bomb Sumatra Airport Near Singapore.

BATAVIA, Netherlands East Indies, Jan. 16 (AP). — Japanese air raiders pressed their assault on Dutch East Indies bases today on a 2,000 mile line.

The naval-air base at Amboina, in the Moluccan Islands, second of importance in the Indies, was attacked for the second consecutive day. Far to the west on the other side of Singapore the Medan airport on the east coast of Sumatra was bombed.

In between, it was disclosed officially, the oil base of Balikh Papan, on the lower east coast of Borneo, was bombarded yesterday, with one civilian killed and ten wounded.

Fear New Invasions.

There were no details of today's raids, but the Netherlands command said that there had been some damage to military installations in yesterday's bombardment of Amboina and that one Australian soldier was killed, six Australian and Dutch soldiers wounded; one civilian killed and five wounded.

The Dutch lost two planes in fighting off this attack but their anti-aircraft guns bagged at least one and probably two.

The prospect that these repeated raids on both Amboina and Balikh Papan were the forerunners of new invasion stabs was not lost on the Dutch. Landings already have been made on the oil island of Tarakan, less than 300 miles above Balikh Papan, and on the north coast of Celebes.

Sink Two Jap Destroyers.

Tarakan's coastal batteries were disclosed today to have sunk two enemy destroyers after the center of the island had been occupied at the start of the week. A landing sloop also was sunk, a seaplane shot down and a Japanese heavy destroyer or cruiser hit by Dutch bombers.

Authoritative sources reiterated that none of Tarakan's oil, which can be used in warships without much refining, fell into the hands of the Japanese navy. All installations and stores were destroyed.

Japs Put Guam Prisoners Under Their Military Code

TOKIO, Jan. 16 [Official Broadcast Recorded by Associated Press].—Maj. Gen. Yoshishige Dizhuara, commanding officer of the internment camp on Shikoku Island, told his 442 American war prisoners today that they must behave according to the Japanese military code and without the "traditional Anglo-American sense of superiority for Asiatics." The prisoners include Capt. George J. McMillin, who was governor of Guam. Dizhuara assured the prisoners they would be treated fairly.

TELLS HOW U. S. FLEET HUNTS JAPS IN PACIFIC

Only Navy Can Bare Fate of Enemy Subs.

BY TOM YARBROUGH.

WITH THE UNITED STATES PACIFIC FLEET, Jan. 16 (AP). — Somewhere in mid-Pacific this deadly force of warships and planes has patrolled hundreds of thousands of square miles the last few days, almost entirely without incident.

A small number of enemy submarines was reported seen. What happened to them remains for the navy to say officially in its own time and in harmony with operational secrets.

The hunting hasn't been so good. Most of the shooting has been target practice. No major Japanese force has appeared in these waters since Dec. 7.

Even traces of the enemy are hard to find. The results, therefore, have not been spectacular. It's not that kind of mission. The fleet's specific job is to search the sea with guns and planes by day and night, maintaining long range protection for Pearl Harbor and the rest of Hawaii and for the American west coast.

Reporters Get First Trip.

Reporters and photographers were permitted to come along for the first time during this war, traveling aboard heavy cruisers.

Early in the morning we have ringside seats at a stirring air show. Thru powerful binoculars that bring an aircraft carrier right up before our eyes we see fighters and bombers and torpedo planes take off, one by one. Presently they roar overhead in precise formations. Hours later, their searching done, they fly back to their majestic floating base, alighting on its broad deck like flies on a fruit cake.

Man Guns Day and Night.

Fighting or not, there is something to keep everybody busy around the clock beginning with "general quarters" before dawn when every man must be at his battle station. Guns, of course, are manned all night, but "general quarters" is for all hands.

The hours seem long with ceaseless watching and the complex work of keeping the ship constantly in fighting trim. Even the mildest form of excitement is welcome—such as taking an appendicitis patient aboard from a destroyer.

Scattered among the suntanned crew are scores of men whose ships were torpedoed from under them at Pearl Harbor in the Japanese attack of Dec. 7. Don't make the mistake of thinking that they are downhearted. They're eating like horses—a sure sign they are full of fight.

Drills Are Important Now.

Most of the activity is drill, but a keen sense that this is the "real thing" nevertheless pervades the ship. It isn't just practice any more. Any time, a periscope might stab the white flecked blue water for just the necessary instant. High in the lookout posts sharp eyes are watching, each man assigned to a certain sector—his own "piece of pie."

If one of the lookouts sees something, he shouts. Word goes by telephone to the bridge and gun directors. So far, they've shouted nothing big, but there is bound to come a time when they will.

We were finishing luncheon the other day when our guns roared without warning and we hit the deck like cats. The gunners thought they saw a periscope—maybe they did—and that was no time for haggling.

Whales Just Out of Luck.

The gunners' itchy trigger fingers make it tough on the whales because their big, dark shadows often resemble submarines. One officer smilingly referred to our sea force as a "high-powered branch of the whaling industry."

Hence the question "When is a whale a submarine?" Another officer answered it this way:

"When you see a whale with a conning tower and a gun, it's no longer a whale."

NEW STANDARDS FOR AIR CORPS WIN RECRUITS

Office Swamped with Youths 18 to 20.

Anticipated increase in applications for the aviation cadet training program—after reduction of educational and age requirements materialized yesterday. Throngs of young men, most of them 18 and 19 years old, appeared in the examining board office in the United States courthouse and before other boards thruout the 6th army corps area.

The number of applicants was not disclosed, altho the Chicago office announced that its examination schedule is booked thru Jan. 25. Two hour written tests, stressing general intelligence and aptitude for subjects taught in aviation schools, will be begun Monday.

Diplomas Are Waived.

The war department on Thursday lowered the minimum age standard from 20 to 18 years, the maximum remaining at 26. Married men in this group, heretofore rejected for flying, will be eligible if their families have sufficient means of support. The educational requirements of at least two years' college or an examination in equivalent subjects have been dropped. High school diplomas no longer are necessary.

Cadets who successfully complete the training are commissioned second lieutenants, their pay going as high as $245 a month with a $500 bonus for each year of continuous service. They are paid $75 a month, with certain additional subsistence allowances, during training.

Examiners Meet Today.

Lieut. Col. J. L. Bachus, recruiting officer for the 6th corps area, said that heads of aviation cadet examining boards and army enlistment officers will meet this morning in corps area headquarters in the new post-office for instruction on methods of giving the examinations. Maj. Gen. Joseph M. Cummins, commanding the area, will be one of the speakers.

The navy recruiting office in the courthouse yesterday dispatched 130 recruits to the Great Lakes naval training station. This contingent, largest ever sent to the station from the office, marched from the courthouse to the North Shore station at Adams street and Wabash avenue.

The marine corps recruiting office reported the enlistment of 60 men.

Review of Class 2A Ordered.

Paul G. Armstrong, state selective service director, issued an order from Springfield to Illinois local draft boards to review the cases of all men previously deferred in class 2A because their employment was considered necessary to public safety and interest.

Armstrong said this was intended to draft from this class all men except those having the highest skills and those most urgently needed in actual war production. He urged employers in war production to replace wherever possible men fit for duty with older men or women, or with men physically ineligible.

Concerning men in class 2B—deferred because their skills are considered most essential to war production—Armstrong said they must be left at work so long as they cannot be replaced adequately.

He's a Postmaster

Joseph F. Fredrickson of the postmastering Fredricksons of Bureau, Ill., gave up sorting the mails yesterday for the duration of the war. He came here from Bureau, north of Peoria, and applied for enlistment in the marines.

Col. Chester Fordney, marine recruiting officer, swore him in as a private in the United States courthouse. Fredrickson is 27 years old and is a graduate of St. Bede's academy at Peru, Ill. He has been postmaster at Bureau since 1936. Before that his mother, Mrs. Martha K. Fredrickson, held the job. And she's got it again now that Joseph has entered the military service.

"The mail will go thru as usual with ma in charge," Joseph said.

AIR CHIEF SENDS MARINES PRAISE FOR WAKE FIGHT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—A new tribute to the "bravery and ingenuity" of the marine garrison at Wake Island was paid today by Lieut. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the army air forces, who said its two-week stand against Japanese air and sea assault was an example for "all members of the armed forces."

Arnold wrote to Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, marine corps commandant, that he had read a "most interesting and inspiring report" on the gallant Wake defense by fewer than 400 marines. The report was supplied by Rear Adm. John H. Towers, chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics.

"The bravery and ingenuity described in this report are in keeping with the splendid records of the marine corps and, I feel, warrant inscriptions on a very bright page of those records for all members of the armed forces of the United States to strive to emulate," Arnold said.

NAVY SINKS FIVE MORE JAP SHIPS IN FAR PACIFIC

24 Enemy Craft Destroyed in Six Weeks.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—Five more Japanese ships—three transports and two cargo vessels—lay at the bottom of the far Pacific tonight as the result of hammer blows delivered by the United States navy.

They were sunk, a communique announced, by units of the Asiatic fleet, raising to at least 24 the number of enemy craft destroyed by the navy and marines in less than six weeks of fighting.

In addition to the action by the two sea services, war department communiques from Washington and from the army in the western Pacific have claimed the sinking of eight Japanese craft, including a battleship.

No Hint Where Ships Sank.

The navy, of course, gave no hint of where the five Jap ships went down other than to say in "far eastern waters." London heard an axis report that the Japanese fleet was in action off the Philippine peninsula of Bataan, where American and Philippine forces are still fighting back land and air attacks, but this report was accorded little recognition.

The navy department passed out this terse statement:

"Units of the United States Asiatic fleet report the sinking of five enemy vessels in far eastern waters. They include two large cargo ships, two large transports, and one medium sized transport. These sinkings are in addition to enemy casualties at sea previously reported."

Extricates Fighting Ships.

The success of Adm. Thomas C. Hart's Asiatic fleet in waging its fight against the Japanese was underscored yesterday by the submarine sinking of a speedy 17,000 ton Japanese passenger and cargo liner of the Yawata class.

Thru the last several weeks of the war, one of the most frequently asked questions was where the fleet might be. Several days ago it was learned that Hart had successfully extricated his fighting ships from Manila Bay, where they might have faced a nasty predicament with Japan in control of the air.

To some, the day's report was evidence that Hart is playing a hit and run game, in an endeavor to harry the Japanese communications and supply line between home bases and military forces far to the south. Hart's submarines have sunk a number of Japanese ships.

The Japanese invaders on Luzon, meanwhile, intensified their attack upon Gen. Douglas MacArthur's depleted defending army, strung across the approaches to Bataan peninsula.

Enemy dive bombers attacked incessantly, the war department announced. Shock troops with special training stormed the defense line Japanese artillery kept up a continuous cannonading. The communique mentioned neither withdrawal by the American-Filipino forces nor the Japanese troops, and it was apparently too early to perceive the trend of the battle.

But MacArthur's headquarters found time to report to the war department that in occupied areas the Japanese were "systematically looting and devastating the entire countryside." It was another indication that MacArthur is receiving numerous reports of activities behind the enemy lines.

[Copyright, 1942, by the New York Times.]

CARACAS, Venezuela, Jan. 16.—Concerted action by the governments and peoples of the Americas against Rafael Leonidas Trujillo, former president and "strong man" of the Dominican republic, was called for in a resolution signed today by 100 of Venezuela's most prominent authors and journalists. The resolution said the dictatorship of the Trujillo regime presents "the danger of undermining if not destroying this moment of unparalleled gravity the possibilities which exist in favor of a united American front against totalitarianism." It declared that "Trujillo must not continue to exert his tyranny over the Dominican republic." The resolution was prompted by the impending national elections in the Dominican republic.

3 NATIONS URGE RIO CONFERENCE TO CUT AXIS TIES

..rgentina Is Expected to Support Action.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Jan. 16.—The conference of all American nations settled down to work here today after yesterday's flowery speeches. Between the heat and the Brazilian hospitality, the delegates were reluctant to begin serious business.

Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles made it plain, however, that delegates from the United States were in no mood for parties when American lives were being lost on western Pacific battle fronts.

Three Events Mark Day.

Three major developments marked today's session.

FIRST—Colombia, Mexico, and Venezuela formally asked Pan-American nations to cut all axis ties to bolster the United States war effort.

SECOND—Argentina appeared to sway toward the solidarity bloc when Acting President Ramon Castillo wired the conference that his country was as "faithful and loyal" as any other American nation. Many delegates felt this meant that Argentina would join her sister republics in voting next week to break completely with the axis.

THIRD—Satisfactory solution of the 100 year old Ecuador-Peru border dispute appeared imminent. Some delegates express the opinion that a permanent peace will replace the existing armistice within 30 days.

U. S. Lets Others Take Lead.

The United States is the only participating country which has been attacked, and as such it is not taking the lead in initiating anti-axis resolutions because that would be too much like begging for help. American proposals were confined to such subjects as establishment of a Pan-American antisubversive committee with permanent headquarters in Washington, measures to control communications, including air lines within the Americas, and provisions for curtailing the activities of suspected axis nationals with dual citizenships.

Dr. Oswaldo Aranha, foreign minister of Brazil, opened the session this morning by reading the Argentine statement. "There is a slandering campaign whose origins are unknown, attributing certain purposes which have never existed," Dr. Castillo wrote, referring to the belief that Argentina might oppose a rupture of relations with the axis.

Stresses Friendship with States.

"The attitude of the Argentine republic is the same clean, straight, and loyal one which it always has assumed in the face of its international relations.

"There has always existed between us and the United States of America a coincidence of an institutional order and a point of common principles which turn friendship into solidarity and uphold the cultural relationships of both countries."

Castillo cautioned that the United States cannot be helped effectively if the Latin-American countries assume an "extreme position."

Some spokesmen suggested that this apparent change in Argentina's attitude was influenced largely by the united anti-axis stand of the other South American countries, aided by the Brazilian press. With its foreign markets cut off by the war and blockades, Argentina would face a serious economic problem in following a policy of isolation.

On the other hand, recent reports on Argentina's strict investigation of Nazis activities within its territory seem to indicate that there has been a good deal of transformation in Buenos Aires and that its loyalty and sincerity toward the United States may be considered a reality.

Border Dispute Cloud Lifts.

News that definite progress had been made in bringing Peru and Ecuador together came from Aranha tonight. He said that the ancient boundary dispute was "never so close to solution as now."

Even within recent months there have been bloody border clashes between troops of the two countries and Ecuador's foreign minister, Julio Tobar Donoso, has refused to take his seat at the conference until the dispute is settled.

Another cloud—the fear of arbitrary demands from countries at war with the axis that all American nations declare a state of belligerency—also lifted today. It was said the three-power resolution for the severance of all diplomatic and commercial relations with axis powers was so stringent that nations which had intended to insist on outright declarations of war agreed to withdraw their resolutions. One of these was Cuba which, however, introduced a resolution that served to write into the conference record the 8-point Atlantic charter of President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill.

The severance resolution, which has not been made public, is said to condemn the axis attack upon the United States.

Meat Shortage in France Laid to Scarcity of Feed

VICHY, France, Jan. 16.—Minister of Agriculture Pierre Caziot today said the meat shortage in France is largely a question of scarcity of feed. Since this affects the output of butter, he said, it will not be possible to cover the butter deficit by the end of 1942.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will attempt to answer draft and military service questions, both in the daily columns and personally if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the query.]

BY CLAY GOWRAN.

A dozen letters received in the last few days ask an explanation of the arrangements which the government has made to guarantee premium payments on life insurance carried by men called into military service. As one letter writer puts it:

"I know some system has been worked out whereby Uncle Sam sees that life policies taken out by men during their civilian lives will not lapse for nonpayment when they are put into uniform at $21 a month. But just what the system is I've never been able to figure out."

Provisions Set Forth.

The system, stated as simply as possible, is as follows:

Under the soldiers' and sailors' civil relief act of 1940 the government guarantees premiums on life insurance of men in military service, providing:

1. That the policy does not exceed $5,000 face value.
2. That a payment was made on the policy within 30 days before entry into the military service.
3. That not more than 49 per cent of the cash surrender value of the policy has been borrowed.
4. That the policyholder agree to pay the unpaid premiums with interest within a year after leaving military service.

Further Data Available.

More detailed information can be obtained by writing to the insurance division of the Veterans' administration, Washington, D. C. The points mentioned above, however, are the main features of the premium guarantee plan.

QUESTIONS.

S. W. writes: "Girls in the army nurse corps are commissioned officers, I understand. Is it proper to write to such a nurse as 'Lieut. Mary Smith,' for instance?"

ANSWER: Registered nurses of the army nurse corps do receive commissions as second lieutenants, first lieutenants, and even as higher officers. Instead of wearing their insignia on their shoulders, as army officers do, they pin them on their starched collars. It is not proper to address them by their rank. An army nurse should be addressed as "Nurse Mary Smith."

Mrs. A. B. writes: "My son served 10 months as a draftee and then was discharged under the amendment releasing men over 28. Now he expects to be recalled because of the war. Can he enlist in the navy or marine corps? He didn't like the infantry."

ANSWER: Your son is just a little too late. An order issued Jan. 10 directs the navy and marine corps not to accept men who have served in the army as draftees and are now waiting to be recalled to duty. I suggest that your son ask for a transfer from the infantry to some branch of the army which will be more appealing to him.

B. A. writes: "I'm going to be inducted into the army this month. Do I have to file an income tax return for 1941, and do I have to pay a tax?"

ANSWER: Entering military service does not exempt you from income tax. The incomes of men in the army, navy, marines, etc., are taxable just as are those of civilians. However, if you are financially incapable of paying the tax on your income because of your army service you may have the tax deferred until six months after you leave the service. No interest or penalty shall apply on such unpaid income taxes.

T. M. asks: "I am registered for the draft. Can I enlist in the navy?"

ANSWER: Selective service officials said yesterday that draft registrants are eligible to enlist in any branch of the military services up until the time that their local draft boards put their final induction orders into the mail.

MEAT PLENTIFUL FOR SOME BRITONS —HERE'S REASON

Gangs Find Formula for Cargo Thefts.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Testimony in a Liverpool court last week that 2,153 carcasses of lamb and beef worth $20,280 had been stolen from five refrigerator ships, threw the spotlight on how vast quantities of imported meat disappear into the black [illegal] markets.

The thefts were said to have taken place under the noses of the police when the refrigerator ships unloaded. Collusion between quayside checkers and truck drivers operating for the black market made the operation simple.

Under this system a driver may have an order to collect only 50 carcasses of lamb, but the checker may be bribed not to stop loading the 5 or 10 ton truck until perhaps 70 carcasses have been put in. The driver then delivers the 50 carcasses to the ministry of food for distribution and the extra 20 are sold to black market men.

Food Ministry Takes Loss.

Investigators say that it is common for hundreds of carcasses to be stolen in this way from the cargo of one meat ship. The food ministry bears the losses, the extent of which is kept secret.

Disclosure of the size of the organization which has grown up at the docks for supplying the black market followed complaints by housewives that the customers of one butcher always seemed to get as much meat as they wanted, whereas the others had to go short. The food ministry kept a watch on the butcher, raided the shop, and found it well stocked with chilled beef at a time when only fresh meat was being supplied from the food ministry depot.

The butcher, William Alfred Wales, confessed and, after an investigation, the food ministry arrested six other men, including Donald Shaw, also a butcher, and the food ministry meat distribution supervisor at Warrington. All seven received terms of one to four years in prison.

Several Gangs Active.

The police and food ministry investigations revealed that several highly organized gangs were involved over a long period in the meat thefts from the docks. Big supplies have been delivered to butchers in many parts of Lancashire and Yorkshire and even London. Many more men would have been arrested, it was explained, if sufficient evidence for conviction could have been obtained. The investigations still are going on, however, and the food ministry hopes to round up several more food law violators shortly.

Hailed as a new blow at racketeers and black market dealers was a board of trade order signed today aimed at preventing unjustifiable increases in the prices of a wide range of commodities, including furniture, bicycles, cosmetics, etc., but not food. The order seeks to keep the commodities from passing thru an unnecessary number of hands and therefore prohibits any trader, except by license, from reselling goods to a retailer, wholesaler, or merchant, or back to another manufacturer. The trader can only sell these goods over the counter to the public.

Provisions are made whereby one trader may oblige another who is short of a particular commodity but specifies that there may be no increase in the price to the customer. In announcing the order, Raymond Evershed, chairman of the price regulation committee, appealed to the public to coöperate and report all cases of overcharging to the ministry.

HEAR CHURCHILL RESISTS SHAKEUP DESPITE ATTACKS

Plans Minor Shifts Only, Paper Declares.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 17 [Saturday].—While most London newspapers insist that a wholesale shakeup is pending in the government, Wilson Broadbent, political correspondent of the Daily Mail, this morning threw cold water on reports that Prime Minister Churchill plans a drastic reorganization of his administration.

There will be minor changes, Broadbent suggested, but Churchill, refusing to consider a large scale dismissal of minsters and personally replying to critics of the Malayan operations in parliament, will, if necessary, force the issue by demanding a vote of confidence on the ground that all members of the government are responsible for policy and must stand or fall together. Churchill frequently has adopted these tactics and invariably stilled his critics since most members of parliament consider his leadership indispensable.

Hear Halifax May Be Shifted.

While reiterating that Churchill intends to set up an advisory committee in London with dominion representation, Broadbent said that it is unlikely that any single body will be established in either London or Washington, D. C., to direct grand strategy, altho liaison officers will be appointed for the purpose of coördination.

Changes resulting from Churchill's discussions with President Roosevelt are likely to affect Lord Halifax, ambassador to the United States, it was suggested, and it is rumored that he may be asked to return to India as viceroy, while Sir Archibald Sinclair, present air minister, would succeed him at Washington.

On the other hand, the Star boldly announced as the most important news of the day a proposed drastic reconstruction of the government and commented that "after the events of the last five weeks, no less a gesture would have satisfied public opinion."

Even Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard asserted that "public anxiety is not allayed by official explanations or by newspapers which take the burden of these explanations upon themselves."

Sees New Post for Beaverbrook.

The Daily Mirror, taking the general view that sweeping changes are on the way, expressed belief that Lord Beaverbrook, minister of supply, on his return from Washington will become a minister without portfolio in the war cabinet, with full powers of direction over the three service departments.

If this is done, the Daily Mirror forecast, Sir Archibald Sinclair and War Minister Capt. David Margesson will resign, "particularly as the minister to whom they would be responsible is Lord Beaverbrook."

The News Chronicle, which reported, "Churchill has big changes ready," suggested editorially that the fact that the prime minister stands head and shoulders above his colleagues may be because "the level of ability among the other ministers is low."

"We cannot afford to entrust the conduct of the war to men of second rate capacities," the paper added.

Lack of Supplies Blamed.

The Daily Telegraph, again defending the government's handling of the Malayan campaign, pointed out that critics now are recognizing "the prime source of trouble is the lack of supplies."

The Daily Mail, however, attached great importance to the statement in Melbourne by the former Australian premier, Robert G. Menzies, which "shifts the charge of military incompetence from Singapore to London." The paper added:

"An inquiry is imperative. Justice demands that if the blame has been laid on the wrong quarters it should be lifted and those proved responsible have no opportunity to repeat their errors."

Ask Production Minister.

The appointment of a minister of production, with a seat in the war cabinet, was urged in a motion offered for presentation to parliament by two Laborites, Ness Edwards and George Daggar. It declared that such a minister is necessary to "plan centrally all production vital to winning the war and to which the activities of the ministries of supply and aircraft production, and the naval supply department should subordinate."

Altho it is seldom that the government provides facilities for debate on motions from private members, the demand has such wide backing in commons that a full discussion is likely, the Daily Herald said.

BRITAIN REPORTS AXIS PLANE LOSS AT 8,574, AGAINST 3,962 FOR RAF

REVEALS HITLER MUSTERS YOUTH FOR SPRING DRIVE

Writer Sees New Recruits Entering Army.

BY GEORGE AXELSSON.

[Copyright: 1942: By the New York Times.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Jan. 16.—I have just left a Germany that is mustering new strength for a spring offensive, which has been announced by Adolf Hitler, and for whatever other military efforts he may decide the situation calls for.

At several stations on the 4 hour journey yesterday from Berlin to the Baltic port of Sassnitz, I saw groups of new recruits being marched off to barracks. They were sturdy young men who were warmly dressed in their civvies. They were well shod. Most of then looked as if they were young farmers, whose work on the land is being taken over by war prisoners.

Seek New Volunteers.

Whether these men were volunteers or draftees, it is impossible to tell. Publicity campaigns for volunteers in all branches of the fighting force have increased in recent weeks.

On the production front the Germans are busy taking stock of their resources. They are striving to maintain and increase their output. An unusual number of production managers of the various war industry plants have appeared in Berlin hotel lobbies in the last few days, indicating a general conference to discuss production. These production managers wear uniforms of Hitler's elite guard.

Whether Germany's war effort, now at the peak of its capacity, can be maintained at that level or even further developed should largely depend on the results of this conference.

Call War "Good Business."

Meanwhile, every German works directly or indirectly to maintain the men at the front, which means that 90 per cent of the population works for the 10 per cent in combat units. This 10 per cent also gets a good half of the amenities of peacetime life, such as tobacco and liquor. The 90 per cent bloc of civilians must divide as best it can the short half of these particular supplies.

The Germans constantly are encouraged by the press to consider the war as a piece of good business. While the campaign against Russia was going in the right direction for the Germans, the people at home were fed with statistics and tables, very much like the profit and loss sheets of a prosperous corporation. Every bushel of grain and every ton of iron ore in territory captured the preceding day was listed as a permament German asset for the next 1,000 years.

It's Up to the Army.

If a German cares to talk to a foreigner about the war he generally lets it be understood that the army has taken this war on contract, and, therefore, it is up to the army to win it.

The man at home, he concludes, has only to do what he is told to do, or rather to do without. The "investors" who began to doubt that the investment is altogether sound have taken Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop's recent hint that it is useless to rebel against a dive bomber. Therefore they have not got out of hand and may never do so.

For these same reasons the reaction in Berlin to Hitler's declaration of war on the United States, as well as to what is politely called the new type of winter warfare in Russia, has been practically nil. Nor has there been any rejoicing at the Japanese successes in the far east. The Berliners take their bad news with their good news, registering neither disappointment, sorrow, anger or joy.

BRITISH TRAWLER WHICH SANK NAZI U-BOAT IS LOST

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP).—The admiralty today announced the trawler Lady Shirley, which sank the German submarine U-111 on Oct. 4, is overdue and considered lost. The Lady Shirley was credited with sinking the U-boat in a dramatic fight against "a larger and better equipped adversary." Several shells from the trawler disabled the submarine after it had been forced to the surface by depth bombs. Forty-four of the German seamen were taken aboard the trawler as prisoners after the submarine sank.

JAIL 4 IRISH AIR CORPS MEN FOR HOP TO ENGLAND

DUBLIN, Ireland, Jan. 16 (AP).—The Irish government information service issued the following communique today:

"On the ninth instant a junior officer and three other ranks of the air corps took off on an unauthorized flight from Rynana airport. They subsequently landed in Cornwall, England. They have been handed over by British authorities and now are in custody of the Irish army." No further explanation was made.

BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

THE QUESTION.

What was the most unusual task you were ever asked to perform? [Asked of Western Union messengers.]

WHERE ASKED.

Western Union office, 32 North Clark street.

THE ANSWERS.

Mary Ann Saviano, 2830 Harrison street—A party of employés called a messenger boy to sing "Happy Birthday" to their boss. There wasn't a boy in the office who could carry a tune so I was sent over. I had to get up on a desk and sing to about 100 people. It was the first time I had ever tried anything like that.

Walter Sievers, 3749 North Nora avenue—A junk man's horse drawn cart was parked in an alley in the loop. A woman was standing there admiring the horse and when I walked by she asked me to buy an apple for the horse and feed it to him while she watched. The first bite the horse took he included one of my fingers, but duty was duty, so I let him finish the apple.

Marcia Teplitsky, 1612 South Miller avenue—There's an unusual errand I run every day at 1 p. m. for the same man. I have to go to a certain restaurant, order a hamburger, a chocolate cup cake, and a bottle of buttermilk for his lunch, and bring it up to his office. We don't often run errands of that type.

Walter L. Dohse, 1862 North Clark street—Most of my errands have been the usual message type, but there was one I did for a man in his loop office that was unusual. He said he had left his glasses at home. I went to his home, where the chauffeur handed me the glasses. He could have gotten them to him sooner.

Ruth Hladilek, 5135 South Wolcott avenue—I had to deliver a telegram to a celebrity who was going to arrive on a certain train. He didn't want the news photographers and general public to recognize him and so had done a pretty successful job of disguising himself. But when I called him by name he had to step up and accept the telegram.

Henry H. Suchan, manager, 2120 East avenue, Berwyn—Every once in a while we are asked to do errands that we don't allow the messengers to perform. Like the wire we got from a man in Texas who wanted us to buy a casket and make all funeral arrangements for his woman cousin who had died here. It was my job to follow the orders word for word.

CLARENDON HILLS ATHLETE VICTIM OF PLANE CRASH

Lieut. Frank A. Kobal.

Second Lieut. Frank A. Kobal, 25 years old, found dead Thursday with eight others in the wreck of an army Martin B-26 bomber which disappeared Dec. 30 in the San Bernardino mountains, was a resident of Clarendon Hills, and a graduate of Hinsdale High school, it was learned yesterday. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Kobal. The senior Kobal operates a grocery and tavern at 55th street and Clarendon Hills road. Lieut. Kobal, prominent in high school athletics, joined the air corps about two years ago. A brother, Valentine Jr., is in the army.

France Takes Citizenship from Suez Canal Agent

VICHY, France, Jan. 16 (AP).—Louis de Benoist, French general agent for the Suez Canal company who turned to the De Gaullist cause, was deprived of his nationality today by the Vichy government. This apparently was the first of the countermoves threatened if the De Gaullists seek to gain control of the French interest in the canal.

British Plan to Reopen Tin Mines in Cornwall

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 16.—As the result of the loss of tin supplies from Malaya, the British government today was reported to be considering the possibility of reopening a number of Cornish tin mines which have been shut down for many years. A few mines are still operating.

RUSSIAN TROOPS BEAT BACK NAZI COUNTER-DRIVES

'Our Advance Continues,' Moscow Claims.

MOSCOW, Jan. 16 (AP).—A soviet communique declared tonight that the Germans had attempted counter-attacks in some sectors of the Russian battle front but said they were beaten back with heavy losses.

"Our troops," the communique asserted, "continued to advance."

The Red army announced the destruction of 45 German planes yesterday. It acknowledged the loss of 14 soviet planes.

Red "Ghost Troops" Attack.

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP).—Russian dispatches said tonight that the imperiled Nazi armies on the central front were being smashed in the snowy vastness of Russia under the impact of specially equipped Siberian "ghost troops" attacking enemy flanks. The German southern strongholds of Kharkov, industrial city in the Ukraine, and Taganrog, on the Sea of Azov, were under point blank Red artillery fire.

Mozhaisk, 57 miles west of Moscow, the tip of the German central triangle based on Rzhev and Vyazma, also was under Red artillery bombardment as the white shrouded Siberian ski units faded west of Rzhev and Vyazma in a great pincers movement.

The blasting of Kharkov and Taganrog was an effort to hurl the Nazis back hundreds of miles to the next best defense line along the winding Dnieper river.

Advance by Night.

Soviet accounts said fresh Siberian troops, aided by local guerrilla bands, were making forced marches by night thru snow covered forests to fall upon German outposts and steadily turn the central front.

These troops trail ski-mounted cannon, mine throwers, and supplies, and are only part of a great reservoir of troops trained for just what they have been doing—"encircling and annihilating"—the Russians said.

The announced capture of Selizharovo, 50 miles northwest of Rzhev, in the Valdai foothills, put the Russians on a road leading 200 miles west to the Latvian border, while the southern arm of this pincers was working toward Smolensk from the Kirov area south of Rzhev.

Claim 1,300 Reds Slain.

The German high command declared 1,300 Russians had been killed Tuesday in a counterattack by a German infantry battalion, but did not name the "important locality" which it said was captured.

The Nazis also said a Russian transport was sunk and two other ships damaged in air attacks near Theodosia and Kerch, the eastern Crimean ports where the Russians steadily landed more troops for the reconquest of that peninsula.

FREE FRENCH JOIN BRITISH ATTACK ON HELLFIRE PASS

Roll Up Tanks in Siege of Holdout Fort.

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 16 (AP).—Frenchmen were pitted against Germans tonight for the first time since the armistice of June, 1940, as "Free French" columns of tanks and armored cars rolled up to reënforce the British 8th army's siege of the big and staunchly fortified German-Italian position in Halfaya [Hellfire] pass.

Their presence presaged a big offensive to clean out the dangerous threat to the main Libyan supply lines of the British army, advanced forces of which are operating more than 300 miles to the west.

Push Toward Coast.

Because there are 7,000 axis troops in the high and rocky pass at Halfaya, near the Egyptian border, British supplies have had to make a slow, 100 mile detour. If this garrison can be mopped up, British supply lines can be shortened and many troops released to advance on Tripoli.

The British forward columns tonight were pushing slowly along the heavily mined lower coast of the Gulf of Sirte, halfway between Halfaya and Tripoli, despite stiff opposition from reënforced German dive bomber and fighter units and rearguard stands by the main axis desert force.

Stress Axis Air Activity.

The British communique again stressed the considerable axis air activity which suddenly has developed against these forward troops, but it said adequate British fighter protection kept losses at a minimum.

An RAF communique, reporting offensive operations yesterday from "Free French" bombings of Halfaya to another British attack on Tripoli, said no British planes were lost.

A German dive bomber was shot down off Tobruk and another enemy plane crashed into the sea off Bengazi.

[The German communique disclosed that German transport planes were being used again to ferry axis personnel across the Mediterranean to North Africa. It claimed these planes shot down two British attackers.]

Bomb Malta 7 Times.

VALLETTA, Malta, Jan. 16 (AP).—German planes struck seven times again today in Malta, probably the most raided spot on the earth. The few bombs which hit the island were said to have caused slight civilian damage and few casualties.

British Toss Two Captured Russian Guns in Metal Pot

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Two Russian guns captured at Sevastopol in 1855 have been removed from Royal Victoria park at Bath, where they have stood for 85 years, and tossed into the munitions melting pot. It is estimated that the guns will yield nine tons of metal in the government's scrap iron. It is hoped to raise 40,000 tons of metal a week for war factories.

W-G-N THEATER OF AIR PRESENTS 'FAUST' TONIGHT

Col. McCormick to Speak on Program.

A streamlined version of the opera, "Faust," is to be presented on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 8 to 9 o'clock tonight. Marion Claire and Frederick Jagel, Metropolitan and Chicago opera tenor, will sing the starring rôles.

Muriel Bremmer.

An address by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be heard as part of the program.

English Will Be Used.

Miss Claire, who has sung the rôle of Marguerite in three foreign languages in three countries, will be singing it in English for the first time tonight.

Miss Claire first sang the rôle in Italian with the Turandot Opera company in Venice; then in German in Berlin, and finally in French at Monte Carlo.

Henry Weber, who will conduct the W-G-N orchestra, is also familiar with "Faust," having conducted it for the Chicago Opera company as well as on one of the early Theater of the Air programs.

Jagel in Title Rôle.

Jagel will sing the title rôle, with Bruce Foote and Win Stracke singing supporting rôles.

Bret Morrison and Betty Lou Gerson will take the dramatic leads. Others in the dramatic cast will be Bob Jellison, Marvin Mueller, Sidney Breese, Carl Weber, Muriel Bremmer, Marilou Neumayer, and Rita Ascot. J. T. Ainley will be the producer and Robert Trendler the choral director.

LAKE COUNTY BAR ASKS OUSTER OF WAUKEGAN MAN

The Lake County Bar association yesterday forwarded to the Illinois State Bar association a request that steps be taken before the Illinois Supreme court to disbar J. A. Miller, a Waukegan attorney.

Judge Ralph J. Dady of the Lake county Circuit court called attention to Miller's methods of practice on Jan. 2. He said that a witness in a case in his court had told him Miller advised him to testify falsely. The judge placed the investigation in the hands of the county bar, which is headed by Bernard Juron.

Miller is 48 years old and lives at 721 North Sheridan road, Waukegan. He has been a trial lawyer for 28 years. He was overcome by gas fumes in the garage behind his home on Jan. 1, but has recovered.

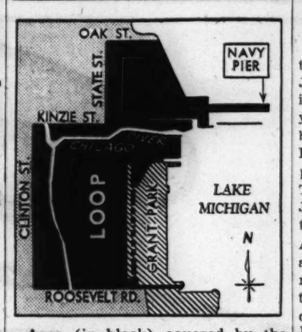
Defense Zone



Area (in black) covered by the newly created loop civilian defense district.

Expansion of the loop civilian defense area to include large buildings, hotels, and railway terminals in nearby districts was announced yesterday by Walter Roy, chief liaison officer for the Chicago commission on civilian defense. The new boundaries will be Oak street on the north, thence south on State street to Kinzie street, west to Clinton street, south to Roosevelt road, and east to Lake Michigan.

Among the structures thus incorporated into the area for defense purposes will be the Merchandise Mart, the large hotels on Michigan avenue, and the railroad terminals to the west of the loop. Earle Schultz is chief of this territory division under the defense setup.

Schultz said a committee has been appointed to direct precautionary steps.

Four Chicagoan Officers Promoted to Colonelcies

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 [Special].—Four army officers from Chicago were raised to the rank of colonel today by President Roosevelt, who sent the nominations to the senate for confirmation. They are Maj. Arthur Ignatius Ennis and Lieut. Cols. Mar Frank Schneider, Harold Webster Beaton, and Charles Wesley Sullivan. A total of 113 lieutenant colonels and 53 majors who held that rank temporarily were recommended for colonelcies.

AFFIRM PRISON TERM FOR DRAFT BOARD DOCTOR

The Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday upheld a decision by Federal Judge William J. Campbell sentencing Dr. J. P. Gardzielewski to two years in prison for accepting a $35 bribe from Walter Kukovec, a draftee. Dr. Gardzielewski was the examining physician for draft board No. 110. The draft board chairman, Attorney Joseph W. Nosek, was sentenced to three years on the same charge last August but did not appeal. Kukovec, after being offered deferment for money, coöperated with federal authorities to expose the bribbery. The decision was written by Judge William M. Sparks, Judge Sherman Minton concurring. Judge J. Earl Major dissented.

COUNTY BUDGET SURVEY GROUP TO BE DISSOLVED

The Cook county board yesterday voted to dissolve the county efficiency survey committee which has completed its proposals for 1942 budget economies in 25 departments. The survey group, headed by Lee J. Howard, county auditor, has recommended the dropping of at least 293 jobs at an annual saving of $577,000. Howard said the survey staff, which worked under the direction of the Civic federation, will continue its studies this year. The county board will consider the committee's suggestions next week at its budget hearings.

131 GET PERMITS HERE FOR TIRES, TUBES IN 10 DAYS

Certificates Approved for 276 Casings.

Since tire rationing has been in effect in Chicago the eight boards located in various parts of the city have granted 131 certificates permitting purchase of 72 passenger car tires, 54 passenger car tubes, 204 truck tires, and 117 truck tubes.

Of the 72 passenger car tires permitted, 39 have been granted to 28 physicians; three nurses obtained one each. Five of the passenger car tires allowed were obsolete types, as were a number of the truck tires.

Those eligible to buy tires under the rationing order include physicians, nurses, ambulance operators, operators of necessary government vehicles, police and fire equipment, operators of buses carrying more than 10 passengers, public utilities, and operators of farming and mining equipment.

GUY RICHARDSON GOES TO CAPITAL JOB TOMORROW

Guy A. Richardson, newly appointed national head of the division of local transportation, will leave tomorrow for Washington, D. C., where he will start his duties on Monday.

Richardson was operating head of the Chicago Surface Lines for 18 years prior to his resignation a year ago. He was named to the federal transportation job by Joseph B. Eastman, who last month was made director of the Office of Defense Transportation in an executive order by President Roosevelt.

Prior to his interview with Eastman early this week, Richardson had not been in Washington since 1933, when he attended conferences there in connection with the NRA. Richardson will retain his residence at 145 Melrose avenue, Kenilworth.

Laura Ingalls Denies Guilt on German Agent Charge

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—Laura Ingalls, woman flyer, pleaded innocent today in federal district court to an indictment charging her with failing to register as a paid agent of Germany. Judge James W. Morris set Feb. 9 for the trial and Miss Ingalls was granted continued liberty under $7,500 bond.

Censor Many Radio Programs; Stations Here Quick to Comply

Fear Use of Code

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—Regulations designed to keep enemy spies from transmitting information to lurking submarines or secret listening posts for relay to the axis high commands thru request, quiz, and impromptu interview programs were issued today by the office of censorship.

Radio stations were called upon to ban or rigidly supervise requests for musical selections, especially those asking for fulfillment at a specified time. There is to be almost no broadcasting of lost and found advertisements or announcements of massmeetings. Audience participation quiz programs, man in the street interviews, especially at airports and train terminals, and interviews of the general public are to be handled with caution.

Axis agents might employ such programs as vehicles to communicate code messages to their headquarters; to issue instructions to saboteurs, or to send information to unauthorized radio stations and submarines for relay to Rome, Berlin, or Tokio, it was said.

Military Information.

The radio regulations were issued by Director of Censorship Byron Price and J. H. Ryan, assistant director for radio.

In relation to keeping military information from the enemy, the regulations followed the code promulgated for newspapers in regard to weather reports, troop movements, ship movements, plane operations, fortifications, production, casualty lists, and the like.

In addition, the radio industry was warned that, because radio stations can be heard abroad, they should not give out certain information which is available to newspapers because of their more local character. The government is able to keep news published in the press from going out of the country by exercising censorship over mails and cables.

The regulations cautioned radio stations to keep careful records of foreign language broadcasts, and to guard against any deviation from script.

Broadcasters were asked to exercise restraint in the handling of news which might be damaging and to avoid "dramatic programs which attempt to portray the horrors of combat," and "sound effects which might be taken for raid alarms."

Digest of Restrictions.

With regard to programs which radio was asked to ban or supervise the regulations provide:

REQUEST PROGRAMS—Accept no telephoned or telegraphed requests for musical selections. Hold mail requests for a specified time, and guard against honoring any given request at a specified time.

QUIZ PROGRAMS — Discontinue audience-participation type quiz programs originating from remote points and those from small groups wherein no arrangement exists for investigating background of participants.

FORUMS AND INTERVIEWS—Conduct all forums and interviews with caution, especially types of forums where comments are sought from the audience.

COMMENTARIES AND DESCRIPTIONS—Special events reporters are advised to avoid special reference to locations and structures in on the spot broadcasts after air raids or enemy offensive action which might be used by the enemy in planning an attack.

Act on New Rules

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Shortly after radio broadcast regulations were announced yesterday in Washington the management of W-G-N took steps to comply promptly with the new code of censorship. Likewise, other Chicago stations announced plans for conforming with the new rules.

Although it was announced in Washington that terms of the code would be made effective Feb. 1, the W-G-N management said it would comply with the regulations as soon as program adjustments can be made.

In coöperation with their sponsors W-G-N at once discontinued two daily interview programs—Radio's Voice and Chicago at Night—aired from the Chicago theater lobby. A musical program, Rhythm Off the Record, has been substituted in their places.

Another series that will be affected is the Marriage License Bureau interviews conducted by Quin Ryan three times weekly over W-G-N. Possible changes that may make the program acceptable are being considered.

Apply Rules at Once.

Ralph Atlass, president of WJJD and WIND, announced that the rules would be applied to these stations at once. The interview program, What's Your Opinion? he said, had been canceled after conferring with the sponsor. In accordance with the new code, WIND henceforth will refuse any telegrams for request recordings on its midnight to 4 a. m. Night Watch program.

"No attempts will be made," he said, "to circumvent or interpret liberally the censorship rules."

H. Leslie Atlass, his brother, chief executive of WBBM, stated that pending study of the code no decision would be made as to the fate of the interview and remotely picked up quiz programs.

These might be recorded, he suggested, a month in advance and then put on in such order that the persons appearing on them would not know when to expect them. Thus, he suggested, they could be of no value to spies or saboteurs. Terms of the code as revealed in part yesterday, however, indicated that recorded interview programs would be unacceptable.

Some May Be Revamped.

Local broadcasters and the networks appeared to be little worried over losing studio quiz programs. In most cases it was felt that broadcasters could make them acceptable by "investigating the background of participants."

The background of Gerard Darrow, bright young Quiz Kid, or Franklin P. Adams of Information Please, after all, is pretty well known. And even on such broadcasts as W-G-N's Shoot the Works, Kay Kyser's College, or Bob Hawk's How Am I Doin' the participation of the public can be controlled, it was pointed out.

The National Broadcasting company announced that none of its quiz programs would need to be dropped to comply with the code. Announcers have been asked to veer from all subjects held taboo by the censor, it was stated. It continued that for some time quiz shows have been monitored with extra care at origination points and that orders had been given for immediate cuts to be made into any program if "ad lib" participants made any objectionable statements.

Meanwhile, leaders of the broadcasting industry, banded together as the Radio Co-ordinating committee, met here yesterday to consider how best to boost the war effort.

SENATOR CALLS FOR INQUIRY ON RUBBER SUPPLY

Price Chief Warns of Long Rationing.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—Sen. Sheridan Downey, [D., Cal.] introduced a resolution today to create a senate committee of five to investigate domestic rubber supplies and the development of rubber substitutes. The committee also would make an inventory of existing rubber stocks and would survey military and civilian rubber requirements.

J. Penfield Seiberling, president of an Akron [O.] rubber company, said yesterday that America has a two year supply of rubber and charged that the alphabetical administrative agencies were bungling its distribution in the tire rationing program. He urged an inquiry.

Scarcely Begun, Says Henderson.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson testified before a house committee today that the effects of restriction on the sale of tires and tubes "has scarcely been felt yet."

"We are almost done with manufacturing tires for civilian use," Henderson said. "We must allocate our stocks over a long period—and that period extends until our military arms are successful."

A minor relaxation in regulations to permit sales of six and eight ply tires in all popular passenger car and light truck sizes has been authorized.

Must Prove Necessity.

Previously only four ply tires could be obtained. Under the new ruling, "eligible" operators may purchase the six or eight ply grade provided they prove to their rationing boards that the four ply tire will not serve their needs.

An additional amendment to the rationing order placed full rationing restrictions on truck tires for vehicles 10 years old or more.

Henderson said only 9 million new tires are available for the duration of the war, barring unforeseen developments.

35 Million Used Normally.

America normally consumes 35 million tires a year. Possible sources of additional tires include synthetic rubber in two years or reopening of western Pacific sources for imports.

"The mail bags are full of pleas," Henderson said, "for relaxation of the tire restrictions for special groups—groceries, social workers, defense workers, farmers, milk companies, salesmen, and government officials. The answer is that there just aren't enough tires to go around."

Henderson appeared before the District of Columbia committee to oppose a proposal to permit the purchase of new tires for taxicabs in the district.

SALTIEL SEEKS RE-ELECTION TO ILLINOIS HOUSE

State Representative Edward P. Saltiel, north side Republican mentioned as a possible candidate for the state senate from the 31st senatorial district, announced yesterday that he would seek reëlection to the house. Saltiel said he had received indorsements for the senate from G. O. P. ward committeemen in his district, but that he preferred to try again for the house where he has the seniority which comes with four terms of service.

Emerson C. Whitney, Republican committeeman of the 48th ward, said yesterday he had been promised the support of all the committeemen and would make the senate race. Democratic leaders, in casting about for a successor to Sen. Harold G. Ward, elected to the Superior court last Nov. 4, are said to be looking favorably on Assistant Corporation Counsel Milton Smith, former assistant state's attorney during the régime of Robert E. Crowe, Republican.

Smith is expected to receive Democratic support for the senatorial nomination.

ROADS EXPECTING HEAVY INCREASE IN TRAIN TRAVEL

Steeper Rise Predicted as Tires Wear Out.

Travel by train is expected to increase substantially as wartime restrictions on the automobile take hold with greater effect, it was said yesterday in Chicago railroad circles. As tires and cars wear out the shift to trains is expected to grow more pronounced.

Meantime, war effects on travel applicable to the Chicago area cover the following points:

1. WINTER RESORT TRAVEL—Florida travel sharply lower; California, giving evidence of improving after earlier declines just after war was declared; Arizona and New Mexico, about even with last year.

2. COMMERCIAL AND GOVERNMENT TRAVEL—Growing in importance.

3. CHICAGO SUBURBAN TRAVEL—Increased somewhat, but large gains expected later.

4. WINTER AUTOMOBILE TRAVEL—Down, particularly to such places as Mexico and California, but heaviest normal period yet to come.

Travel Gains After Slump.

Immediately after the Japanese blasted at Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7 travel to winter resorts in Florida and California declined sharply. The slump in Florida business was so heavy that three winter season trains running between Chicago and Florida—the Dixiana, Florida, and Florida Arrow—have been discontinued. A number of New York trains also were dropped. Roads serving California report that following the immediate sharp decline there has been a steady pickup. It was said that if the rate of increase continues by the end of the month travel to California will equal the 1941 volume.

Free of blackouts and war alarms, the resorts of Arizona and New Mexico are reported to have been attracting about as many winter visitors as a year ago. One traffic executive of a road serving Denver and the Twin Cities said that Florida travel from these two areas has held up well.

Rail travel to Mexico has dropped substantially. It was said this was because people "were hesitant about traveling to a foreign country."

Drummers Turn to Railroads.

Prospects for sharply increased commercial travel are indicated by the interest large companies are showing in the railroads as a substitute for automobiles. One large Chicago company using about 3,000 automobiles for its sales force has advised the salesmen to use trains where possible, to double up and to reduce the number of calls.

Hugh Siddall, chairman of the Western Passenger association, said the railroads are urging the use of rail-auto service, with salesmen traveling by railroad for the long hauls and using rented automobiles for use out of terminals.

Chicago's suburban roads report moderate gains in passenger traffic. The greater part has resulted from improvement in employment and some of the recent gains were attributable to cold weather. Altho the downward trend in use of suburban service in recent years as a result of the automobile has caused equipment purchases to lag, the roads said they are able to carry substantially more passengers.

I. C. Can Double Volume.

The Illinois Central has been carrying about 118,000 passengers a day, against its peak day of 203,000 in 1933, when the American Legion held its parade. With some revisions in schedules the I. C. said it could carry about twice as many passengers as now. The North Western is said to be planning to install bicycle racks at some of its stations for suburbanites who plan to give up the family car in traveling from home to station and back.

The Chicago Motor club reported that inquiries for auto touring routes have not been as heavy as last year, but the heavy winter travel season is just commencing. It was said that some motorists may be expected to park the car this year and take a train.

THE IDEAL ORGANIZATION FOR WAR.

The Truman committee has called attention to the inefficiencies of the governmental organization for war. The committee found confusion, divided responsibility, and "the old army game of buck-passing." The result is that the army and navy lack essential equipment and the incompetent and dishonest men who are responsible for the failure are not being rooted out.

That these evils exist will not be doubted by any one who has visited Washington in recent months. The excuse which has been offered by the administration's apologists is that an organization had to be improvised and that a good deal of muddling was therefore inescapable. In time, they say, a streamlined organization will be perfected.

To say that is to overlook the fact that our traditional governmental system does provide an ideally streamlined executive department. In theory the members of the cabinet are the President's specialized administrative assistants. There is no confusion of function or overlapping of authority. In fact, the rôle of the secretaries is of a very different nature and has been for many generations.

Thus the primary concern of the secretary of agriculture is not to administer laws with respect to agriculture but to keep the farm vote in line. The farm bloc, knowing this, wants him to fix farm prices in the belief that the President would not lightly disregard his recommendations for fear of political repercussions. The primary concern of the secretary of labor is to keep organized labor on the reservation. [In this administration her function has been rather to hold the feminine vote.] The secretary of the interior is to perform a similar service with relation to the western vote. The postmaster general used to be and in a measure still is the chief patronage dispenser. Much of the attention of the secretary of war has been given to rivers and harbors and similar pork barrel concerns. The secretary of the navy has been expected to spend his appropriations in the port cities with an eye to catching votes. The rôle of the secretary of commerce is to keep business men contented. And so on.

It is precisely because these functionaries are for the most part politicians specializing in one or another bloc of votes and administrators only incidentally that most of the existing difficulties in organizing our war effort have arisen. The cry has gone up for what is called a streamlined administration, without confusion of function and with a clear placing of responsibility. There is no doubt that such an organization, if properly staffed, would be far more efficient than the confusion of OPM, SPAB, OEM, and all the rest of them which have been getting in one another's way; but there is no doubt, either, that the streamlined organization is precisely the one contemplated in our governmental system.

The proper organization of the war effort can be achieved the moment the President appoints a secretary of war big enough for his job and a secretary of the navy big enough for his. There is confusion today because the President can hardly be unaware that the men upon whom he should be relying are unequal to their responsibilities. They owe their positions not to their competence as administrators but to the circumstance that they were prowar Republicans a year and a half ago. Because of their deficiencies revealed at Pearl Harbor and in the inadequate arming of Gen. MacArthur's forces in the Philippines, a vast confusion of offices, boards, and committees with vague spheres of activity and uncertain responsibilities has had to be created.

Some modification of the familiar organization of the executive departments may be required in the emergency, but the changes need be only in detail. In time of war the army and navy are rivals for scarce materials and factory facilities. The problem can be met either by placing both the war and navy departments [and perhaps a new department of aviation] under a secretary of defense who himself will be responsible for procurement; or by requiring all requests for supplies from the war and navy departments to be handled by an officer like Donald Nelson, who will act as purchasing agent for all the armed services.

The administration has been calling for sacrifices, but has made mighty few itself. The first long step toward winning the war will be taken when Mr. Roosevelt sacrifices to the common cause the incompetents in his cabinet and replaces them with men equal to their responsibilities.

YOUNG FARM HANDS.

The Winnebago county agricultural war board's plan to recruit high school students to do summer work on farms should be explored by the Chicago board of education and the state council of defense. In Winnebago county classes will end May 1 so that the boys and girls may assist in raising the bumper crops called for by the department of agriculture. The students will learn the rudiments thru 10 demonstrations and two field trips. Modern farm equipment and proper supervision, it is said, will enable inexperienced help to do a man sized job.

There is a possibility that a shortage of agricultural labor may develop, now that production schedules have been greatly expanded, farmers are being called into the armed services, and high industrial wages are competing with agriculture for the labor supply. Whether or not this happens, students and farmers could cooperate in a useful war effort, not only increasing farm production but building up the health of the youngsters.

There are 131,000 high school students in Chicago. If additional help is needed on Illinois farms, these youngsters might supply it. Many of them would be delighted with the chance to escape from the city, engage in healthful exercise, and earn some money.

This plan would enable the young people to feel that they were doing something useful for their country while strengthening their own bodies. If a program can be worked out, it is advisable to plan some advance training. Demonstrations can easily be arranged in school auditoriums, and there is a sufficient number of farms close to Chicago so that field instruction can be offered in early spring.

THE REAL SUBMARINE MENACE.

The torpedoing of two tankers just off Long Island was to be expected. It is only a repetition, in fact, of German tactics during the last war, when a fleet of five submarines crossed the ocean, sank several vessels, and laid some mines which sent an old cruiser to the bottom. That diversion did not distract the American navy from the fight in the eastern Atlantic which throttled the German submarine fleet, broke its blockade of Britain, and was one of the decisive factors in the victory.

There is no danger that, at the extreme range at which they must operate, German submarines can do serious damage to shipping off our Atlantic coast or that Japanese submarines can do serious damage off our Pacific coast. The only menace in the submarine campaigns is that civilians may become panicky and demand that naval strength be diverted from essential tasks elsewhere in order to give them an assurance of safety which would be overcostly at such a price. That is what the attacks are intended to accomplish. The German attack in the last war failed to accomplish it because the administration refused to be diverted from essential operations, and it is to be hoped that it will turn a deaf ear to any ill advised civilian pleas under present circumstances.

THE SAFETY FIRST BOYS.

Washington is full of young men whose gallantry—at cocktail parties—is unbounded. They are serving their country, or so they say. They are fearless at least in the sense that, being out of the zone of danger, they have nothing to fear. They are resolute and determined that their skins shall never be exposed to enemy bullets.

None of them has been heard to express a wish to share the perils and hardships of Gen. MacArthur's little army in the Philippines. The young heroes of Washington never mention the subject. To think even of the minor discomforts of a training camp gives these gallant, fearless, determined, and resolute young men the cold chills.

It is impossible to make an adequate appraisal of the services of these young men to their country and, accordingly, no attempt at such an appraisal will be made here. It must suffice to say that the lot of them ought to be swept out of Washington and into fighting units as rapidly as the thing can be done. It is just possible that the generals and admirals can manage to run the war without the help of a lot of slackers.

A start might well be made in rounding up the more discreet ones who leaped directly from Harvard into the diplomatic service. In time they might learn the manual of arms. With them should go the less canny boys who waited until the last moment to get into army or navy intelligence. There is a horde of other young officers in Washington and an overflow hanging around the night clubs of New York who are disgracing the uniform they wear. There is only one honorable post for a young man today and that is with fighting troops. The nearer the front, the greater the honor.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS AND MOSQUITOES.

Several of the Cook county suburbs southwest of Chicago had an epidemic of poliomyelitis, or infantile paralysis, last summer. Public health authorities did one of the most thoro jobs accomplished to date in tracing the source of infection. State, local, and federal health officials coöperated in this effort and out of their labors came a considerable body of data which should be of national value in the fight on the disease.

It happens that the towns which the epidemic struck are all located within the Des Plaines valley mosquito abatement district, a municipal body, tax supported, which deals with breeding spots of mosquitoes. In addition to the general medical investigation of the epidemic, J. Lyle Clarke, sanitary engineer of the mosquito abatement district, conducted a survey as to the prevalence of mosquitoes during and after the epidemic. Mr. Clarke's report on the subject goes into considerable detail as to the varieties and number of various mosquitoes present in the area. He reports:

"A fairly large brood of aedes vexans emerged from flood water pools and started biting on May 21. Annoyance rose to a peak on May 28 and subsided gradually during the next three weeks. As soon as the annoyance from the first brood had passed its peak another emerged and reached its height of annoyance on June 2. Biting subsided rapidly within the next two weeks, leaving few vexans after July 10. This date marks the cessation of poliomyelitis transmissions in the La Grange Park-La Grange area, as did the peak of May 21 mark the beginning of the epidemic."

Mr. Clarke's report makes no claim that the mosquitoes were carriers of the disease. However, it has been fairly well established that they are carriers of some forms of encephalitis, or sleeping sickness, and there has been some previous evidence that they might be transmitters of infantile paralysis. The coincidence between the dates of the epidemic and the dates of mosquito annoyance in the area, as noted by Mr. Clarke, points a way for further investigation of this problem.

A CHICAGO JUDGE REBUKES MISSOURI.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

It is an unusual procedure for a judge of one state to rebuke the lawmakers of another state for their neglect of duty. There is no doubt, however, that Superior Judge Joseph Sabath of Chicago was fully justified in what he said the other day.

A young woman asked for annulment of a marriage performed at that notorious marriage mill, Kahoka, Mo., after a drinking party. After hearing her sordid story, the judge said:

> It's a shame that the state of Missouri is the only one of our surrounding states that has failed to put thru a law prohibiting these gin marriages. The good work of Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, and Iowa has saved many a man and girl the troubles that accrue from one of these drunken marriages.

It's a shame, we agree, that Missouri is responsible for the unhappy consequences of hasty marriages by drunken persons and by persons infected with venereal disease. It's a shame that the legislature's defeat or strangling of repeated reform bills makes it possible for Kahoka's blatant fee grabbing and commercialism of the marriage rite to exist. It's a shame that Missouri deserves the vigorous condemnation of a judge in a neighboring state.

MR. PEPYS REVIEWS HIS WEEK.

17th Jan.—Went to see the show called "Pal Joey" this week, and if masters of ceremonies in night clubs begin to assault authors whenever found I will understand why. For the author of "Pal Joey" has not been kind to his central character, who is a master of ceremonies and café dancer, but has portrayed him as deserving the lowest terms for actors, according to the aged anecdote with which most people are familiar. After making a close study of American drama and fiction for years, I can think up a lot of low terms for authors, too, and if any master of ceremonies wants to know what they are, let him consult me, but not over the telephone because I do not wish to be arrested.

Have spent most of the week thinking about shortages and trying to deal with them. Discovered a shortage in my winter wardrobe, and made a long list of things to buy and went to a store to make a purchase. Behold, I found it filled with women, altho it was a men's store, and they were picking the goods over as if it were the day before Christmas, and the clerks were all a-jitter from overwork. I fled from the place in dudgeon, and am still unprepared for another cold snap.

Rubber bands, erasers, and paper clips are now on the shortage list, but I think I can bear such deprivations. My only need for rubber bands is to shoot one across the room occasionally, noping to pop some colleague on the cheek. Erasing words I have written is a waste of time, so I scratch them out with big black marks. Paper clips I will never miss except as emergency pipe cleaners.

There is, however, a serious shortage of bright and ingenious offerings from my contributors, who have lost their merriment since the war spread to this country. Indeed, I do not wonder at it, because present conditions are nothing to chuckle over, and whenever I am not busy I find myself brooding over the quickest way of settling the enemy's hash, such as an invention to touch off all the volcanoes in Japan at the same time.

SEA GULLS AT THE BRIDGE.

Lifting and drifting—swerving, swaying—
White wing, gray wing, skimming the sky,
Buoyed on the wind, and its will obeying,
Birdland's ballet
With circle and sally
And dally of pinions goes dancing by.

Veering and sheering—sweeping and swooping—
Weaving invisible mysteries of flight,
Leaving the rapt eye lost in their looping,
Over and under
With swirls of wonder
And plunder of reason they ravish sight.

Would we could brave, like these gallant bringers
Of airy poetry, life's grim ways!
Rise in all skies like these challenge-flingers—
Unwearied darers,
Unfearing farers,
And bearers of beauty thru all our days!

Lister Alwood.

Red Is for Valor.

It was late at night and cold, yet some perversity of mood was making him walk the distance to his home. Perhaps it was the weather itself that was responsible, evoking in him a keen sense of isolation; the thought of the strange, indifferent faces he would encounter on the street car turned his footsteps from the avenue down this deserted street.

But tonight nothing seemed to deny his sense of futility. The stars themselves, cold-bright in the path of sky between the rooftops, mocked him. He walked on, and at one of those intersections that appear unexpectedly around a corner he found himself in the midst of life again.

He began to think how like an indomitable old woman his city was. One with a great many responsibilities, who never slept but only napped now and then. She made no concessions to indifference or fear. Yet he wondered if sometimes she too did not have at least her moments of confusion and doubt. He saw her then making a gesture, perhaps a little ridiculous, in defiance of life.

At the street corner he stopped to buy a paper from an old woman. She wore a fringed shawl over her head and a leather coat. Beside her stand she had kindled a fire in a discarded oil drum. She was cheerful and conscientious, and when she handed him his change he saw that her nails were lacquered bright red. E. M. B.

THE HAPPY HIBERNATOR.

(A Brookfield Ballad.)

I sometimes think it isn't fair
That we can't imitate the bear,
Who sets his clock, each fall, to ring
Approximately half-past spring,
And then adjourns to cave or hole
To peacefully invite his soul
In winter slumber, sound and deep,
And only wakens from his sleep
When ice, and cold, and snow, and sleet
Are conquered by the summer's heat.
Since we have been denied by fate
Ability to hibernate,
Let's muffle all our icy woes
Lest we disturb his sweet repose.

CARE FOR COLDS AND AVOID CROUP.

COLDS are frequent these days and they are easily spread from one person to another. We must be alert, particularly in regard to their effects upon young children. A form of difficult breathing may appear which must be looked upon as a danger signal. It is really croup.

At first the symptoms point to a nasal infection. Within a day or two, however, slight hoarseness will be observed along toward evening. As a rule, the little one will go to sleep without fussing but may waken later with a sharp, tinny cough. When mother answers the alarm she may find the tot sitting up in bed struggling for breath.

A valuable remedy is moist air from a steam kettle. If the boiling water contains a bit of menthol, oil of eucalyptus, or benzoin compound—so much the better. A paper tube can convey the vapor to a temporary tent made with sheets. If improvement does not come within 15 to 20 minutes, the physician should be called.

In most instances, the episode passes within an hour. The patient will drop off to sleep, waking the following morning apparently well. All too often, however, huskiness will again manifest itself toward the close of day with a repetition of the experience some time during the night. Within two or three days, the trouble may disappear as rapidly as the "cold" subsides.

There is, however, a far more severe type in which the inflammation within the voice box has extended downward into the bronchi. The initial infection may be of long duration and barking may have persisted for several days. Around 1 a. m. the youngster may utter a peculiar, harsh, whistling noise as he tries to force air past an obstruction in the trachea. The face may be deeply congested, with the lips and nose bluish [cyanotic]. Swelling has narrowed the pathway to the lungs and thick, tenacious mucus has further plugged both the inlet and the outlet. If a rectal thermometer is used, the temperature will usually range between 100 and 101 degrees F.

Such a situation presents a real emergency. The victim may be able to swallow a small dose of medicine, and any harmless drug which will bring on vomiting [such as sirup of ipecac] may be administered. At the same time, the family doctor should be notified and the steam device started. In extreme cases, it may be necessary to open the trachea surgically and insert a breathing tube. A mixture of helium and oxygen should be obtained, if possible, as this gas can penetrate tiny spaces and thus supply the blood with vital air.

But how does this malady differ from a nasal infection? Probably not at all. It is merely an extension into the bronchial tubes of the same organisms which have been disporting themselves in the upper airways.

Nowadays we protect our children against diphtheria, by means of toxoid. But should the precaution be neglected, this disease should be thought of, as it presents practically the same symptoms. As a rule, however, the garden variety of cold germs are responsible. Thus early attention to a running nose or a cough may forestall one of these paroxysms.

OBLIVION.

Mrs. M. writes: I always had a good memory before I was married two years ago. My husband is annoyed because of my forgetfulness. Is there an explanation of this disturbance?

REPLY.

Perhaps your great happiness has crowded out incidental occurrences. It is like gazing at a powerful light which will produce temporary blindness. As Byron said about love: "'Tis woman's whole existence." Anyway, wives are not calculating machines. For important happenings use a pencil and pad.

CAMOUFLAGE.

J. L. L. writes: Is it true that those who are color blind can detect camouflaged objects more readily than those with normal vision?

REPLY.

It may well be. To them, everything appears gray. They do not need to depend upon contrasting shades.

CALL FOR SACRIFICES.

Downers, Grove, Ill., Jan. 15.—Our country is at war, a war our government tells us that we must make every sacrifice to win; pay extremely high taxes, put our savings into defense bonds and stamps, do without many luxuries and essentials, forget political differences and roll up our sleeves and start to work, to fight and to win. All of which is O. K. and accepted readily by every American except the administration in Washington.

Why can't the political-minded administration join American citizens in sacrifice and throw out of office such political appointees as Knox, Stimson, Perkins, Hopkins, and Henderson. There are still 20 million voters who have no confidence in them. These places should be filled with men of proven ability, experience and courage in their respective departments, who will start fighting a shooting war in the Pacific and do something toward getting adequate reënforcements to the small forces which the present "powers that be" planted there and have seemingly forgotten.

The administration should sacrifice New Dealism for the duration. M. W. J.

ONE BILLION DOLLARS.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—I am a student at one of our Chicago colleges. I have been reading in your paper about the billions and billions of dollars that will have to be spent to finance the war.

Trying to visualize the meaning of 1 billion dollars, I have tried to calculate the number of times one billion dollar bills would go around the earth at the equator. This number of bills would go around the world 5.1 times if the bills were placed on the width. If placed on the length they would extend 12.44 times around the equator.

No loyal American citizen would spare any sacrifice to add to these billions that will go to smash the Japs, but how many of us are very happy about the billions that are being spent by the useless bureaus in Washington?

KAY FOGARTY.

KNITTING INSTRUCTION.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—In re Mrs. Curran's letter, saying that she was eager to do war work but could not get instruction in knitting and had nowhere to leave her baby, the Chicago park district has artcraft instructors in its neighborhood fieldhouses who will be more than glad to help with knitting. These groups meet from 2 until 3:30 p. m., and again between 7 and 10 in the evening.

If the afternoon is better for you, then you may take your baby with you. In most fieldhouses there are toy centers where small children may play under supervision. However, the evening might be better for you, because you may be able to leave your baby at home with your husband.

ALICE BEYER,
Artcraft Supervisor, Chicago Park District.

TINY LINKS IN THE CHAIN OF VICTORY.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—"Knitting and crocheting will not win the war. . . . Dancing with sailors won't win, nor the wearing of uniforms by homely women. . . . Nor will having newspaper pictures taken showing the town's exhibitionists filling cookie jars. Nothing will win except production. . . ." wrote C. M. B., in the Voice of the People today.

I should like to assure C. M. B. that he is not the only person aware of these facts. I also should like to assure him that production on a mammoth scale is what every American woman who is doing the small things C. M. B. criticizes wants above all else. But not all can work in factories that are producing actual war materials. The small tasks C. M. B. scorns are links, tiny ones, but links nevertheless, in the great chain that this nation is welding to be used in the defense of our land and our liberty.

The enthusiastic willingness of hundreds of thousands of women to do whatever is at hand, whether it be baking or knitting, is praiseworthy and encouraging, it seems to me. These same women will be ready to do whatever their government requires of them later, whether it be making shells or children's garments, dancing with sailors and soldiers or binding their wounds. Women will do their share toward victory. I. M.

FROM AMERICAN SLOVAKS.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—With our other fellow citizens of the United States, we of Slovak parentage stand firmly behind our President's leadership, striving with all our might and main, with fortune and will, to help achieve our country's victory over Nazi and Japanese barbarism. Be assured that we are determined to protect our American homeland with our heart's blood even—if need be—against the slaves of Hitler's Slovak Quislings.

MICHAEL BENOVSKY, President,
JONN LICHNER, Secretary,

JAPANESE SPIDER WEB.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—Your editorial this morning on "Our Principal Enemy" was very apt. Instead of going into many wild, general schemes to protect citizens in our midwestern states from bombing, it might be more effective to meet the Japs now, where they are. Perhaps we should use our navy and our airplanes. The Japs have spread like a spider's web all over the western Pacific, and apparently we must not try our strength to break one strand in that web.

HYPHENATED AMERICANS.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—As an American of Irish descent, I wish to protest against certain busybody organizations designating themselves as Irish-American, German-American, Swedish-American, or other hyphenations which advocate division of allegiance between this country and other countries and set themselves up as spokesmen for foreign nations.

It is well known that political groups select candidates who will carry the so-called foreign vote, so many politicians are fostering this hyphenated doctrine selfishly. It is a law of science and a law laid down in scripture that two bodies cannot occupy the same place at the same time and, cannot serve two masters. The hyphen to me is a swastika turned inside out.

OLD WAR MATERIAL FOR NEW.

Maywood, Ill., Jan. 12.—There is a shortage of scrap iron and scrap steel, but in villages and cities thruout America in the public squares and parks stand captured cannon and other trophies of war. They are not decorative. There are also piles of old cannon balls, which are not educational. I suggest that these be remelted for victory, and that as soon as this war is won the villages and towns receive German and Japanese cannon of later vintage. C. J. EWING.

BUILDING EXITS.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I live on the third floor of a three flat building. The owners live on the first and second floors. They have lights on the stairs and entry but they don't turn them on. I would like to know if there isn't a law compelling them to light the hall and vestibule. The stairs are long and winding and extremely dangerous in the dark. If there is a law what can I do to see that it is enforced? D. B.

Section 66-1 of the city code requires that the "means of exit in every existing building shall be provided with normal illumination." This wording is broad enough to cover even private residences that are not wired for electric lighting. Since the context deals with building construction, the wording might be construed as limited to the installation of the equipment, or at any rate, to leave subsequent operation of the lights to a "rule of reason" test. There is no more specific ordinance fixing definite hours during which the lights must be on.

Since the form of the verb is passive, it does not indicate whether the duty is placed on the landlord or the tenant, but [as in the case of screens, sec. 96-11] it will probably be construed against the landlord. Except for these doubtful provisions of the city code, a landlord is under no general legal obligation to maintain hall or stairway lights. 36 C. J. 214.

HEIL RUMINATES ABOUT WATER AND VISITS TO F. D. R.

Hints Milwaukee Mayor's Activities Displease.

BY THORNTON SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 16.—It kind of sounds to Gov. Heil as if the tail was trying to wag the dog, all this talk there has been in the local papers about Mayor Carl Zeidler having a 40 minute conference with President Roosevelt, and Mayor Zeidler's single handed contest with Mayor Edward J. Kelley of Chicago in an argument on water diversion.

"Whose water is that?" the governor ruminated yesterday during a visit with the Eagles Businessmen's Luncheon club. "I thought maybe Wisconsin might have a little something to do with it."

The governor mentioned some of the things that were on his mind in his talk to the Eagles. He wasn't exactly critical of the mayor but he does not propose to forget that, after all, Milwaukee is part of Wisconsin.

Few Gallons Belong to State.

"The papers say the mayor scolded the mayor of Chicago about lowering the level of the lake thru diversion of water. It isn't Milwaukee water. It comes from Lake Michigan. A little of it belongs to the state," the governor said.

Gov. Heil continued in the tone of a father who has to admonish a too forward son. The governor is concerned with having Chicago people think highly of Wisconsin and come up here to spend their summers and their money.

"Now I've got to go to Chicago and talk with the city officials and the people about what good neighbors we are and how happy we will make them when they come to visit us. How can I do that when the mayor scolds Chicago people?"

Yes, They're Friendly.

There was no unfriendliness apparent toward the mayor in what the governor said. Zeidler and Gov. Heil always get along well, altho both are said to have eyes on a seat in the United States senate when the time seems ripe, and some time they may oppose each other for it.

Gov. Heil had a conference with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, too, at the time of the last inauguration for that matter.

"Forty minutes," the governor commented to the Eagles. "If the President had a 40 minute conference with all the mayors who come to Washington, he would have to add a couple of months to the year."

What of Kilbourn Avenue?

Gov. Heil also thinks the mayor leaves room for a misunderstanding when he is talking about Milwaukee's latest civic improvement, the widening of Kilbourn avenue. Milwaukee officials all are inclined a little to brag about the widening and the new paving that swings down in a gorgeous curve from the 10 million dollar courthouse and passes the Safety building and the Milwaukee auditorium.

"But you never hear city officials mention Heil or the state," the governor said. He explained that Milwaukee received $800,000 in 1940 from the state for its streets, and $750,000 last year for the completion of Kilbourn avenue, and that the state executive himself had something to do with it.

"That beautiful concrete pavement in front of the courthouse came from state funds, but you never hear city officials mention anybody but themselves," the governor observed.

A Plaque from Cudahy.

He pointed to the city of Cudahy as an example of municipal behavior. Cudahy has voted Progressive for years, the governor observed, but they didn't get Packard avenue, their main business street, paved.

"They had to wait for Heil," he added. "Now Packard avenue is paved. They are going to give me a plaque."

Cudahy did give the governor a plaque at a dinner by the Cudahy Kiwanis club at St. Frederick's church auditorium last night. It read: "To a governor who kept his promise to the people."

Mayor Zeidler smiled when he was told of the governor's observation. "That doesn't leave any room for further comment," he said.

POLICEMAN, LAID OFF, DEVELOPS ACTIVE REMORSE

Policeman Charles A. Benson, 34 years old, was actively remorseful yesterday after he learned that Commissioner Allman had suspended him and was preparing charges to be placed before the police trial board. The suspension was decreed on an allegation that Benson had terrorized the patrons of a tavern at 1901 Harrison street with a knife Wednesday night.

Here's the report on what Benson did: He went to his home at 3338 Walnut street, told his mother, Mrs. Lillian Benson, he had lost his job and upbraided her for hiding a pistol from him. At little later she heard him fall to the floor. Mrs. Benson called Dr. Edward Rategan of 4010 Madison street. When he arrived, Benson drove them both out with a kitchen knife.

Policemen were summoned. When they went into the house, they found that Benson had shot himself in the right side. He was still feeling powerful and there was a big wrestle before he was loaded into a patrol wagon and taken to County hospital, where he was bound up. A couple of hours later, after he had quieted down, he said: "I ought to lay off liquor. I never could handle it."

HOSPITAL PATIENT DIES IN FALL.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 16 [AP].—John Charles Dubois, 65 years old, of Salem, Ill., a retired engineer of the Missouri-Illinois railroad, fell to his death today from the fifth floor of the Missouri Pacific hospital, where he was a patient.

YOUNG WOMAN LEAPS TO DEATH FROM 22D FLOOR

While two persons rushed toward her in an effort to save her life, a young woman plunged late yesterday from a 22d story window of the Stevens hotel and was killed when her body struck a roof at the 5th floor level.

She was identified early today as Miss Eileen Flynn, 22 years old, of 640 South Euclid avenue, Oak Park. The clew to her identity was furnished by a letter written by an Oak Park Democratic leader recommending her for a place as teacher in the county schools. She had registered in the hotel on Thursday under an assumed name.

Mrs. Fern Delaplain, a nurse, and Eugene Humphrey, a house officer, went to the room after they received a report from a maid that the occupant was ill. Miss Flynn went out the window after they opened her door. She had written her family a letter saying they were in no way to blame for her act.

TWO COUPLES ON VISIT TO CHICAGO HOLDUP VICTIMS

Two couples, in Chicago to attend the American Institute of Interior Decorators, were robbed of $3,190 worth of furs, jewels, and cash last night at Pearson and Chestnut streets. They had just left the Casino club at 195 East Delaware street.

The four were accosted by three men who leaped from an auto, and, after the four were almost stripped, a fourth man piled out to help complete the job.

The victims were Miss Marjory Fiedler, 2009 North Prospect avenue, Milwaukee; Lyman Huszagh, 300 Park avenue, New York City, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. House, Sylvania road, Rochester, N. Y. All were stopping at the Drake hotel.

2 SLAYERS TAKE ELEVEN LIVES IN ONE COUNTY

One Admits Killing Four; Other Slew 6, Self.

Ellsworth, Wis., Jan. 16 [Special].—The serenity of this usually uneventful farming area was tumultuously disturbed tonight by two wholesale slayings that wiped out seven members of one Pierce county family and four of another in less than 24 hours.

James Simecek.

The killing of Mrs. Arthur Petan, 29, and her three children, whose slashed bodies were found yesterday afternoon in their flaming home eight miles east of here, was confessed late today by a neighboring farmer, James Simecek, 22, who said he was attracted by the farmwife.

Find Bodies of Seven.

About two hours later the bodies of the seven members of the family of Tom Siepel, a farmer and highway maintenance patrolman, were found shot to death in their home near the village of Plum City, only 12 miles east of the scene of the other tragedy. Investigators said Siepel apparently killed his wife and five children, then shot himself. A motive had not been learned.

The Petan slayings were solved by detectives from St. Paul, Minn., including Assistant Chief of Detectives Charles Tierney, who were called into the case by Pierce county authorities.

Had Visited Petan Home.

Simecek was suspected after Petan, who was cutting wood about a mile from home at the time of the tragedy, reported that the young neighbor had been at the Petan home yesterday forenoon. When Simecek was taken into custody last night police found a bloody shirt in the farm home where he lived with his mother and sister about three miles from the Petan place.

He calmly explained that his shirt was stained with calf's blood in performing a farm chore; he admitted he had driven past the Petan home in the afternoon about the time the killings were believed to have taken place but denied he had stopped, and impassively withstood hours of questioning.

Confesses to Detectives.

His confession finally was made to the St. Paul officers after they confronted him with a report that the blood on the shirt had been analyzed in St. Paul and had been found to be that of a human being. He then told the following story:

Carrying a revolver and a hunting knife, he stopped at the Petan home in the afternoon to talk to Mrs. Petan, explaining that he "liked her looks." He took the oldest of her three children, George, 10, to an attic room and struck him with the gun and then stabbed him.

The boy's screams brought his mother racing up the stairs. When she saw what had taken place she ran screaming downstairs to protect her other children, Sylvia, 3, and Neil, 6. Simecek followed her and shot her twice, then stabbed her and the children and cut the throats of all three. He then poured kerosene on the beds and started the fire that destroyed the four room house.

Motorist Sees Fire.

The burning house, a mile away from any other habitation and in a valley between hills that cut off the view from any neighbors, might not have been discovered in time to disclose the slayings had not a passing motorist sighted the smoke. He carried out the bodies of Mrs. Petan and the two younger children. The charred body of George was not recovered until several hours later.

District Attorney Theodore Waller said a warrant charging Simecek with first degree murder would be issued tomorrow. Meantime the killer was held on an open charge in the county jail. Examination has definitely established that Mrs. Petan had not been raped.

Find Bodies of Seven.

The bodies of Siepel, 32; his wife, Lucille, 28, and their five children, ranging in age from 9 years to 2 months, were found tonight by a neighbor, Eldon Gillis, who investigated when he was unable to contact any members of the family by telephone.

Siepel's body, with a .32 caliber revolver laying beside it, and that of the baby were found in the kitchen; the others were in beds upstairs. Investigators said the family was not known to have been in financial difficulties or to have had any serious domestic trouble.

Murder Witness

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Helen Prill, sister of dead woman in night club murder-suicide case, as she testified at the coroner's inquest.

A coroner's jury yesterday found that Mrs. Nancy La Motte Wassman, 39 years old, a divorcée, put a virulent poison in the champagne she and Clare S. McArdle, 50, were drinking two weeks ago in a near north side night club. The verdict was murder and suicide, committed while Mrs. Wassman was "in a despondent frame of mind."

McArdle, who lived with his wife and daughter in Clayton, Mo., a suburb of St. Louis, was vice president and sales manager of a cement company. Mrs. Wassman, with whom he had carried on a five year romance, lived at 1419 Hollywood avenue and was the owner of a beauty shop at 7301 Sheridan road.

Coroner A. L. Brodie personally conducted the inquest.

The poison had been carried by Mrs. Wassman in the powder compartment of her compact.

RULES SOLDIERS CANNOT BE TRIED IN CIVIL COURTS

Army Will Punish All Except Major Crimes.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 16 [Special].—Civil authorities have no right to punish men in the armed service, but must turn offenders over to military authorities for trial, William A. Platz, assistant attorney general, advised District Judge Harvey L. Neelen today.

Judge Neelen had asked for an opinion in the case of Conrad Schuemperli, private, in court here receptly while on furlough from Camp Polk, Louisiana. He was arrested for the theft of a camera and while held the police uncovered four traffic charges against him, made before he entered the army.

Rule Void in Major Crimes.

Platz said the state had an agreement with the military authorities that a soldier charged with such an offense as murder might be held to trial under civil law in the absence of emergencies.

"If the offense is less than a felony and involves property damage of less than $1,000, communication should be sent to the nearest provost marshal, and the accused soldier should be released to be tried by the military," the captain said.

"If the offense charged is a felony or there has been serious damage to persons or property, civil authorities may hold the accused until the military takes them into custody.

Rule in Serious Offenses.

In case of extremely serious offenses such as murder, the accused soldier may be held by civil authorities in the absence of an emergency. But the nearest provost marshal shall be notified so the soldier's absence will be explained.

"District attorneys may, in serious cases, keep charges pending after turning soldiers over for trial by court martial. Then if the district attorney is dissatisfied with the result of the court martial he may press the state charge after the soldier is dismissed from the armed forces."

Judge Neelen refused the petition of counsel for Schuemperli to dismiss charges for lack of jurisdiction. He asked for a further opinion from the federal district attorney's office.

GEN. M'CLOSKEY'S SON, AIR MAJOR, INDICTED ON LARCENY CHARGE

The grand jury yesterday returned an indictment before Chief Justice Robert J. Dunne of the Criminal court charging Maj. Monro MacCloskey, 35 years old, now on duty with the air corps in Washington, D. C., with the larceny of bonds valued at $25,000. MacCloskey is the son of Brig. Gen. Manus McCloskey, County hospital warden. Each spells his name differently.

The bonds were said to have been stolen from Wallace Clark, 41, son of the late Wallace G. Clark, former sanitary district trustee, who owned the bonds jointly with his mother, Maude, and his sister, Ruth. MacCloskey was manager of a building at 30 North Michigan avenue where Clark had offices.

Last August, after release from the Kankakee State hospital, where he was sent after a nervous breakdown, Clark, on whom suspicion had fallen, traced one of the bonds, according to Assistant State's Attorney William Crawford, and learned it has been sold by MacCloskey. Restitution was made by Gen. McCloskey on behalf of his son, Crawford said, and the other bonds were recovered. Crawford said MacCloskey had encouraged the idea that Clark was the thief.

Approve Land Furchase for Forest Preserve Use

Purchase of three tracts of land totaling 81 acres for the Cook county forest preserve district was authorized yesterday by the county board. The land, to cost $42,791, is east of Skokie road, just south of the Lake county line, in Northfield township. The board also approved the rental at $120 a month of an office in the Burnham building, 160 North La Salle street, for the Cook county defense council.

NUTS AND JOLTS — By Bill Holman

HOPE FOR MORE LAKE DIVERSION IS RAISED ANEW

Request to Be Studied as Health Measure.

Hopes that Chicago soon may get authority to withdraw from Lake Michigan enough fresh water to guard its health—and perhaps, incidentally, to increase the wartime sanitary district electric power output—were raised yesterday when Mayor Kelly announced that Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the United States public health service, has promised to make an immediate survey.

Mayor Kelly disclosed the surgeon general's promise to him on his return from Washington. He said Dr. Parran probably will investigate the lake diversion situation thru his facilities in Chicago. His report, the mayor said, will go to the secretary of war, who has the power to order an increase of the flow into the Chicago river and sanitary district canal.

Power Appeal a Handicap.

Mayor Kelly said officials of the City Club of Chicago had handicapped him and others in their attempts to obtain an increase in the flow from 1,500 cubic feet per second to 10,000 cubic feet, which is deemed needed. The club, he said, based its appeal on increasing the sanitary district power output.

"Our best chance," Kelly continued, "is on the question of health. That, after all, is the vital consideration. That is why I asked Dr. Parran to make his survey and he said he would."

The mayor also said Dr. Parran would have the power to order industries, particularly those at the south end of the lake which discharge much waste into the water, to construct cofferdams.

"In this way," he said, "we might be able to harness the industrial waste, keep it behind the cofferdams until it reached a consistency of sirup and then haul it away."

Recalls Hughes' Views.

Meantime, Chief Engineer W. H. Trinkaus of the sanitary district, and H. P. Ramey, his chief assistant, recalled that Charles Evans Hughes, former chief justice of the United States, on Dec. 17, 1929, recommended that Chicago should have whatever diversion is necessary until the 180 million dollar sewage disposal program of the city and sanitary district is completed.

Hughes, as a special master of the United States Supreme court, said, "After the completion of all the sewage treatment works . . . and in the absence of competent action by congress in relation to navigation . . . the diversion by the sanitary district of water from Lake Michigan should not exceed an annual average of 1,500 cubic feet per second in addition to domestic pumpage."

System Uncompleted.

"In other words," said Trinkaud, "Mr. Hughes recommended that we be allowed to have what water was necessary until after our entire sewage disposal is completed—which it is not yet."

Explaining present status of the program, Trinkaus said 168 million dollars have been spent on the program. There remains about two years of work, which can be done so soon as priorities on the materials are lifted. This work will cost 12 million dollars. The money is ready and contracts totaling $5,500,000 have been let.

"It would seem," said Trinkaus, "since priorities are operating against us—and we can't finish our program that the secretary of war would give Chicago an adequate supply of water from the lake for the sake of the health of the whole metropolitan area.

Blame Canadian Interests.

The engineers also charged that the battles thru which the city and sanitary district have gone for years originally were started by propaganda spread by power interests, which are diverting much greater quantities of water from the Great Lakes for private money making reasons than Chicago ever has used or sought for health's sake.

Under the boundary waters treaty of 1909, between the United States and Canada, power companies around Niagara Falls, on the American and Canadian sides, received rights to divert water from the lakes. American interests obtained 20,000 cubic feet per second; Canadian companies, 36,000 feet per second.

"During the World war the Hydro-electric Power company of Ontario built a new plant at Queenston, and began taking 7,500 cubic feet per second in excess of the 36,000 cubic feet," Trinkaus said. "We discovered it, a resolution was passed and sent to Congress but it was pigeonholed and never heard of again.

Chicago Target of Attack.

"It was about this same time that the blast of publicity directed against Chicago and her diversion of 10,000 cubic feet per second began. Some of it was released from Milwaukee. It never has let up and still continues mysteriously from time to time."

Trinkaus said that in addition to the allowed 56,000 cubic feet per second by American and Canadian power interests at Niagara Falls, power companies on both sides of the border along the St. Mary's river between Lake Huron and Lake Superior, are withdrawing for generation of electricity which they sell, 55,000 cubic feet per second.

Ex-Convict Gets Sentence of Death for Slaying Boy

Morrison, Ill., Jan. 16 (AP).—Leo Jordan, 23 years old, an Iowa ex-convict who pleaded guilty of murdering Warren Snyder, 5, of Fulton, was sentenced today to be electrocuted March 14. Circuit Judge A. J. Scheineman ordered the death penalty after deliberating since Jan. 5, when Jordan changed his plea from innocent to guilty. Jordan was taken to the penitentiary in Joliet.

Divorced

FRANCES GIFFORD.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 16 (AP).—Movie Actress Frances Gifford obtained a divorce today from Actor James H. Dunn, formerly of the films. She testified he used liquor to excess, was moody and unsociable and stayed away from home days at a time. The couple was married on Christmas day, 1937, and separated Aug. 23, 1940, Miss Gifford's complaint said.

MAYOR RETURNS, DODGES QUERIES ON SENATE RACE

Waits for President's Orders, He Says.

BY EDWARD WILSON.

Mayor Kelly returned from Washington—and a visit with President Roosevelt—yesterday and told reporters, "I am not a candidate for senator."

Then the mayor added, "But I don't own myself—if the President or someone else—"

"Did the President ask you to run?" he was asked.

"No," was Kelly's answer, "but I would be a candidate for anything he asked. He is the commander-in-chief."

Mentions All Candidates.

The mayor said he mentioned to the President "everyone who has been mentioned as a candidate." He let his listeners understand the list included State's Attorney Courtney, Ald. Paul Douglas [5th], Robert J. Dunham, president of the park district, and former State Representative Benjamin Adamowski.

"No one was picked or condemned," Kelly said. "Nothing is definitely settled. The President may not say directly whom he favors but I will learn by the grapevine. Anyone who will run will have to have his blessings, or silent thoughts. I think any good Roosevelt man can be elected senator."

No Fun in Washington.

Kelly said he did not enjoy the crowded conditions at Washington.

"I met one Chicago man who is in a big position," he said, "I asked him how he stood the pace. 'I don't like it,' he answered, 'but we've got to do a job.'"

The Mayor was asked when the Democratic slate of candidates will be prepared for the April primary election.

"I haven't seen Mr. Nash, [P. A. Nash, chairman of the Democratic county central committee], I know nothing about it," he answered.

ELEVATED LINES' SCALE OF FARES HIT AS UNSOUND

Maj. R. F. Kelker Jr., city traction engineer, said yesterday that the scale of fares charged by the elevated lines is unsound and should be revamped without increasing the basic rate of 10 cents for adult rides in the city of Chicago.

Maj. Kelker, who is consulting engineer for the city council committee on local transportation, testified at a hearing before the Illinois Commerce commission in opposition to the "L" petition for an increase in the basic fare to 12 cents and a 23 per cent increase on other classes of rides.

"The elevated lines' complex system of fares is incredible and unique," Maj. Kelker asserted. "It has no parallel in any other city in the country. There are in force 16 different classes of fares, including weekly passes, children's rates, suburban fares, and combination suburb-to-Chicago tickets.

"The unfair feature of the fare structure is that the basic rate of 10 cents charged Chicago riders who use the system every day is the top rate in the city. This violates the sound principle that the wholesale rider should pay wholesale rates and the retail, or infrequent rider, should pay retail rates."

AUTO INJURIES ARE FATAL TO STEELWORKER

John Meeters, 61 years old, 12138 Emerald avenue, a steelworker, died in St. Francis hospital, Blue Island, yesterday of injuries received Thursday at 122d and Halsted streets when he was hit by an automobile driven by John Miller, 18, of 13724 Leyden avenue.

Fred Frederickson, 55, a trucker, 410 Youngs avenue, Joliet, was killed last night in Joliet when he was struck by a wrecking truck driven by John Wendt, 15, of New Lenox. Police said Wendt had no driver's license and that he ran thru a stop sign.

Mrs. Evelyn Steinken, 29, of Prairie View, Lake county, died in Sherman hospital, Elgin, of injuries suffered Dec. 31 when the car in which she was riding ran into the side of an Elgin, Joliet and Eastern railway train near Lake Zurich.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 51 persons had been killed in Cook county traffic since Jan. 1. Of these 38 died in Chicago, where 1,039 were injured in the same period.

SUE CHICAGO FIRM FOR COMMISSION ON ARMS ORDER

Plaintiffs Say They Aided 5½ Million Deal.

Two agents who allege that they assisted in procuring government contracts charged in a bill filed in Circuit court yesterday that the Pettibone Mulliken corporation, railroad equipment and heavy steel manufacturer, has refused to pay their commissions on 5½ million dollars worth of war department orders for 155 mm. field gun carriages. The corporation has its plant at 4710 Division street.

This action is similar to suits brought in several eastern cities. Revelations that lobbyists in Washington and elsewhere had played a part in connection with the awarding of arms and munitions contracts led to the congressional investigation now being made. The Pettibone Mulliken corporation, however, has not been mentioned by the investigators.

One Formerly a City Official.

The agents who filed the suit were Harry E. Rice and William J. Balmer. Rice was identified as a former Chicago hotel manager and Balmer as city commissioner of public service under a Republican mayor who was in office 12 years ago.

In their bill filed by the law firm of Seyfarth and Atwood, they asserted that on July 13, 1940, they signed a contract with the manufacturing concern to represent it in selling products to the government. At that time an oral agreement was reached under which the agents would receive a commission of $307.50 for each gun carriage purchased by the government.

On Sept. 12, 1940, the bid of the Pettibone Mulliken corporation was delivered to the war department by the agents, they alleged, and the corporation accepted an order for 301 units on Sept. 16. Shortly thereafter the corporation "confirmed by letter the oral agreement on commission," the bill stated. Work was started immediately on the government order.

But last Feb. 19, the bill charged, Rice and Balmer were notified by letter that the board of directors of the corporation "had rejected the agreements." The corporation then refused payment and has continued to refuse, they declared.

Set Commissions at $300,000.

The bill listed more than 40 points in which the plaintiffs assisted in obtaining the contracts, these ranging from obtaining the original specifications to renting machine tools and helping the company obtain materials. The sum of $4,000 was spent on travel and in establishing "good will" with army officials, but only $900 was paid by the corporation. The plaintiffs said that their total commissions ultimately will amount to $300,000, but asked only $25,000 at this time.

The corporation replied to the suit with a motion to dismiss.

Harold J. Brazelton, secretary and treasurer of the corporation, said last night that the company had no statement to make concerning the suit. "The formal petition to dismiss that has been filed by our lawyers speaks for itself," he said.

Was Low Bidder, Says Company.

The order for the carriages, this petition charged, was obtained because the corporation was low bidder in a competition and thus "it is legally impossible that the contract could have been secured thru services of the plaintiffs.

"If the allegations [in the suit] are construed as carrying the implication that the plaintiffs in any way influenced the results of the competitive bidding solicited by the government the same would be unlawful and contrary to public policy . . . and therefore not subject to recovery of commissions."

The letter confirming the commission agreement, the corporation reply stated, "is limited to an agreement to pay the plaintiffs commissions on orders procured thru negotiations and its terms would not cover contracts procured thru competitive bidding."

LAIRD LETS DOWN JURY AWAITING GAMBLING STORY

The grand jury and a welcoming committee of deputy sheriffs waited in vain yesterday for Lester J. Laird, bon vivant and former county highway police chief, to appear at the Criminal courts building. He had been expected because he said he was coming in when a Tribune reporter found him Thursday evening dining at a near north side restaurant with William [Billy] Skidmore, long the front man for Chicago's gamblers, and two other friends.

Late yesterday Chief Bailiff Joseph Lelivelt, who holds a two month old subpena for Laird, gave up. He drove to Skidmore's junk yard at 2840 South Kedzie avenue, hoping to find either Laird or Skidmore, but neither was there. Sheriff O'Brien said last night he once more had called on his bloodhounds to find Laird. They had been called off, the sheriff added, while Laird was lolling in Florida sunshine.

The grand jury, however, was not idle. During the afternoon several colored witnesses, among them C. H. Tavenier, an attorney who has represented policy game operators, were questioned. City police also were active in the war on gambling. Capt. Thomas Duffy of the First district raided a handbook at 321 South La Salle street, seizing Stanley Bush, 48 years old, the operators and paraphernalia. This handbook had been raided a month ago, but recently had operated each morning.

993 Additional Chaplains Sought for Duty in Army

Columbus, O., Jan. 16 (AP).—The army today issued a call for 993 additional chaplains. Col. Milton O. Beebe, 5th corps area chaplain, said they would be appointed first lieutenants in the chaplains' corps and called to active duty as needed.

WOMAN ROBBED IN STORE.

A robber took $35 from Mrs. Mildred Schwartz in her sport wear store at 5526½ Belmont avenue yesterday.

OBITUARIES

Edward G. Cooke.

New York, Jan. 16 [Special].—Edward G. Cooke, widely known theatrical executive, died today. He was 73 years old and had been business manager and advance man for stage productions for 50 years. Included in the plays he handled were "Ben Hur," "Lightnin'," "Seventh Heaven," "Three Wise Fools," "Susan and God," and "Skylark." He was managing "Claudia" in Chicago when he became ill. He recovered and returned to work in the John Golden office. He began his career in the box office of the Academy of Music in Milwaukee.

Mrs. Anna Duckgeisel.

Services for Mrs. Anna Duckgeisel, 82 years old, a resident of Chicago since 1872, will be held at 9:30 a. m. Monday from the residence at 6048 North Rockwell street to St. Timothy's church. Mrs. Duckgeisel died of a heart attack in her home yesterday. She is survived by her husband, Jacob H. Duckgeisel, a retired butcher, with whom she celebrated her 62d wedding anniversary last October. Also surviving are two sons, Frank and Anthony, and a daughter, Mrs. John Phillips, for the last 20 years an employé in the office of the clerk of the Criminal court.

George Lowe.

Funeral services for George Lowe, a retired policeman, who died Wednesday in the Hines veterans hospital, will be held at 9:30 a. m. today in St. Gabriel's church. Burial will be in Holy Sepulchre cemetery. Mr. Lowe was gassed in battle in the World war, and was compelled to retire from the police force eight years ago because of illness. His widow, Ann, and two daughters, survive. He was 46 years old, and lived at 8833 Elizabeth street.

John W. Bingham.

John W. Bingham, for 24 years an executive of the Corn Products Refining company and traffic manager for the company at the time of his last illness, died last night in Presbyterian hospital. He was 65 years old and lived at 698 Crescent boulevard, Glen Ellyn. His widow, Lilian, three sons, and a daughter survive. Funeral services will be held Monday at 2:30 p. m. in St. Mark's church, Glen Ellyn.

John H. Suter.

John H. Suter, father of Arthur E. Suter, village president of Libertyville, died yesterday in his home in Mundelein. He was 81 years old. Mr. Suter was a retired office manager. He was born in Baltimore, Md. His widow, Louisa, and another son, Walter E. survive. Funeral services will be held in Libertyville at 1:30 p. m. Monday.

R. A. Corbett.

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 16 (AP).—R. A. Corbett, 60 years old, who headed the steamship firm of Corbett & Co. for many years, died today after a long illness.

HIGHLAND PARK BROKER'S DEATH CALLED SUICIDE

A verdict of suicide was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday in the death of George L. Brannen, 51 years old, a stock and grain broker, whose body was found early in the day in the garage behind his home at 2501 Meadow lane, Highland Park. Dr. John L. Taylor, Lake county coroner, presided over the inquest.

Brannen's wife, Ruth, summoned her brother-in-law, Elmer M. Olson, 229 Center avenue, Lake Bluff, when Brannen was not at home at 3 a. m. Olson found Brannen seated behind the wheel of his car, the garage doors closed and the ignition on. The motor had stopped altho the gas tank was nearly half full.

Testimony at the inquest was that Brannen had not seemed despondent, had no serious health problems, and that his accounts at Faroll Brothers, the brokerage firm in the Board of Trade building where he is a junior partner, were in perfect order. He was a member of the Chicago Athletic club and Sons of the American Revolution. A son, Robert K., and a daughter, Charlotte, also survive. Services will be held in the home at 2:45 p. m. Monday.

SCHOOL PUPILS OBTAIN 500,000 DEFENSE STAMPS

A half million 10 cent defense stamps—a total of $50,000—were sold yesterday to pupils in the city's 400 public high and elementary schools. Principals reported that the supply was only half the demand and it is planned to have a million stamps for sale in the schools next Friday.

Several more business firms yesterday announced participation of their employés in the defense bonds and stamps buying drive. F. L. Ottenheimer, general agent of the Lincoln National Life Insurance company, 8 South Michigan avenue, said all of his employés who buy 25 cents to $1 worth of stamps each week will receive an equal amount of stamps from him as a gift.

Charles J. Hardy, president of the American Car and Foundry company, said a pay roll deduction plan for bond purchases by employés will be placed in effect Feb. 1. Mills Novelty company workers pledged to buy $40,000 in bonds.

Berwyn city employés received their semimonthly pay checks with up to 5 per cent deducted, the deductions representing bond and stamp purchases.

WEATHER BUREAU AGAIN CURTAILS FORECAST DATA

Specific Temperatures to Be Omitted.

Further restrictions on weather forecasts and information, effective immediately, were announced yesterday by O. T. Lay, who is in charge of the weather bureau in Chicago. The restrictions are designed to keep vital information from the enemy.

Under the new rules, forecasts will be general. They will no longer give specific temperatures, nor sky conditions. Furthermore, the bureau will make public no more than 20 temperature readings in other cities. Only in extreme weather will normal predictions be announced.

New Curtailed Forecasts.

Until yesterday, the custom had been to forecast that temperatures would rise or drop to a certain degree, as 10 above or 30 above, for example. Now the bureau will only say above or below freezing or, perhaps, "warmer or colder."

"It may be necessary for the public to remember the previous day's weather," suggested Forecaster Lay. "In that way, a fair idea of the changing weather might be gleaned. For instance, if it's warm today, and we say warmer or colder tomorrow, the public can prepare itself accordingly."

The restrictions on reporting sky conditions mean that Chicagoans will no longer be told whether skies will be fair, cloudy, or overcast. Threats of rain or snow, with the brief description light or heavy, may be included, however.

New Wind Condition Rules.

Wind conditions which had previously been curtailed in forecasts, are further limited to mere descriptions of moderate, fresh, and the like. Velocities and directions are omitted.

The new rules on limiting weather reports from other cities may be temporary; the number might be cut still further. The 20 cities to be listed will be those for which the weather information demand is greatest, according to Forecaster Lay. Until yesterday 60 to 100 cities had been listed.

"The weather bureau will have some freedom in its forecasts when severe weather threatens," said Forecaster Lay. "In case of severe subzero weather, a blizzard, or windstorms where life and property may be endangered, we will announce specific forecasts."

VICTORIA'S LAST SON, THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT, DIES

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP).—His royal highness Prince Arthur, duke of Connaught, last surviving son of Queen Victoria, died today at the age of 91 at Bagshot Park, Surrey. His life touched those of five British sovereigns and he saw four of his kinsmen accede to the throne—Edward VII., his brother; George V., his nephew; Edward VIII. and George VI., his great-nephews.

The duke of Wellington held him in his arms at his christening and he was named for the victor of Waterloo. In his own right Connaught was a soldier prince; some said a true martinet. Only one of Victoria's children now is alive: H. R. H. Princess Beatrice, seven years younger than the duke.

The earl of Macduff, 27 year old grandson of the duke and an officer in a famous Scottish regiment, accedes to the dukedom.

TURKEY GEHRKE, MAN WHO GAINED FAME BY HIBERNATING, DIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Watertown, Wis., Jan. 16.—Arthur E. Gehrke, 59 years old, the "Turkey" Gehrke whose practice of hibernating for much of each winter spread his nickname far and wide, died today. He was known as "Turkey" not because of an inordinate fondness for turkey diet, as most people supposed, but because a youthful playmate had given him the nickname to rhyme with his last name.

Arthur E. Gehrke.

For 25 years Gehrke retired to bed in his apartment above his tavern here about Nov. 1 and stayed there until spring. Gehrke's high moment was when a London, England, newspaper telephoned to him for confirmation of the story. Gehrke talked from his bed of hibernation, and that made another story.

He retired as usual early last November, but went to a hospital last night. Physicians said his death resulted from anemia. Dr. Samuel Pahner, a Milwaukee psychiatrist, once said Gehrke's custom of hibernating resulted from an "anxiety neurosis" because of a liver disorder. Gehrke had found that a few weeks in bed relieved the discomfort of his ailment and came to believe he could avert the annual attacks by going to bed in advance of them. The publicity which resulted from his oddity contributed to the success of his tavern.

3 Out of Town Engagements of Interest Here

BY JUDITH CASS.

THREE engagement announcements—one from Boston, Mass., one from Menasha, Wis., and one from Bronxville, N. Y.—are of interest here to the numerous friends and relatives of the young persons involved. In Boston Mrs. Donald Goold Smith is announcing the engagement of her daughter, Donna Katherine, to John Augur Holabird Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Holabird of Lincoln Park West. News of Miss Mary Hoyt Cowles' betrothal to Addison Cutter Davis of Eau Claire, Wis., comes from her mother, Mrs. Chester D. Shepard of Menasha, who, as Miss Barbara Granger and then as Mrs. Thomas H. Cowles, lived in Chicago and Lake Forest.

Mr. and Mrs. James Robertson MacColl Jr. of Bronxville and Wianno, Mass., send word that their daughter, Mary, is engaged to James H. McMillen II., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. McMillen of South Orange, N. J. This wedding will take place on Monday in the MacColl home in Bronxville before a circle of relatives and close friends.

Miss Cowles Frequent Visitor in Lake Forest.

Miss Cowles and her younger sister, Sally, have spent much time in Lake Forest, where their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Knight C. Cowles, live. The girls are granddaughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Cowles of Chicago and of the late Alfred H. Granger and Mrs. Granger, who lived in Lake Forest for many years. Miss Cowles attended the Brownmoor school in Santa Fe, N. M. Mr. Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Steven R. Davis of Eau Claire, was graduated from Princeton university in 1939. The engagement was announced at a luncheon on Wednesday at the Shepard home in Menasha.

Miss Smith is a student at the Erskine school in Boston, and her fiancé is a senior at Harvard university. He was graduated from the Francis W. Parker school, where his younger brother, Christopher, now is studying. No date has been set for the wedding, since young Mr. Holabird's draft number is expected to come up in the near future.

Miss MacColl is a granddaughter of Mrs. Eugene Underwood Kimbark and the late Mr. Kimbark of Chicago and of the late Mr. and Mrs. James R. MacColl of Providence, R. I. She was graduated from the Westover school and Finch Junior college and is a member of the New York Junior league and the Bronxville League for Service Mr. McMillen attended the Choate school, Blair academy, and Lehigh university. At present he is in the army.

'Hansel and Gretel' Opera Will Be Presented Today.

The stage of the Chicago Opera company, silent for the most part since the recent opera season came to a close, will come to life this afternoon for a special performance of Humperdinck's beloved peppermint stick and gingerbread house opera, "Hansel and Gretel." The performance starts at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Samuel Insull, who used to sit in a box at almost every performance during the years her late husband headed the opera company, does not go often nowadays, but she is planning a party for this afternoon. Her special guests will be her little grandson, Samuel Insull III., who lives in Geneva with his father and Mrs. Insull, and Marjorie McCartney, who is a neighbor of Mrs. Insull's at the Seneca hotel.

Among those who will be sitting on the main floor are Mrs. Charles E. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Clark J. Lawrence, Robert Hall McCormick, Mrs. Conrad Poppenhusen, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Saltiel, Mr. and Mrs. Abner J. Stilwell, Mrs. John Crerar, Mrs. Ernest R. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Millard B. Kennedy, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Miss Anna Fitziu, and Mrs. Edward A. Leight.

Mrs. McMillan Gives Box to Blind Service Group.

Mrs. James G. McMillan, president of the Illinois Opera guild, is giving her box for the performance to the Blind Service association. Little children from the House of Happiness will be sitting in Mrs. Hill Blackett's box, and Mrs. George B. Everitt has invited the Hadley School for the Blind to use her box. Among other members of the guild who have reserved boxes are Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Mrs. James G. Callahan, Mrs. Harry J. Dooley, Mrs. Barnett Faroll, Mrs. Frank R. Fuller, Mrs. Frederick Herrschner, Mrs. Haven Core Kelly, Mrs. Dwight C. Orcutt, Mrs. Hadar Ortman, Mrs. George Rasmussen, and Mrs. Albert H. Ullrich.

Each year finds a smaller number of Dearborn Seminary alumnae at their association's annual meeting than had attended the previous year's gathering. Today about 30 or 35 members are expected to have luncheon at 12:30 o'clock at the Woman's Athletic club and to exchange reminiscences about the historic old school. The party always is held on the same date, which marks the birthday anniversary of Zuinglius Grover, founder and

The Housewife

There are many products on the market for cleaning silver, and one of the finest of them is an old standby which has been manufactured for years. It's a cream, put up in jars, and it removes tarnish quickly and easily with little rubbing and with no scratching whatever. Apply it with a moist flannel or woolen cloth, let it dry, then polish with a clean woolen cloth and see how your silver glistens! This is one time that labor is amply repaid with good results. Takes Special Interest in Benefit Concert

Mrs. Sanger P. Robinson is doubly interested in Oscar Levant's concert on Jan. 23 in the Civic Opera house, for her mother-in-law, Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson, has been president for a number of years of the Church Mission of Help board, which is sponsoring the benefit. Mrs. Theodore Robinson is retiring this month from her post and will miss the concert, since she and Mr. Robinson left Thursday for Hobe Sound, Fla. The younger Mrs. Robinson, however, will be present to hear the program for which she has been working. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Women in War Work

By India Moffett

[The Women in War Work department will report on women's activities in war and defense work and will answer questions of women who wish to take part in these activities.]

If you are one of the many women who have soft spots in their hearts for sailors, you can be of service at the Bundles for Bluejackets headquarters, 333 North Michigan avenue. This organization is "adopting" all the sailors and marines who come into the Chicago area for training at the Great Lakes station, Navy pier, and Naval armory. Its purpose is "to build up a strong bond of personal friendship between the enlisted men and the people at home," according to an official report released yesterday by Mrs. John P. Cohane, chairman, and Rear Adm. John Downes, commanding officer at the Great Lakes station.

Free wool with instructions for knitting turtle neck sweaters, scarves, watch caps, and gloves in navy blue or forest green for the marines—is available at headquarters. For a dollar you may fill a comfort kit and attach a letter, photograph, or good luck medal to be given to a sailor as he leaves his training station.

A proposed social program for the sailors will include monthly open houses and picnics in the summer, an annual amateur revue, and Bluejacket nights at ice skating arenas, bowling alleys, movies, and theaters.

Mothers of sailors are welcome at the bluejackets' office and across the hall at the Navy Mothers club. Mrs. Helen Joyce, chairman of Navy Mothers, is serving on the executive committee of Bundles for Bluejackets with Mrs. John T. Wheeler, chairman; Miss Shirley Slade, co-chairman; Mrs. Gordon Kellogg, treasurer; Mr. Cohane, James Kemper, Miss Helen Shane, and Baroness de Trancavel, chairman of the knitting division. Mrs. John Crerar is chairman of the honorary ladies' committee.

Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen is opening her home at 4441 Drexel boulevard to members of the C. R. W. Girls' club [girls who work in the offices, laboratories, and studios of the Walgreen company] to carry on Red Cross work. They will meet on Monday evenings, starting Jan. 26. Sewing and knitting will be done there, but those who make surgical dressings and roll bandages will work in a room at the main offices, 744 Bowen avenue, because of a Red Cross ruling that the work cannot be done in private homes. This unit will be called the Walgreen girls' production unit.

Mrs. Kenneth F. Rich, state chairman of women's organizations for the defense savings staff, will be guest speaker at the PTA meeting at 2:30 p. m. Monday in the Faulkner school, 4746 Dorchester avenue. Members of other Kenwood women's groups have been invited to attend. Mrs. Rich's nieces, Marcia and Marian Rich, both students, also are doing their bit for defense. Marcia is buying defense stamps and Marian is baking cakes for the Service Men's center, 176 Washington street. Mrs. James Tatman is chairman of the PTA program and Mrs. Morgan Underwood, president, will preside.

Mrs. Richard Bentley of Lake Forest, chairman of the defense program committee for the Chicago Girl Scouts, has announced four refresher courses in civilian defense duties for Scout leaders, mothers, and troop committee members. The courses will be conducted from 10:30 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. in the Paul Revere fieldhouse, 2509 Irving Park road, Jan. 26; Hamilton Park fieldhouse, 72d street and Normal avenue, Jan. 27, and in Scout headquarters, 35 East Wacker drive, Feb. 2. An evening session will begin at 7:15 o'clock on Feb. 4 in headquarters. Members of Mrs. Bentley's committee are Mrs. Keith Carpenter, Mrs. Harvey Ellerd Jr., Mrs. Richard Mayer, and Mrs. H. M. Ross.

"Reading in THE TRIBUNE that the Potter Palmer mansion is to be used for the Chicago Red Cross, I hope they think to reserve a large sunny room upstairs and fix up a kitchenette beside it to care for volunteer workers' preschool children," writes F. M. H. We're passing on this suggestion, not with approval or disapproval, but we do think that possibly mothers who have young children are of more value at home taking care of their youngsters there than they would be in any Red Cross unit. Unless a young woman is especially trained for a particular job, her war relief work should be done so that it does not interfere with her duties at home, is the concensus of those qualified to judge such things. Many letters have come to this department from young mothers who want to be of service but who do not know what they can do. Knitting and sewing are the obvious things.

One young mother says: "I'd be very happy to meet with other mothers and work jointly to help our war effort. My home is large enough to accommodate a small group of mothers [and their children] for an afternoon of work. There must be something we could do in our homes. If the Red Cross can't use us, perhaps some similar organization can." Has any one a suggestion for young mothers like this one?

Good Morning!

The Oriental theater presents this week for your consideration a right thrilling little air melodrama.

Most of the action occurs on a huge aircraft—the Bombay Clipper—New York bound, and bearing a consignment of diamonds to be used for defense purposes. . . . These are wanted by villains. Your problem is to guess who carries the stones, who are the traitors, who the protectors, and WILL Newspaperman William Gargan and Miss Irene Hervey—married after boarding the airship—EVER get a chance to enjoy their honeymoon—so often and excitingly interrupted.

The action is fast and believable, and the dialog remarkably well written and delivered. And mighty clever is the manner by which the story wangles you into watching a certain charming person with suspicion. You'll know what I mean when you see the picture and will be delighted to discover something original in the way of whudunnit technique.

Acting is tops and so is direction. I got a kick from the movie—and the same to you!

See you tomorrow.

Today Is June in January as Wedding Day

This might be June in January, so many weddings are crowding the calendar today.

Miss Betty Mead's and Ensign George W. Merck's wedding will draw a large group of their friends to the Church of the Holy Spirit, Lake Forest, at 4:30 o'clock. Miss Martha Borland and Ensign James M. Willis will have a much smaller wedding, for only their immediate families will see the ceremony at 3 o'clock in the chapel of St. Chrysostom's church. Miss Christine Baumann and Edward Howland Collins will be married at 4:30 o'clock in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar B. Baumann of Northfield. Other Chicagoans will be sending their best wishes to Boca Grande, Fla., where Miss Cynthia Dunn and Alexander Lynde Cochrane will be married at 4 o'clock in St. Andrew's church.

Miss Constance Shepard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Bulkley Shepard of St. Paul, Minn., and New York City, was married yesterday afternoon in New York City to Henry Gaylord Dillingham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Francis Dillingham of Honolulu. The bride is a niece of the Potter Palmers.

The ceremony was performed in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's church. The bride wore an off-white satin gown with a court train and a long rose point veil caught with orange blossoms. The gown is an heirloom that has been in the family for generations.

Miss Pauline Palmer of Chicago, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Mrs. Myron A. Wick Jr., the bridegroom's sister, was matron of honor.

Miss Ruth Carolyn Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Henry Johnson of Chicago, and William Francis Horsting Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Horsting of Wilmette, will be married at 4 o'clock tomorrow in Trinity cathedral, Phoenix, Ariz. Miss Johnson will be attended by her sisters, Miss Shirley Ann and Miss Walta Jane Johnson. The Johnsons are spending the winter at their home in Phoenix.

In a military ceremony at 8:30 o'clock last night in the Church of the Holy Comforter, Kenilworth, Miss Peggy Knight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Knight of Kenilworth, became the bride of Edwin Allen Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Phillips of Auburn, N. Y.

Stage Notes

"Louisiana Purchase," the musical comedy by Morrie Ryskind and Irving Berlin, closes tonight at the Erlanger theater after a run of 14 successful weeks, the longest engagement such an elaborate show has had since 1929. It will be replaced on Monday by another musical, "Panama Hattie," which, like "Louisiana Purchase," was produced by B. G. De Sylva.

Monday also marks the arrival of "The Corn Is Green," starring Ethel Barrymore, at the Harris theater. Emlyn Williams' drama is the third attraction on the American Theater society and Theater guild subscription series.

The Actors Company of Chicago opened its production of Rose Franken's "Another Language" at its headquarters, 218 South Wabash avenue, last night. It will play Friday, Saturday, and Sunday nights for some weeks to come. Minnie Galatzer is the director.

The children's section of the Goodman theater will give Charlotte Chorpenning's version of "The Three Bears" this afternoon and next Saturday at 2:30.

Front VIEWS and PROFILES

BY MARCIA WINN

The Bird Woman.

Fair weather or foul, the bird woman of Bughouse square always is about. She is a wispy little thing with a mossy nose, a quivering voice and frail, bony hands that invariably clutch a paper sack. Every morning she emerges from her nest, somewhere west of State street on Chicago avenue, and begins her rounds of nearby bakeries. "Anything for the birds today, dearie?" she quavers, and greedily crumbles dry bread into her sack.

Then up she goes to the decaying world that is Bughouse square, a quick, disdainful trot past the sprawling drunks, the shabby men with their frayed newspapers, the importunate bleary women, the babies in disarray, to a small patch of lawn. Here she tremulously scatters her crumbs. The crumbs gone, she will sidle up to a passer-by, give him a pat on the arm and say, in her cracked quaver, "Have you fed the birds today, dearie?" If you have not, O, stranger, never admit it, for then her humility suddenly becomes a torrent of abuse, a lurid mingling of biblical phrase and profanity.

"And the life of the men who walk on this earth is worth not 1 cent," she will howl, her voice lapping hungrily at the rhythm of her phrases, "while the life of the birds who fly over the earth transcends all. And you, you transgressor who feedeth not the birds of the air are worth not half a cent. I, I," and by this time you are running, racing, madly, frantically, for the next and nearest corner, alley, tree, "I am the one appointed by God to feed His birds. God in His heaven smiles at me, but you, but you." But you, if fortunate, have by now escaped.

Get a Horse, Get a Horse.

Henry Pope Jr. is setting the pace, and rightly so, he being tire rationing director for Illinois outside of Chicago and about to be car rationing director. He and his wife have acquired bicycles, he to pedal from their Glencoe home to the station, she to go to the store a mile away. . . . The Ambrose Cramers have bought gasoline scooters. . . . And the alien clop-clop-clop of a trotting horse, penetrating thru the night on the near north side, is from the hoofs of a horse named Hitler, tugging an illuminated hansom cab to advertise a night club and so named because "he moves backward faster than he does forward." His predecessor, Barrymore, was named for John. "A true Barrymore," the noted actor commented when riding behind him, "because he moves so slowly."

5 Times 5 Times 5 Times . . .

The chain letter is with us again, this time bearing the caption, "Help your country—keep 'em flying." It's the same old routine, make five copies of the letter, send to five friends, etc. But this time you send a 25 cent defense stamp to the name on the top of the list. Total computed haul: $769.25 in defense stamps. Moreover, it bears the curious postscript: "The government has approved this chain letter as it will mean the sale of defense stamps."

Moot Question.

Submitted to our Inquiring Camera Girl [and by a woman, of course]: Do you think boxing should replace hostesses at army camps?

Metropolitan Mosaic.

The Victorian clawfoot bathtub, enameled a bright pink and splattered with blue hollyhocks, and the pink chair beside it, its corset-shaped back laced with purple, in the Michigan avenue window designed by Loraine Yerkes. . . . The new contingent of Abbott hall midshipmen, ill-at-ease in civilian clothes as, starting their first awkward march to classes, they gaze enviously across Michigan avenue at Abbott hall's first graduating class of ensigns, posing for pictures on the steps of the old Water Tower. . . . The Lincoln Zephyr [Ill., 38390] with a French telephone on its dashboard. . . . The persons lining up for detective stories at the public library's curb service mart, consumption of these having mysteriously increased 75 per cent since Pearl Harbor.

Irene and the Indians.

Irene Bordoni, her great blue eyes sparkling, her wit as Gallic as her accent, at a farewell Louisiana Purchase luncheon:

"The first time I come to America . . . eet wass in 1926 . . . I say, 'Will I see the Eendians?' Deed they laugh? They say, 'It will take about three days to show you the Eendians.' . . . Well, at last I see the Eendians. It wass at a wan night stand when I wass Leetle Miss Bluebeard. It wass in Hawk Spring, Wyomeeng, and it wass Hawk Spring. The babees in the push carts all outside the school where we play. And somebody watching the babees. And men in the beeg," with an eloquent stretch of the arms, "hats and the high heels on the boots and the Eendians and they come in and sit and look at us and no wan knew what we say. . . . And the dressing room wass onder the stage and you come up a very leetle winding stair and I am in a bouffant skirt and I cannot get up. So I say, 'This end the bouffant,' and it deed. Yes, I saw the Eendians . . . wan night stand."

Season's New Neckwear All Frill and Froth

BY REA SEEGER.

The most effective trifles you can tuck under your chin these days are the frothy confections found in the new neckwear showings. Never will spanking white sheers, exquisite embroidery, frills of lace and compound assortments of organdy lace and embroidery make such impressions on the critical other half of the world as these delightful accents of this year's vintage.

Large picture book square bibs, ruffled lavishly around the outside edge, sharp vee outline vestees, cavalier cuffs that almost reach the elbow, outline cuffs to show merely about a quarter of an inch below the cuff of a dark sleeved dress, and the regulation sizes and shapes are some of the present finds.

Smooth extra fine piqué is new this season because of the contrasting lace trim of fine val lace. Other new affairs of piqué are extremely smart with handworked eyelet patterns, others with hand made looking scalloped edges.

There are dozens and dozens of snowy white items, devastating bits with which to revive dated dress or suit jacket . . . but the frilliest cascades are the newest and going like wild fire.

Fagoting, all kinds of fine embroidery, sheers trimmed or contrasted with large patterned embroidery, pleated frills, net, dotted nets, and such newly revived old fashioned handwork as featherstitching, French knots, double hemstitching and shadow embroidery design make these new arrivals the most interesting accessories in the shops.

If white doesn't quite click with your desires, see the beautiful shell pink and pale blue sets, unusually flattering without losing any of the fine sheer accent flattery of the all white stuff. Lace, crisp sheers, net, combines of lace and piqué, even linen, come in these delicate tints.

The most unassuming trifles to be found in all these collections are the single bows or the pair of fine linen edged in half inch val lace . . . once pinned under the chin or on the chest, they provide all the flattery and eye appeal that larger frills ever earned.

Dr. Stock Presents Two Novelties in Week-End Concerts

Frederick Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra presented two novelties in their Orchestra hall concerts of Thursday night and yesterday afternoon.

Milton Rusch's transcription of a Bach G major organ fantasy preserves much of the character of the original. Even the actual sound of the open diapason of the organ is strongly suggested in Rusch's use of brasses and wood-winds in parts of the transcription.

The new work will make a valuable addition to the orchestral répertoire, for the fantasy on which it is based is an exceptionally clean lined and noble example of Bach's early period.

Daniel Gregory Mason's suite after English folk songs brings into the concert hall in most persuasive form certain excellent tunes which would otherwise never be heard. The fact that it rescues from oblivion so glorious a melody as "Arise, Arise" would alone justify the existence of the suite. E. B.

"Pursuit of a Parcel"

By Patricia Wentworth Turnbull

(Copyright: 1942: By Patricia Wentworth Turnbull)

SYNOPSIS.

Cornelius Rossiter, adopted brother of Antony Rossiter, is a spy for both Germany and England. He is known as Cornelius Roos by the Germans, and when a man high in Nazi circles suspects him of his English connections, Cornelius announces he has taken a dictograph of the man's expressions of disloyalty to Hitler and it will be sent to Goering if anything happens to Cornelius. In London, Antony is questioned by Colonel Garrett of the British intelligence, about the loyalty of his adopted brother, and is sent to Holland to get secret information about Cornelius. Before going Antony says good-by to his sweetheart, Delia Merridew, and makes her promise not to mention his errand. A package addressed to Antony is received by Delia's uncle, Philip Merridew, just before a bomb wrecks his office. Emanuel Holt, a clerk, rescues the package and Merridew, dangerously hurt, makes Emanuel promise to keep the package. In Holland, Antony, posing as Piet Maartens, the ne'er-do-well Dutch nephew of Anna Brandt, a tavern keeper, interviews Cornelius and learns about the parcel. During an air raid Holt's house is ransacked but Holt has the parcel in the shelter.

INSTALMENT XII.

MR. HOLT CALLS ON DELIA.

Delia wanted to laugh, and Delia wanted to cry. Antony mimicking what people would say, and Mrs. Blake saying it just like that. "I hope he is somewhere in England."

Antony—where are you—where are you? She lost Mrs. Blake and the work-party. She was back in the study with Antony. They had stood there in the night and kissed. He had mimicked what people would say—

Mrs. Blake's voice flowed on, reaching her again.

"I am sure he writes to you whenever he can, my dear."

The moisture in the eyes and the catch in the voice recommended by Antony came upon Delia without any need to feign them. She began to say something, and never knew what it was, because Cynthia struck in, tearing herself from Miss Murdle.

"I bet he doesn't write. None of my boys do once they get away. It's a case of findings is keepings, and somebody else always seems to find them."

Mrs. Barrock turned an awful gaze. She had eyes uncomfortably like small bull's-eyes set prominently between high cheekbones and a determined brow. She had also a very determined chin. She said in her deepest voice:

"I should hardly think you would be proud of your inability to keep your friends, Cynthia."

Cynthia giggled and tossed a head with the latest curls arranged in the latest way. She wasn't really pretty, but she had very good ankles and a roving eye. The way in which she acquired young men was only less interesting to Wayshot than the rapidity with which she changed them. She was the doctor's daughter, and the kinder hearts forgave her much because she had no mother, and was undeniably fond of their adored Dr. Kyrle.

Mrs. Canterbury took one of her infrequent stitches and said in the languid tone which always carried surprisingly:

"I love Antony Rossiter, and if I was 20 years younger I should certainly do my best to find him and keep him."

Mrs. Barrock fixed her with the bull's-eyes.

"Charming young men are never to be trusted. Mr. Rossiter is a great deal too good looking to be trustworthy. I gave Mr. Merridew my opinion on the subject years ago." Under the impression that she had lowered her voice sufficiently to be confidential, she continued, "Of course, he paid no attention—men never do until it is too late."

The needle was suspended, the periwinkle eyes were lifted sympathetically.

"That is so true. But what a good thing, or we should never be able to marry them. They go into a sort of trance and don't come round until, as you say, it is too late, and then they just have to make the best of us, poor dears."

Mrs. Barrock blinked.

"That is not what I meant at all. Delia should have some elderly relative living with her—a woman. It is extremely wrong of Mr. Merridew to leave her here by herself the way he does. Anything might happen."

"It is certainly rather dull for her," said Mrs. Canterbury in her most provoking voice.

Delia had edged out of the circle. She was tacking her pattern together by the window, when Cynthia perched on the arm of her chair and leaned towards her, whispering:

"Look at the Murdle—she's done it again! Don't you simply hate to have her copying you like that?"

Delia colored. She said quickly and low:

"I wish she wouldn't."

Cynthia giggled.

"I should think you did! This is the worst one yet. Why do you stand it? I wouldn't."

Delia was silent. She couldn't tell Cynthia that Miss Murdle always made her feel as if she were eating cake in front of a starving person. She went on taking long stitches in her pattern and hoped that Cynthia would be discouraged and talk about something else. But when she did, Delia would have liked to have changed her wish. Cynthia leaned right down and said in her ear:

"Have you quarreled with Antony?"

Delia changed color again.

"Why should I?"

Cynthia giggled.

"Lots of reasons. I should think he'd be rather fun to quarrel with. What was it all about—another girl?"

"Of course not!"

Cynthia slid down from the arm and sat beside her.

"Well, you mayn't think so, but there always is another girl. So if you really want him, I shouldn't keep it up too long. They go and weep on the other girl's shoulder if you do. I'd grab on to him if I were you. It's awfully disinterested of me to give you this good advice, because I wouldn't half mind Antony myself, but no one can say I don't play fair, only if you ever really do have a complete blow-up with him, you might just let me know."

Delia laughed. She didn't have to try; the laugh just came bubbling up because Cynthia was so silly. She said:

"I'll be sure to let you know."

And just then the door opened and Parker came in, looking as he always did, the picture of a respectable middle aged manservant with something on his mind. When he first came to Mr. Merridew, Delia and Antony used to wonder what it was. He was half of a married couple, but that didn't seem to be enough to account for it, because Mrs. Parker was a comfortable, fat woman and an angel cook. It took them nearly a year to find out that it was crossword puzzles that were weighing upon him. He couldn't let them alone, and he never managed to get them out.

He came across the room now, bent down a little, and said in his superior, worried voice:

"Mr. Holt would like to see you, Miss Delia, if you can spare the time. I have put him in the study."

Delia came into the study, long and slim in a dress of leaf green wool. Emanuel Holt thought how pretty she was. What he would call a real lady, too, with the same friendly way with her whether she was speaking to him or to the grandest of Mr. Merridew's friends. Mr. Merridew had some very grand friends, which was of course good for the firm. The family was well connected. Miss Delia's mother had been the Hon. Cordelia Luton, but she didn't give herself any airs on that account.

He had known her since she was a little girl, and it was a thing he had always admired in her. She shook hands with him as if he was one of Mr. Merridew's friends now, and said he must have some tea. "And I expect you'd hate to come and have it with the work-party—I expect Parker told you they were all here this afternoon—so I've told him to bring it along here for you, and I needn't go back for 10 minutes or so."

She was taller than he was. He had to tilt his face up a little to talk to her.

"Do sit down, Mr. Holt."

The fire had been lighted and the room was cozy. Emanuel sat down in one of Mr. Merridew's comfortable chairs. He altered the angle of it so that he could talk to Delia without losing sight of the suitcase he had brought with him. It was one of the expanding kind, and it contained a great deal of crumpled up newspaper and a parcel addressed to Antony Rossiter, Esq.

"What did you want to see me about, Mr. Holt?"

Emanuel reached for the suitcase and opened it. In the middle of its newspaper nest sat the square brown parcel. After allowing Delia a moment to take it in he shut the lid and snapped the catches down.

Delia looked at him with a puzzled smile.

"What is it, Mr. Holt?"

"A parcel, Miss Delia—for Mr. Antony—I should say Mr. Rossiter."

"I like Mr. Antony so much better. It sounds much more friendly—don't you think so? What's inside the parcel, Mr. Holt?"

"I haven't the very slightest idea, Miss Delia."

The puzzled look deepened.

"Do you know who it's from?"

"No, I don't, Miss Delia."

"It says 'By hand,'" said Delia in a doubtful voice.

"That's what I've come about, Miss Delia. Can you tell me where Mr. Antony is?"

She stared at him.

"O, no—I can't."

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1942: By The Chicago Tribune.]

If you have a good recipe which your family and friends like to have you use frequently, I hope you'll send it in to our recipe contest and let us consider it for a prize.

Any good recipe is eligible. Write it legibly (and write your name and address clearly, too, so that in case you win $5, the prize won't go astray) and give clear, full directions. Write it in standard recipe form, ingredients listed one after another, and in the order in which they are used. Address Recipe Contest, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

It takes two or three weeks for a prize winning recipe to appear in print, simply because we work ahead of schedule in order to allow time for testing and to give each recipe the consideration it deserves.

These near-prize winners are worth clipping, too. Virginia Knutsen, 624 First street, Libertyville, Ill., wins honorable mention with this Norwegian holiday salad.

Norwegian Holiday Salad.

1 can drained fish balls, diced
1 can shrimp, diced
1 small can pimientos, diced
1 small can peas
Stalk of celery, diced
4 hard cooked eggs, diced
Mayonnaise, thinned with cream
Salt, pepper

Combine ingredients and mix lightly. Serve on lettuce.

Mrs. Louis Pelikan Jr., 2214 South Avers avenue, Chicago, sends her favorite Spanish steak recipe, and it really is good, too! Her ingredients and directions weren't quite complete enough for prize consideration, but an experienced cook will have no difficulty with the method.

Spanish Steak.

Thick shoulder or round steak
Sliced onions
Chopped green pepper
Bottle of stuffed olives with liquid
1 can tomato soup

Brown steak well in a skillet. Place in a baking dish, cover with onions and pepper, and pour olives and liquid over it. Add tomato soup. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 2 hours.

Mrs. Bertha Kaiser, 1683 North Ada street, Chicago, sends her mother's favorite Dutch apple pie, which has a wonderful flavor.

Dutch Apple Pie.

6 to 8 tart apples, peeled, cored, and halved
2 tablespoons flour
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons quick cooking tapioca
1 cup sour cream
1 cup brown sugar
Pinch of mace or cinnamon if desired
Unbaked butter crust

Combine flour, white sugar, and tapioca, and spread on bottom and sides of an unbaked pie shell. Mix sour cream and brown sugar (and spice, if it is used) and dip each apple half in the mixture. Arrange in pie shell, then pour remaining sugar and sour cream over the apple halves. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes, then reduce heat to 250 degrees and bake about an hour longer.

BUTTER CRUST: Sift 1 cup flour and ¼ teaspoon salt. Cut in ¼ cup butter to the consistency of cornmeal. Add ¼ cup ice cold milk very slowly, until dough will form. Roll out to ⅛ inch thickness. Fit into well greased and floured pie plate without stretching.

Auxiliary Buys Bonds.

The Marconi Ladies' auxiliary, a social organization of 850 women, purchased $1,000 worth of defense bonds yesterday. The club, which meets in the hall at North and Western avenues, will form a Red Cross unit.

TODAY'S PRIZE RECIPE

Mrs. Frances Marski, 5002 Berteau avenue, Chicago, wins today's recipe contest prize with her old recipe for drop cookies. She has been mailed a check for $5.

There's a daily prize for a good recipe, so get out your very favorite one and send it to Recipe Contest, CHICAGO TRIBUNE. It may win one of these prizes for you!

CAPE ELIZABETH COOKIES.

[About 45 Cookies.]

½ cup butter or margarine
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
1½ cups flour
¼ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup rolled oats
5 tablespoons milk
½ cup pineapple, cut in shreds
½ cup seedless raisins
¾ cup candied orange peel, chopped
½ cup walnut meats, cut in pieces.

Cream shortening and sugar thoroly. Add well beaten egg. Mix and sift flour, soda, baking powder, spices, and salt. Add oats and add to first mixture alternately with milk. Mix fruit and nuts with a little extra flour and add to dough. Pineapple should be well drained. Drop by spoonfuls on greased baking sheet. Bake at 375 degrees for 8 minutes.

[Save this for your scrapbook.]

Versatile New Dresses

WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCKS.

Wear these dresses to the office, and then right out to dinner, if you like, because they are trim and tailored, yet softly styled. One model has raglan shoulders with interesting shirring for the bodice. It's two-piece, with set-in belt and simple skirt. The other style has fullness in the skirt, darted shoulders, and full sleeves. Neckline is surplice and trimmed with contrasting material.

Style No. 3107 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 2½ yards of 54 inch material.

Style No. 3009 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 4½ yards of 39 inch material; ⅜ yard contrasting for collar.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired and write your name and address plainly. The winter pattern book costs 15 cents, 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

Looking at Hollywood

By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 16.—Jean Harlow will live again—but considerably altered. Columbia is fixing for a remake of "Platinum Blonde," but everything will be switched so much that there may not even be a blonde in it.

Rosalind Russell, who may play lead in new "Platinum Blonde."

The new version will be called "Smitty," and the lead will be a newspaper girl of that name who is a good egg; probably Rosalind Russell. Harold Clurman is producing and Philo Higley, who wrote "Remember the Day" with Phil Dunning, has been brought out from New York to work on the script.

"Platinum Blonde," made in 1931, seems populated with ghosts now: Miss Harlow, Louise Closser Hale, Edmund Breese, Robert Williams. The other woman in it, Loretta Young, was the newspaper gal and a meanie. In the new version the meanie will be the goodie and the Harlow part will be secondary.

When Film Daily's 1941 best picture award went to "Gone With the Wind"—a 4 year old—Jack Oakie called David Selznick and congratulated him. Selznick took a modest bow and said thanks. "And I understand," said Jack, "that 'David Copperfield' may get it next year."

RKO will do a film biography, "Gen. Billy Mitchell." William Rankin wrote it 18 months ago with permission of the Mitchell family; Bill Hawks has bought it and Howard Hawks will direct. . . . Sam Goldwyn already having chosen "Pride of the Yankees" as the title of the Lou Gehrig picture, it's too late for him to consider Murray Singer's suggestion, "After the Ball." . . . C. B. De Mille has been named chairman of the movie-radio blood donors' service. He's been making actors bleed in flickers for 29 years—and now they're really gonna have to do it. . . . Warner's have changed the swell title of the serial they bought, "Aloha Means Good-by," to "Across the Pacific." . . . Hitchcock, you know, always plays a bit in his pictures. Well, in "Saboteur" he will be a deaf mute. He will talk sign language to a girl and she will slap him.

Fannie Brice has sold an Afghan hound named Viola to John Barrymore. She charged a stiff price and gave the money to charity. . . . Milton Berle hopes for a February production on Broadway of "I, the People," a comedy he wrote with Bob Musel and Hal Conrad. . . . In "Sleepy-Time Gal" Elisha Cook Jr. is a gunman with a scientific mind. He rigs up a contraption which will shoot Judy Canova when she starts to play a piano. "Gosh," admires a henchman, "you're a better inventor than Don Ameche." "Yeh," says Cook, "and I'll laugh when she sits down to play." . . . Judy's heading for a bond selling job in the southeast the end of this week, and afterward will vacation in Havana. . . . Sam Goldwyn's location manager is hunting Florida backgrounds for spring training shots on "Pride of the Yankees." Hunting 'em right here in California.

Leo McCarey, whose court fuss with Howard Hughes has kept him from making pictures since "My Favorite Wife," is getting set to go again. Hughes has claimed an exclusive contract with McCarey and Leo has asked the courts for relief. The case comes up March 16, and McCarey, hopeful that the decision will be in his favor and wanting to be all set to go in case it is, has filed incorporation papers for Leo McCarey, Inc., a producing firm.

Pat O'Brien has had a deal to make a picture for Twentieth-Fox ever since he quit Warners to free-lance, but has turned down several yarns offered. Now they've got one he likes and he'll do it. It's titled "Calling Manilla" and concerns a couple of telephone engineers who, working on army communications in the Philippines, are trapped by Jap parachutists. Story by Sam Engel, and Dana Andrews will be in it. . . . Columbia is angling for Quentin Reynolds to do a one reel trailer something like "London Can Take It" to ballyhoo its recently acquired Canadian film, "The Invaders." Stars of the picture are Laurence Olivier, Leslie Howard, and Raymond Massey. It's about six survivors of a German sub sunk off Nova Scotia. . . . Twentieth will team Don Ameche and Henry Fonda in "Strictly Dynamite," which is Joseph Schrank's story of a fellow who runs a success school. The tale was published under the title of "Lazy Galahad." Victor Mature and Betty Grable will team again in "White Collar Girl," which is about a Kitty Foyle with curves. . . . I've just heard of a player who was called to Metro for a one day bit at $50. On account of delays of one sort or another, he was on the pay roll 54 days before getting in his little piece of work.

The Walt Disney plant is going all-out on government pix. The whole staff, including the top men who made "Dumbo," is working on a Donald Duck picture for Henry Morgenthau, and will have it ready for showing Feb. 1. It will be a new Donald—a guy who pays his taxes with a grin. The treasury department has ordered 1,000 prints, which is the biggest order the technicolor plant ever had. Morgenthau himself has conferred with Disney on some of the gags.

principal for a number of years of Dearborn seminary. At today's luncheon, the 61st in the series, Mrs. Henry Bartholomay will preside.

James Cathcarts to Give Tea for Lester Armours.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Cathcart will entertain at tea this afternoon in Lake Forest for Mr. and Mrs. Lester Armour. Mr. Armour is leaving today for Washington, D. C., to take up his new wartime duties, but his wife won't join him until he finds where he's to be stationed.

Members and guests at the Woman's Athletic club tonight will hear an illustrated lecture, "Ski America Second," by Sidney N. Shurcliffe. At dinner Mrs. Nicholas Starosselsky will be entertaining at the table reserved for the board. Others who have made reservations for parties include Mrs. Paul Holinger, Mrs. Walter Engel, Mrs. Charles W. Fisher, Mrs. E. Hall Taylor, Mrs. James H. Taylor, Mrs. Nathaniel Leverone, Mrs. Paul Loeber Jr., Mrs. Albert H. Wetten, Mrs. H. Lee Buswell, Mrs. Walter J. Cummings, and Mrs. Evan Johnson.

A new organization will come into being tonight when the Cotillion club holds its first dinner-dance at the Hotel Moraine-on-the-Lake in Highland Park. At 8 o'clock about 150 young married persons on the north shore will gather for cocktails. At dinner the couples will be seated by the numbers which they have drawn.

Dinner-Dance Club's Informal Party Tonight.

The Dinner-Dance club had planned to have a skating party tonight, since the young persons like to have one affair in the series that isn't "dress-up," but their plans had to be changed when the Saddle and Cycle club decided to forgo the expense of flooding the tennis courts. The party still will be informal, however.

One hundred and fifty dinner reservations have been made for tomorrow night at the Saddle and Cycle club preceding an informal play reading, without costumes of scenery, of a topical comedy. Among those entertaining parties will be Mr. and Mrs. Theodore S. Gary, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas I. Underwood, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Stratford, Mr. and Mrs. R. Winfield Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Taylor, and Mr. and Mrs. John W. Root.

$42,930 Is Received by Red Cross Fund; Total Now $1,144,880

Gifts totaling $42,930 were received at the Chicago Red Cross war fund office, 105 South La Salle street, yesterday, bringing the grand total to $1,144,880, James B. Forgan, general chairman, announced last night. Chicago's quota is $3,750,000 in the national campaign for 50 million dollars.

Two donations of $15,000 each were given by Inland Steel company and the United States Gypsum company. Other gifts included $2,500 each from Pepsodent company and Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co.; $1,500 each from Miehle Printing Press and Manufacturing, Bell & Howell, and Dearborn Chemical; and $1,000 each from Wilson & Bennett Maufacturing, United States Brewing, and North American Car corporation. All these donations are exclusive of employes' contributions, Mr. Forgan explained.

A check for $430, representing the profits from Jugo-Slavia's 23d anniversary and national unity day celebration, was presented to Mr. Forgan by Stephen Babich, president of the celebration committee, and Peter J. Cabric, Jugo-Slav consul general.

Parties Today to Close Decorators' Conference

The American Institute of Decorators will bring its midwestern conference to a close today with a cocktail party and informal buffet supper at the Merchants and Manufacturers club in the Merchandise Mart. Members of the decorative trades in Chicago will be hosts.

Looking Glass Thru the

Take a tip from one of the hair experts around town if your hair loses luster and "spring" in much too short a time after a shampoo and set: Watch the cleanliness of your hair brush, and of the net you slip over your locks each night.

This smart little woman, who gives the most beautiful shampoos and who knows more about the care of hair than lots of us will ever know, feels that a great many women who are fussy about having frequent shampoos, and good ones, leave fussiness behind them when they leave the beauty salon.

It's pretty well agreed that nothing gets quite as dirty as hair. Because it exudes a certain amount of oil it gathers grime quickly, and of course none of us wash hair daily as we wash our hands and faces. Hair brushes, if they could be seen under a microscope, would give us a turn. The bristles, which are used to clean the hair shafts, do a pretty good job of picking up the loose dust. But this sticks to them, and unless a brush is wiped off with a clean towel after each using and washed frequently between times, it can add grime instead of serving to take it away. It's a shame to use anything but an immaculately clean brush on clean hair.

Keep your hair brush wrapped in a clean towel or in a tightly covered box between brushings. Wash it once a week at least in warm suds to which a little ammonia has been added. Dust it daily, too.

Nets should be washed and rinsed every couple of days. A surprising amount of dust and oil adheres to them, and unless they, too, be kept immaculate they'll add to the dinginess of hair.

Ways of Small Child May Be Troublesome

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

As I read my mail, I have spells of being sorry for the children of this age, then this, and then that, in turn. Altho I know that every period in a child's life presents parents with certain problems, as well as special satisfactions, there are days when those difficulties seem overwhelmingly to centre in one group.

So sometimes I think children at the adolescent age have the hardest time of any, because they receive the least understanding. Sometimes it seems as tho the sevens and eights and nines who are emerging, with a wider sweep, from their little childhood have the most difficulties to encounter from adults.

And sometimes, as right now, it seems to me that the two and three and four year olds have the hardest row of all to hoe. They are so little, so eager, so busy, so active, and so completely within the power of adults, who love them, but so often do not understand them. I receive so many letters written in bewilderment or discouragement which demonstrate how many there are who do not realize the needs of the little children of these early years. There always is a steady stream of this mail.

For instance, one mother writes: "I take my little three year old and lead her again and again to her blocks, but she will not pick them up."

Another says: "My tiny daughter used to be so obedient and now sometimes I speak to her two or three times and either she doesn't answer or doesn't obey."

Another writes: "My little girl of four is expected by all the family to be quiet in the house, instantly obedient, and to have table manners like a grownup. Isn't this just too much?" And on the other hand, a letter that has just come in lists about a dozen "dreadful" offenses of a three year old.

What causes tantrums? How may a child be encouraged to be neat? What two things help the nervous child? For advice on these and other related topics read "You and Your Young Child," Mrs. Gladys Bevans' latest booklet, on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 15 cents; postpaid, 18 cents.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

Smart Dog.

You won't believe it but—an advertising executive who lives in Evanston owns a dog not averse to doing a little exploring on his own. A short time ago the dog turned up in Wilmette, and like a person who just drops in to see the folks, he paid rather an extended call. So the woman at whose home the dog was paying a visit, looked at his identification tag and called the owner.

"Your dog is here in our house and doesn't seem to have any intention of going home," she said to the owner.

"Put him on the phone," the owner said.

"Put him on the what?"

"On the telephone."

The woman held the receiver to the dog's ear so he could hear his master's voice saying emphatically, "See here! You come home. What are you doing up there? You come right home."

The receiver was replaced on the hook. The door was opened. And, like a streak of lightning, out went the dog heading south for Evanston.

And that, remarked one of the office force, is salesmanship.

Pennies for Bonds.

Honorable mention and a bright new penny go to the girl in the office who saved $93 in pennies, took them downtown and turned them in for Defense bonds. My informant doesn't mention in what sort of a carryall she toted the 9,300 pennies.

Masters of All Trades.

With the American Institute of Decorators terminating its 11th annual conference today, a number of ambitious young women are asking, "What do I need to be an interior decorator?"

Well, if you can take the word of the topnotchers in the profession, here are only a few of the necessary qualifications:

"A girl must first of all be a trained artist; she must be a supersales person, and a psychologist of no mean ability. She must be a business person, capable of figuring estimates and yardages. She must know periods and styles; be a shrewd buyer as well as a tactful seller. She must be an expert on furniture, on woods, periods, china, fabrics, rugs, antiques of all kinds; an expert on lighting, on architecture, on construction of furniture, on painting and finishing; an expert on color, and above all, she must be able to produce an idea a minute." And, to this list of capabilities is added humorously: "She must also be a good furniture mover—in fact, one decorator asserts she should be a good piano mover."

"It would be wise for any girl contemplating the decorating profession as a career to ask herself if she is willing to be a jack-of-all trades. The hours are long, the work is arduous and requires much nervous energy, but it is creative and satisfies the homemaking instincts of many white collar girls." Thus speaks the American Institute of Decorators to the young hopefuls who would join their ranks.

Individuality Right of Each Wedded Mate

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

There seem to be many reasons why married couples do not get along happily. Most complaints come from women, but a number of them does come from the men. Bunching the various complaints, here they are: Neglectfulness, selfishness, irritability, argumentativeness, lack of trust, failure to be considerate and polite, nagging, and last, but not least, lack of affection.

Even tho there gradually develops a merging of separate personalities, neither the man nor the wife should forget that the other is a distinct "person." As a person, he or she is entitled to certain opinions, likes and dislikes, polite consideration, and to individual feelings. If these points are kept in mind and put into practice daily, the love that made the marriage grows into such a deep and abiding affection that it becomes a part of the persons concerned. It becomes such a strong devotion that nothing can shake it from its foundations.

Pulling together is what counts, too. In prosperous times it is easy to be a good helpmate, for there is no test, but adversity often makes couples forget their marriage vows, "for better or for worse." When trouble strikes, character and courage count more than ever. Unfortunately, not everyone can 'take it."

With the new year just starting, and not knowing what lies ahead in the coming year, why don't all of you married couples resolve to be the sweethearts you were during courtship and honeymoon days? You were considerate, thoughtful, kind, companionable then, so why not now? Why not forgive and forget past differences, and start anew?

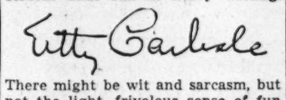
Your Handwriting

BY SHIRLEY SPENCER.

In the handwriting of Kitty Carlisle we find the light, airy strokes that reveal gayety and humor. One seldom finds fun in heavy writing.



There might be wit and sarcasm, but not the light, frivolous sense of fun which we find in writing which flits over the page with a hop, skip, and curving strokes that mirror the upturned mouth and crinkled eye lines of a merry laugh. Look at the "K" and "C." Aren't they laughing!

In the light and buoyant writing of Miss Carlisle I do find one trait which must cause her a little trouble sometimes. It's procrastination as shown by the way her t-bars do not cross the stem of the "t." It just never gets across any of the "t's" in the body of her writing, but in her signature, altho light, it does get over.

Sometimes fatigue will show up this way, warning us that we have used up our reserve strength and need rest. How about it, Miss Carlisle?

For Handwriting Analysis send 10 cents (in coin) and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, together with a sample of handwriting, to Shirley Spencer, Box 116, General Postoffice, New York City. IMPORTANT: Write 25 words and signature in ink.

Perhaps the greatest single fault of countless players is that they give their opponents credit for clairvoyance. Note today's hand:

South, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

NORTH

SOUTH

♣ Q J 7

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	2 spades	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	4 hearts	Pass
6 hearts	Pass	Pass	Pass

North's two spade take-out was completely unwarranted. He was short at least a full honor trick for his force.

West, unfortunately for himself, had a difficult guess to make on the opening lead and guessed wrong, opening a low diamond. Obviously, a club lead would have defeated the slam on the spot. As it was, dummy's diamond ace won, and declarer saw that his best chance lay in establishing spade tricks upon which to discard his club losers. Naturally, one discard would do no good. Hence, he did not give away the spade situation by cashing the ace. Instead, he led a low spade from dummy. East jumped up with his king as tho it were a certain trick. Declarer ruffed high, and led a low trump to the nine. He cashed the ace and queen of spades, discarding clubs and, when West's jack fell, continued with the spade ten, discarding his last club. East ruffed the next spade and declarer overruffed. A low diamond then was led and ruffed, and dummy's last spade was led. East again ruffed and was overruffed. Declarer then ruffed the jack of diamonds with dummy's heart ten and, reëntering his hand with a club ruff, drew East's eight of trump, and spread the hand.

East's play of the spade king at the second trick was horrible beyond words. Perhaps he thought that declarer was attempting to steal a trick by leading to a singleton jack in his own hand, but such a thought was not worthy of consideration. East should have reasoned that if declarer had the spade jack it would have been completely normal, in fact inevitable, for him either to finesse toward dummy or to lay down the spade ace and then lead the queen thru East. Declarer could not know where the spade king was [East had not doubled nor in any other way indicated possession of that card] and therefore the play that East feared declarer was making would have been without rhyme or reason.

25TH SILVER SKATES DERBIES OPEN TODAY

BECKWITH DEFEATS MAXIN; ROBINSON STOPS ZIVIC

Nick Castiglione Is Beaten by Teaney.

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Joe Maxin's inability to elude Booker Beckwith's right hand cost him his first decision in nine appearances in a 10 round bout last night in the Coliseum.

The Gary lightweight scored with this blow shortly after the first round opened and Maxin showed its power by falling into a clinch until the bell sounded.

The dynamite Beckwith carries in this hand was demonstrated again in the third, when he drove it to Joe's jaw with a resounding smash. It dropped the Cleveland youngster for no count.

Booker displayed the effect of his right for the third time in the fourth. He was losing this round until a few seconds before it ended. He then swung two rights which landed behind Joe's left ear. This caused Maxin to flounder and for a second it looked as if he might fall.

Booker Connects Again.

In the sixth, seventh, and eighth Maxin gave Booker a boxing lesson, but this rally was spoiled about a minute before the eighth ended by that devastating right. It landed twice, the first one sending Joe flying into the ropes and the second nearly flooring him for the count.

Maxin rallied in the ninth and in the tenth he held his own. As a result the spectators greeted the unanimous verdict with a round of boos. The referee was John Behr and the judges were Livingston Osborne and Harold Marovitz.

Beckwith in his first start since his defeat at the hands of Bob Pastor last Nov. 7, scored his 18th victory in 19 fights. It strengthened his position as No. 3, 175 pound challenger.

Promoter Ross Miller said he may match Joe, who is the 1940 Chicagoland Golden Gloves middleweight champion, with Booker again in the same arena, Jan. 30.

Teaney Whips Castiglione.

Harry Teaney, 1936 Cleveland sectional Golden Gloves lightweight runner-up, defeated Nick Castiglione of the west side in a spirited 10 round fight which preceded the Beckwith-Maxin bout. Castiglione had a record of four straight victories. Teaney, however, proved his recent triumphs over Eddie Lander and Tommy Spiegel were not flukes.

Altho the decision of Referee Frank McAdams and Judges William O'Connell and F. L. Jackson was unanimous, the verdict was in doubt until Announcer Harry Creighton raised Teaney's arm. In the second round both men hit the canvas within a fraction of a second of each other, the result of rights to the chin.

A crowd of 4,554 saw the show, the first major card of the year. Gross receipts were $10,624, but the net gate was only $7,481, a sum about $1,000 less than promoter Miller needed to break even.

REFEREE HALTS BOUT

New York, Jan. 16 (AP).—Ray Robinson, Harlem Negro slugger, stopped the veteran Fritzie Zivic in 10 rounds in Madison Square Garden tonight and with it won a shot at the welterweight championship. Robinson weighed 141¾ pounds, Zivic 148.

After dropping the ex-champion with a long overhand right hand smash late in the ninth session, Robinson came back to floor the Pittsburgher with a two fisted explosion early in the 10th.

Zivic was trying to get to his feet as the count reached six, but Referee Arthur Donovan called a halt and awarded the Harlem boy a technical knockout triumph at 31 seconds of the 10th round. The bout was scheduled to go 12 rounds.

A round of boos greeted this abrupt finish to what had been a sizzling, slugging battle. Robinson took five of the nine completed rounds, while Zivic earned three and one was even.

Zivic Appears Unhurt.

Zivic did not appear to be badly hurt when the bout was over. He walked back to his corner without help and, once there, was near tears over what was only the second time he had been stopped in a career of more than 10 years of bashing beaks.

"When I was giving Henry Armstrong a lot worse licking a year ago," he shouted, "Donovan didn't stop the fight so quickly. Why do it now?"

For Robinson, it was the 27th straight triumph, the 21st via the knockout route, in a professional career that began a year ago last fall after he had won the New York Golden Gloves lightweight title.

Maxin Goes Down—But Not Out

Booker Beckwith drops Joe Maxin for no count in the third round of their bout in the Coliseum last night. It was the only knockdown of the fight, which went to Beckwith on a decision in 10 rounds.

New Inroads by Pros Menace Future of Amateur Tennis

BY WILLIAM FAY.

That's a sad story about the farmer who locked his barn door after the horse was stolen. But consider the plight of the United States Lawn Tennis association, which will hold its annual meeting today in New York City. The USLTA doesn't have a barn door to lock. In a few more days the USLTA may not even have a barn.

Once the USLTA owned as fine a string of tennis colts as you'd want to see. There was a sorrel named Don Budge who could outrun them all and there were a couple of juveniles named Bobby Riggs and Frank Kovacs who'd be heard from some day.

You're hearing about all three of them now—Budge and Riggs and Kovacs, and they're playing professional tennis. And yet USLTA President Holcombe Ward will go before his constituents today on the platform that "amateur tournaments will not be thrown open to professionals on any pretext."

Times Have Changed.

All of which brought on the barn door analogy. There was a time—three or four years ago—when the pros were clamoring for "open tournament" competition with the amateurs. If Mr. Ward has heard any such clamor recently, that was an echo.

Now it's the other way 'round. The pros don't want to play with the amateurs, because the amateurs can't provide enough competition to draw fans, and their money, to the box-office.

And before spring the USLTA will not have any amateurs to send against the pros, even if amateur tournaments are thrown open.

Let's Look at the Record.

Let's look at the first 10 ranking amateurs of 1941: Riggs [No. 1] and Kovacs [No. 2] have turned professional. Wayne Sabin [No. 6] and Gardnar Mulloy [No. 7] said last week in Miami, Fla., that they will turn pro within a few days. Bryan Grant [No. 8] has joined the United States navy. Don McNeill [No. 4] intends to follow Grant's example when he returns from a South American tour.

Which leaves the USLTA just Frank Parker [No. 3], Frank Schroeder [No. 5], Jack Kramer [No. 9], and Bill Talbert [No. 10] with which to set up shop in the springtime.

Parker and Talbert have no box-office appeal, so the profesional promoters probably will let the USLTA keep them both. But Schroeder and Kramer are the national doubles champions, and what do you suppose will happen when the pros make Schroeder and Kramer an offer, not a USLTA offer of silver cups but a pro offer in United States currency?

Pros Are in Charge Now.

The offer will be forthcoming. The pros are in the tennis saddle. They have all the leading singles players under contract, but they need an outstanding doubles team to challenge Budge and Fred Perry who have proved too strong for Kovacs and Riggs in doubles, altho not in singles competition.

And when the pros get Sabin, Mulloy and Schroeder, and when they call in Bruce Barnes, Bill Tilden, Karel Kozeluh, Johnny Faunce, Keith Gledhill, Lester Stoefen and Dick Skeen, they will have a monopoly on American tennis talent.

Plenty of Tennis—All Pros.

There will be plenty of tennis next summer, but it will be professional tennis, and it will be scattered thruout the country—not localized on the eastern seaboard as it has been for years by the selfish legislation of the USLTA which is dominated by eastern officials. The pros will get the crowds, too, for projected nation-wide tours will benefit service organizations.

When Holcombe Ward declared that amateur tournaments would not be thrown open to professionals on any pretext, he was more right than he knew, altho it would be more correct to say that professional tournaments will not be thrown open to amateurs, because there won't be any amateurs left once the professional promoters unsheath their fountain pens and write out a few more contracts.

Fight Decisions

At Coliseum—Booker Beckwith beat Joe Maxin [10]; Harry Teaney beat Nick Castiglione [10]; Matt Dougherty and Robert Earl drew [6]; Jackie Nichols beat Johnny Gaudes [6]; Frank Pintero beat Johnny Williams [4].

At New York—Ray Robinson knocked out Fritzie Zivic [10]; Maxie Shapiro beat Sal Bartolo [8]; Willie Pep beat Sammy Farrotto [4]; Carlos Malacara beat Harry Hurst [8].

At Worcester, Mass.—Aldo Spoldi beat Leo Dulmaine [10].

At Boston, Mass.—Henry Chmielewski beat Frankie Nelson [10].

Veteran Golf Pros Open Fort Myers Tourney Today

Fort Myers, Fla., Jan. 16 (AP).—The golf pros who have passed the 50 year mark will tee off in the annual Professional Golfers association tournament starting tomorrow. It is a 36 hole medal play event, with 18 holes tomorrow and 18 Sunday. Among the entrants are Jock Hutchison, Eddie Williams, Alec Cunningham, and Bill Gordon of Chicago.

MAJORS PREPARE TO STEP UP NIGHT GAME SCHEDULE

President Gives Landis 'Go Ahead' Signal.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Big and little baseball officials, who had been moving cautiously with 1942 plans because of the Hitler-Hirohito complication, adopted a business as usual attitude yesterday following the flashing of the green light in Washington by President Roosevelt.

In a letter to Commissioner K. M. Landis, the chief executive, expressing himself personally, declared the game should continue, despite the pressure of war. Further, the president pointed out that the need of recreation will be so great that he hoped the night game program could be extended.

So the major league magnates, with whom the number of night games has been a touchy subject for several years, hardly can avoid reopening the argument and possibly relaxing present restrictions when they meet in New York early next month.

Calls Game Defense Asset.

Mr. Roosevelt's letter, written in reply to an inquiry from Commissioner Landis about the advisability of continuing, pictured baseball as a defense asset even tho its standard might temporarily be lowered by the summoning of some of the outstanding stars to the armed forces.

"Everybody will be working longer hours and harder than ever before and that means they ought to have a chance for recreation and for taking their minds off their work even more than before," wrote the President.

President Roosevelt logically concluded with a statement that if five or six thousand players can furnish recreation for at least 20 million people, the game is thoroly worthwhile.

A Break for the Browns.

The letter, which brought from Landis, who is in Florida, a statement that "I hope our performance will be such as to justify the President's faith," was the equivalent of a bank loan at no interest for Donald Barnes, president and controling stockholder of the St. Louis Browns.

Early in the week, Barnes, leader in the struggle for 14 instead of seven night games, revealed that the club had lost $100,000 last season, making a half million dollar deficit in five years.

Barnes intimated that the club might not be able to operate next season, hinting at the same time that proper arrangements might be made if his fellow magnates would forget the idea that more than seven electric light attractions would ruin the market. The American league immediately called a special meeting for Feb. 2 in New York. The National will meet there the following day.

Griffith Plans Action.

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club, after reading the letter from the White House, said that he would introduce a 14 night game resolution at the New York meeting. President Alva Bradley of the Cleveland Indians, who has been a seven game voter, admitted that, in view of the Roosevelt expression, he might change his mind.

Will Harridge, American league president, when shown a copy of the letter by Leslie O'Connor, secretary treasurer of baseball, said: "The President's letter confirms the conviction held by all baseball men that the national pastime has a definite place in the welfare of our country, particularly during times of stress."

Expressions of satisfaction came from Mrs. Grace Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, Harry Grabiner, club vice president, and from James Gallagher, general manager of the Cubs.

MINORS ARE PLEASED.

Durham, N. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—President Roosevelt's urge that professional baseball be continued during the war will relieve apprehension in minor leagues, President W. G. Bramham of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues said today.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

[While Arch Ward is on vacation the Wake of the News is being conducted by members of the sports staff.]

WHILE the University of Chicago baseball team was touring the orient in 1920, the boys checked their roster and found it included five members of the Maroon basketball squad which had just won the Western conference championship. . . . The quintet comprised Fritz Crisler, now football coach at Michigan; Ted Curtiss, Big Ten football official; Tony Hinkle, director of athletics at Butler university; Bob Halliday, and Clarence Vollmer. . . . Just to see if they could still hit the hoop, the five challenged the champions of Japan and beat them, 84 to 0. . . . William Woodin, bowler in the Republic Steel league of Chicago, rolled three identical 169 games the other night. . . . His average at the time was 169, which is running to form in any sport. . . . The Purdue basketball team has made 60 or more points in a single conference game eight times in the last 21 years. . . . The total for all Big Ten quintets is 13 times. . . . During his visit to New Orleans for the Sugar bowl game, Clark Shaughnessy stopped at the home of Dr. Edmund Faust, his first quarter back at Tulane university in 1915. . . . Football fans in New Orleans admit that Bob Westfall, who starred in the East-West game, is the greatest running back ever to invade the deep south. . . . Bob Saggau, former Notre Dame half back, who was inducted into the naval air corps between halves of the 1941 All-Star football game in Soldiers' field, made his first solo flight at Glenview airport Thursday. . . .

The Trenton [N. J.] club of the Interstate league will do its spring training on its home lot. . . . Bill Killefer will receive a salary of $6,000 as coach of the Phillies with a bonus clause calling for $1,000 additional for each notch the club finishes above eighth place. . . . Most eastern observers are convinced that Bill's wage will be exactly $6,000. . . . The average elapsed time for games in the Pacific Coast conference in 1941 was 2 hours 24 minutes. . . . Which is from 5 to 10 minutes shorter than prior to the free substitution rule. . . . Mary Jurges, wife of Bill, the Giant shortstop, is leading in the match women's bowling leagues in Nassau county, New York, with a 180 average. . . . Rogers Hornsby has made an estimated $565,000 during his long diamond career. . . . With the retirement of Lefty Grove, the Red Sox are sure of only one southpaw pitcher, Oscar Judd, for the 1942 season. . . . Earl Johnson, another portsider was caught in the draft. . . . Ted Williams, an inveterate hunter, swings a shotgun with the abandon that marks his work with a bat, which makes life interesting for his companions.

Northwestern and Wisconsin Clash Tonight

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Northwestern's basketball team, which slipped from first place in the Western conference race Monday night when defeated by Michigan, will meet Wisconsin tonight at 8:15 o'clock in the first game of the double header in Chicago Stadium. While the Wildcats naturally will be considered as favorites, a revised Badger quintet that walloped Chicago Monday evening may be ready to continue the parade of upsets that swept three leaders from the first place tie.

Illinois is in front with three victories and, since the Illini meet Chicago this evening, there is probably no opportunity for any of the second place teams—Northwestern, Iowa, or Minnesota—to catch up. Purdue, another of the second place group, is not scheduled.

Scoring Leaders Meet.

Much has been made of the meeting tonight in the Stadium of Northwestern's Otto Graham and Wisconsin's John Kotz, who respectively are one, two in the individual scoring race. Graham was held to seven points by Michigan and to the same number of points in the defeat by Great Lakes Wednesday night.

Coach Dutch Lonborg of Northwestern hopes to be able to use Bud Hasse at center for a while this evening. If Hasse has regained his strength after illness from an infection, he undoubtedly will help the attack. Russ Wendland, who scored seven times from the field against Great Lakes, and Capt. Henry Clason need another average scorer to round out the offense from the back court.

Badgers Are Rebuilding.

Wisconsin is defending Big Ten champion but loss of key men from the 1941 team, including Gene Eng-

GOPHERS, BIG 10 SHOUT PRAISES OF MAJ. BIERMAN

Bernie's Farewell Dinner Is Gala Event.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 16 (AP).—Minnesota's 1941 football activities officially closed tonight when Coach Bernie Bierman and his staff were honored at a testimonial dinner.

Bernie Bierman.

But before the crowd finished with the ceremony they spiced it with a strong farewell flavor for Bierman and converted the event into a tumultuous double header victory gesture.

They stuffed Bierman's pockets with $1,000 in defense bonds and a few hours after the dinner escorted him to a train bound for Quantico, Va., for war service. Bierman, a first World war veteran, is a major in the marine reserves.

He'll Miss Basketball Game.

The advanced time of departure meant another wartime sacrifice to Minnesota fans, who will pack the big fieldhouse at tomorrow night's Minnesota-Michigan basketball game, since Bierman thus will be unable to accept the Dr. H. L. Williams torphy, emblematic of the 1941 national football championship.

The award is being made for the first time by the University of Minnesota "M" club to the team rated as national champion on the basis of the Associated Press sports writers' poll. The trophy is named for the late Dr. H. L. Williams, who, incidentally, taught Bierman his football.

Rivals Praise Bernie.

The speakers capitalized to the extreme on the football motif tonight. Harry Stuhldreher, Wisconsin head coach, said he regretted it took a war to obtain "my first break in the Big Ten." Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern coach, recommended the baffling sleeper play that beat the Wildcats last fall for the final victory strategy, and Indiana's Bo McMillin drawled that Indiana "feels it is safe to return to Minnesota next year now that we may have a one to ten chance to win a game."

FOUR CLASSES HOLD TRIALS IN GARFIELD PARK

Eight Final Races Set for Tomorrow.

Skate Facts

EVENT—Twenty-fifth Silver Skates Derbies sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

PLACE—Garfield park, west lagoon, Washington boulevard and Hamlin avenue.

PROGRAM—Qualifying races in four age divisions—boys' midget, boys' juvenile, boys' junior, and girls' junior.

CONTESTANTS—1,925 in four age classes.

INSTRUCTIONS—All competitors in these Derbies report between 11 a. m. and 1 p. m. in boathouse for racing numbers.

FIRST RACE—2 o'clock.

TRANSPORTATION — Buses, Washington boulevard No. 31 to Central Park boulevard; Jackson boulevard No. 26 to same boulevard and walk north. Surface lines, Lake street and Madison street cars to Central Park boulevard or Hamlin avenue. Elevated, Lake street elevated to Hamlin avenue.

PARKING—Single lane parking along curb of Central Park boulevard, Washington boulevard, Schrader and McCrea drives.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Preliminaries in four of the Silver Skates Derbies will be held this afternoon on the west lagoon of Garfield park, Washington boulevard and Hamlin avenue.

All boys and girls under 16 years of age will report for their trials. They will receive their racing numbers from the clerks between 11 a. m. and 1 p. m. in the boathouse at Garfield park. The first of the preliminaries will start promptly at 2 o'clock.

The Derbies scheduled this afternoon are: Boys' midget, juvenile, and junior classes, and girls' juvenile class.

While temperatures have been above freezing in the daytime each night sub-freezing temperatures have maintained the ice which is 18 inches thick in many places. The trials can be held and the youngsters winning this afternoon will continue in the semi-final and championship events tomorrow.

Eight Title Events Tomorrow.

Tomorrow afternoon, before the eight title races, trials will be held in the boys' intermediate, men's senior, and girls' junior and senior classes. These contestants naturally are the more experienced skaters. They are 16 years of age or older. The Illinois Skating association, which sanctions the Silver Skates Derbies and controls speed skating in this territory, requires that all contestants 16 years of age register with the association. Many of the contestants already are registered.

Classes in today's preliminaries and the distances the youngsters will skate in the preliminaries and championships follow:

Boys' Midget	110 yards	220 yards
Boys' Juvenile	220 yards	440 yards
Boys' Junior	440 yards	Half mile
Girls' Junior	220 yards	440 yards

All contestants reporting for their preliminary races today and tomorrow will receive souvenir bronze buttons. Twenty-four pairs of skates are the prizes for the championships. The eight winners receive silver skates, and chromium and bronze skates are the awards for second and third places, respectively, in each Derby.

Winning Club Gets Trophy.

In the three longest races, the men's senior two mile championships, boys' intermediate one mile championship, and the girls' senior one mile, the skater leading each race for the largest number of laps will receive a gold medal. The Walter Eckersall memorial trophy is awarded for one year to the club scoring the greatest number of points. This trophy quite likely will be won by the Catholic Youth organization or the Northwest Skating club.

The club which has the most contestants competing in the preliminaries will get a silver trophy. Each winner of a preliminary race receives a gold medal. Two hundred and fifty prizes are given exclusive of the souvenir buttons.

Tomorrow skaters in the boys' intermediate, men's senior, girls' intermediate, and girls' senior derbies will report between 10 a. m. and noon for their racing numbers. The first preliminary starts at 1 o'clock.

CHICAGO STARS LEAD IN ARENA FIGURE SKATING

Specht and Joan Mitchell Top First Day.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

A skilful band of performers glided gracefully thru the earlier stages of the Mid-Western figure skating meet in morning, afternoon and evening sessions yesterday in the Chicago arena. Bobby Specht of Chicago, defending champion in the men's senior division, swished and spun thru designs technically known as brackets, rockers, change loops and change double threes. He did it so well that he was conceded a slight margin over his most dangerous rivals in the unofficial figures.

The competition was so close, however, that the five judges were by no means in agreement on this matter. Two St. Paul skaters, Robert Premer and Arthur F. Preusch, were pressing him closely in the complicated system of point-making. Robert Uppgren, Bruce Sheffer, and Walter Sahlin, other contenders in this division, also made a strong showing.

Women's Event Close.

In the women's senior division, five were only fractions of a point apart. These were Joen Mitchell of Chicago, runnerup in last season's Mid-Western meet, Barbara Raymond, her teammate from the Figure Skating club of Chicago, and three girls from the Minneapolis-St. Paul area—Mary Louise Premer, Marjorie Newell, and Jeanette Ahrens.

Eleven year old Jean Pierre Brunet Jr. and his partner, 9 year old Donna Jean Pospisil, drew enthusiastic applause by their performance in junior pair skating, in which they took first prize. A Chicago brother and sister team, Jack and Mary Burke, was awarded second place.

Young Jean is a son of Jean Brunet and the former Andree Joly, who were Olympic pair skating champions in 1928 and 1932. The elder Brunets are now professional instructors in Cleveland. Donna has taken up ice skating only in the last year. Previously she has won championships in roller skating meets. She also is studying acrobatic dancing. She and Jean now team up in these two activities as well as in ice skating.

Meet Continues Today.

The meet will be concluded with performances from 8 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. today and from 5:45 to 8:30 this evening.

Two Cleveland boys and a Detroiter drew the best rating in the men's junior event. These were Michael McGean and Warren Headlow, both of Cleveland and Carl Mathews of Detroit.

Madelon Olson and Margaret Grant, both of St. Paul, earned first and second place, respectively, in the unofficial placing in the ladies' junior division. Mary Frances Greschke of Detroit and Bonita Paterson of Champaign were similarly placed in the ladies' novice class.

Champion of St. Rita Seeks Golden Gloves

John J. Dineen, 17 year old senior from St. Rita High school, who won the school welterweight boxing championship last year, altho he has had only five intramural bouts, is ready to seek a Golden Gloves crown. This is his first tournament outside of school competition.

Dineen will compete in the south side Golden Gloves tournament which opens Jan. 26 in the St. Sabina gymnasium, 78th place and Racine avenue. He has been requested to report for physical examination next Tuesday evening in George Trafton's gymnasium, 180 West Randolph street.

Entries Close Wednesday.

The first examination for the two Chicago tournaments will be held in the CYO gymnasium Monday evening. The final examination is scheduled for next Friday evening at Trafton's gymnasium. Entries close Wednesday at midnight.

Both novice and open division boxers will compete at St. Sabina and at Loyola university. The north side tournament will be held Jan. 28, 29, and 30.

Young Dineen is taking a commercial course at St. Rita. He has had instruction from Lamar A. Green and Leo F. Deutsch, coaches of the St. Rita boxers. John can bring his own rooting section, if he wishes, since he is the youngest in the family. He has two brothers and three sisters. He comes from a military family. His father, an investigator in the election commissioner's office, was a captain in the 108th ammunition train in World war 1.

Brother in Army.

John's brother-in-law is a technical sergeant in the 106th cavalry at Camp Livingston, La. Young Dineen's ambition is to attend the United States Military academy at West Point.

If he is unable to enter he may attend the University of Chicago. He would be eligible for a scholarship because of his father's military service.

A City and a Sports Department

(The Tribune Grows Up with Chicago)

[This is the fourteenth of a series of articles on the highlights of the development of sports in Chicago, with especial reference to the part the Tribune sports department played in reporting them, from pre-Civil war days to the present time.]

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

THE career of boxing in Chicago from the two extremes of the Gans-McGovern fake fight in Tattersall's in 1900 and the first Golden Gloves tournament in 1928 represents one of the most exciting chapters in the history of any sport. Despite the low punch dealt on that long gone December evening when Gans, his manager and a band of gamblers conspired to throw the bout against McGovern, Chicago fans managed, thru a series of vicissitudes, to enjoy their favorite pastime.

Frequently they had to go elsewhere to see bouts, but they did, whether it was Milwaukee, Racine, Kenosha, Aurora, Michigan City, or East Chicago. Occasionally, injunctions enabled them to witness fights for the cost of a street car ride. And, for a spell, there was that unique organization known as the Portable A. C., a floating apparatus operated by the ingenious Samuel Wolff, who never was certain until the last minute as to where he would present his shows. It might be the Hawthorne race track, or it might be a lodge hall on a side street.

Chicago Always Had Its Share of Champions.

Chicago never was barren in the production of champions and near champions. There was Jimmy Barry, still living at the age of 72, who knocked out Casper Leon in 1894 at Lemont, Ill. Jimmy retired undefeated bantamweight titleholder, after an excursion to England in 1897 to meet the recognized British champ, Walter Croot. The latter sank to the floor in the 20th round, and died shortly after. Barry, who was immediately exonerated, returned to this country and retired in 1899.

The saga of Tattersall's is chock full of the names of Chicagoans who gained national fame there. Among them are Harry Forbes, Benny Yanger, and the Fighting Motorman, Tommy Mowatt. The last named, who used to jockey a Cottage Grove avenue car, was Yanger's mysterious opponent, following Benny's startling victory over the clever Forbes. Mowatt, who used to while away the hours between runs by fighting in back rooms, was an unknown to the regulars, since his backers refused to state his identity until the night of the fight, July 4, 1900.

Johnny Coulon Arrives on Scene in 1910.

George Siler, TRIBUNE boxing writer, refereed and reported the bout. Thru the sixth and last round, the count of knockdowns was lost, so frequent were they, but it was plain that the Motorman was handing Yanger a beating. A last minute right by Yanger saved the day for him. Mowatt, completely out, would have been saved by the bell, but his second, Eddie Santry, threw in the towel, and Siler ruled it a knockout victory for Yanger.

In 1910, Johnny Coulon came along to give Chicago another world's bantamweight championship. Johnny, who is still quite active in local boxing, fought most of his bouts elsewhere. Other great little men who will be immediately recalled by Chicagoans included such diligent featherweights as Bud Taylor, Tony Canzoneri, Earl Mastro, and Joey Sangor. Chicago produced two of the most brilliant lightweights of them all in Packey McFarland and Oscar [Battling] Nelson. Jimmy Clabby, who resided in Hammond, Ind., for many years before his death, was welterweight champion some years before the advent of Private-Elect Barney Ross of the United States marines.

There Have Been Many Very Good Welterweights.

Mention of welterweights brings up the names of Jackie Fields of Chicago's west side and Young Jack Thompson, who fought in the Coliseum on March 25, 1929. In the eighth round a balcony argument started among rival partisans of each fighter, resulting in a riot that cost the life of one spectator. Newspaper men, including Walter Eckersall, were forced to climb under the ring, which swarmed with spectators while Fields and Thompson kept punching. The fight finally was resumed, and Fields won the decision. Later he won the welterweight title from Vince Dundee.

Most indefatigable promoter of them all in recent years was James C. Mullen. In the early 20's, Jim put on at Dexter Park pavilion such bouts as those between Joe Lynch and Joey Burman, and the well-remembered argument between Benny Leonard and Pinkey Mitchell, witnessed by the town's élite, who were attracted by the charity angle designed to circumvent the law. That culminated in another riot, when Richie Mitchell, brother of Pinkey, hopped into the ring and began to lambast Referee Davy Miller. Boxing again was in the doghouse, but Mullen was presently promoting other bouts in Aurora's Blue Bowl. And it was Jim who presented Chicago with its first championship fight on a legalized basis in Comiskey park, where clever Sammy Mandell took the lightweight title from Rocky Kansas on July 3, 1926.

Chicago Had Its Boxing Zanies, Too.

The sport has had its zanies in these parts, too, notably in that whimsical stretch wherein King Levinsky, the man who was later to take a seat almost too quickly upon the appearance of one Joe Louis; Arthur [The Great] Shires, of White Sox fame, and George Trafton of the old Chicago Bears, combined to furnish the ring gentry with guffaws.

The record wouldn't be thoro without mention of the late Paddy Harmon, who inspired the construction of the Chicago Stadium, current temple of Chicago indoor sport.

Came the Golden Gloves, and with them the greatest show in boxing. Out of these amateur fights originated and conducted by THE TRIBUNE have come three world's champions —Joe Louis, Barney Ross, and Tony Zale.

THIS AFTERNOON'S SCHEDULE.

2 p. m.—Cochran vs. Rubin.
3:30 p. m.—Reiselt vs. Fitzpatrick.

Ralph Greenleaf of New York dealt Joe Chamaco his first defeat in four matches and Willie Hoppe beat John Fitzpatrick of Los Angeles last night to throw the world three cushion billiard tournament in the Terrace casino at the Morrison hotel back into a tie. Greenleaf whipped Chamaco, 50 to 40, in 53 innings, and Hoppe beat Fitzpatrick, 50 to 47, in 37 innings after the west coast player had tied the count in the 36th. Hoppe and Chamaco now are deadlocked for the lead at three victories and one defeat.

Hoppe Breaks Tie.

Greenleaf led Chamaco, 26 to 23, at the intermission by virtue of a run of four in the 32d inning. He ran six in the 36th inning and five in the 46th. Fitzpatrick pulled into a tie with Hoppe after having trailed, 46 to 36. He missed in the 37th on a kiss and Hoppe then ran out. Hoppe had a high run of 8, his best of the tourney.

Art Thurnblad, the frozen-faced Chicagoan, continued to surprise the patrons by defeating Art Rubin of New York, 50 to 40, in the afternoon for his third straight triumph. He has lost twice.

Schaefer Beats Lookabaugh.

Jake Schaefer of Cleveland won his second match in five starts, defeating Earle Lookabaugh of Chicago, 50 to 43, in 52 innings. The result was never in doubt after the first innings, when Schaefer scored six, his high run for the day, and he held a 25 to 12 margin at the intermission.

CALUMET BEATS SOUTH SHORE'S QUINTET, 42-38

Captures First Place in South Section Race.

Calumet High's unbeaten senior basketball squad took undisputed possession of first place in the south section of the Public School league yesterday when it defeated South Shore, 42 to 38, in Calumet gymnasium. It was Calumet's third consecutive victory and South Shore's first defeat. Larry McEarlean starred for the Calumet seniors, scoring 13 points.

The game featured a program of four double headers in the south zone. Other senior victors were Harper, Englewood, and Hirsch. Harper, led by Harry Armbrecht, who scored 16 points, whipped Hyde Park, 40 to 34, on the Harper floor; Englewood won from Parker, 40 to 35, in Englewood gymnasium, and Hirsch triumphed over Bowen, 46 to 30. It was Bowen's third straight setback.

Hirsch's juniors, however, suffered their first defeat, losing to Bowen, 30 to 24. South Shore and Parker remained tied for the junior lead by winning their third consecutive games. Parker defeated Englewood, 53 to 36, and South Shore won from Calumet, 32 to 29. Hyde Park's juniors won their first game by defeating Harper, 28 to 26. Lineups:

LANE WINS, 52 TO 24

Lane Tech's seniors now are tied for the north section lead in the Public School league. The North Siders yesterday routed Waller, 52 to 24, in Lane gymnasium for their third straight triumph. Timbul Thomas and Sam Vukovich were the leaders in the Lane Tech attack, the former making 12 points and Vukovich 11.

Bob Possehl, Steinmetz baseball and basketball star, led the senior quintet to a 31 to 26 victory over Lake View in another north division game. Possehl, center, contributed six field goals. It was the first victory for Steinmetz and Lake View's second defeat.

Waller's juniors moved into a first place tie with Roosevelt by conquering Lane Tech, 45 to 34. In the other junior contest Lake View won from Steinmetz, 25 to 20. It was the first setback of the league season for Steinmetz. Lineups:

Leo Defeats De La Salle in Double Header

Leo High, defending Catholic league senior champion, continued its march toward the south section championship last night by defeating De La Salle, 41 to 38, in De La Salle gymnasium. De La Salle held an 8 to 6 advantage at the end of the first period, 18 to 16 at the half, and 33 to 31 at the third quarter. However, 10 points in the final period gave Leo victory.

Jim O'Halloran led the Lions' attack with 10 field goals and four free throws. Babe Baranowski contributed two baskets and one free throw. The Leo juniors, also defending title holders, also triumphed, whipping De La Salle, 41 to 34.

St. George and St. Ignatius were two other senior victors. St. George defeated Catholic High of Joliet, 43 to 40, and St. Ignatius won from Fenwick, 30 to 21. Lineups:

LUTHER TRIUMPHS

Marshall Schiewe and Al Pahr yesterday led Luther institute to its third straight Private School league victory in Luther gymnasium. Luther disposed of Francis Parker, 29 to 28. Schiewe scored 11 points and Pahr contributed four field goals.

Christian High also scored a senior league victory by defeating Concordia, 48 to 41, in overtime. Christian led, 20 to 9, at the end of the first half, but trailed, 38 to 36, with a few seconds remaining in the game. The score was tied when Corkey De Horn scored a field goal. Christian then scored ten points in the extra period. Lineups:

MAROON GUARD ILL

The University of Chicago's hopes of making a good showing against Illinois in Champaign this evening suffered a blow when it was announced that Bob Oakley, sophomore guard, probably will be unable to play because of influenza. Oakley also may miss the contest with Minnesota on the Midway Monday.

Coach Nels Norgren will substitute the veteran Jim Crosbie for Oakley.

Herb Matter, Illinois sophomore from Naperville, who has not played this season because of foot trouble, may get an opportunity against Chicago. Matter has been drilled as a reserve for Ken Menke, who has an injured hip. Lineups:

Oak Park Is Whipped by Morton, 44-31

Morton High's heavyweight quintet last night scored its sixth consecutive victory in the Suburban league by defeating Oak Park, 44 to 31, in Cicero. Ray Leitner, center, was the individual star, scoring seven field goals and four free throws. Ches Strumillo was runner-up with four baskets.

Evanston and Waukegan won two other league heavyweight engagements. Evanston won from New Trier, 46 to 32, and Waukegan routed Proviso, 39 to 26. Lineups:

LAND VALUATION FIGURE ASSAILED AT FRAUD TRIAL

Misleading, Witness Tells Federal Jury.

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

A 110 million dollar valuation placed upon Mexican timber lands of Resources Corporation International was theoretical and misleading, it was testified yesterday in the trial of nine officers and associates of the company before Judge Michael L. Igoe and a jury in federal District court.

Arnold Joerns, former R. C. I. president and one of defendants.

The nine are charged with mail fraud, violation of the securities and exchange act, and conspiracy. The testimony was given by John W. McCurdy, director of the James D. Lacey company, 231 South La Salle street.

McCurdy said he had protested repeatedly against the corporation's use of a report on its holdings, prepared by William D. Durland of New Orleans, who in 1931 was an officer of the Lacey company, timber appraisers, and now is one of the nine defendants.

Defense Attorneys Clash.

McCurdy's testimony precipitated a series of clashes between Durland's attorney, Joseph E. Struett, and counsel for the eight others on trial. For a time the court was treated to the spectacle of one defense attorney objecting to and interrupting questions put by another defense counsel. The government's efforts to introduce letters exchanged by Durland and another Lacey agent widened the rift.

McCurdy testified that on Aug. 20, 1931, Durland had told him a good contract could be made with Harper S. Hoover, promoter of R. C. I.—now dead—and his associates for a cruise of Mexican timberlands.

He sent Durland to consult the Lacey company attorney. In November of that year, McCurdy said, Durland returned with a contract that had been drawn and stated a copy had been sent to Bruce L. Hoover, another of the defendants.

Disturbed by Estimates.

The witness said he was disturbed to see that Durland's report placed stumpage realization prospects at between 110 and 112 million dollars.

[Stumpage realization is a term used by lumber operators. It is the margin between the cost of finished lumber and the cost of cutting, hauling, and finishing. It does not take into account the investment in land and stands of timber, lumber experts assert. Further, the operator need not figure his finished product as sawed boards; he can envision it as furniture, for example, and thus figure stumpage realization still higher.]

"I asked Durland how he arrived at such a figure," McCurdy testified. "I told him the figure certainly would be used for stock selling purposes and that it would be misunderstood by the investors.

"We had been making appraisals and reports for bond houses for 50 years, but never on a stumpage basis; it was always on a factual market value basis."

Defends His Figures.

Durland replied, McCurdy continued, that he was sure of his figures, which were based on long term expectancy, and further, that Hoover had assured him the report would be used merely to qualify the stock with blue sky and securities commissions of various states.

McCurdy next saw Durland, he said, when Hoover sent him to inquire why McCurdy was "peeved" over promotion activities of R. C. I. This was in 1936, he said.

"I told Durland I didn't want R. C. I. circulating pamphlets in public, using the Lacey name and the 110 million dollar figure," McCurdy said. "They were calling our report an 'appraisal,' which it was not at all. Durland then arranged a luncheon at the Union League club between me and Arnold Joerns [former president of R. C. I. and one of the defendants].

Tells of Changing Words.

"At that luncheon I requested that the word 'appraisal' be removed from the pamphlet wherever it appeared and Joerns agreed to remove it. I told Joerns people would misunderstand the term stumpage realization and asked that it be changed. He said he would change it. Joerns declined to make another suggested change, stating it was unnecessary in view of the previous qualifications."

Those on trial in addition to Durland, Bruce Hoover, and Joerns, are W. L. Kellogg, a former president; George E. Howard of San Antonio, Tex.; Attorney Leonard L. Cowan, 10 South La Salle street; Ray Solwell, auditor; J. J. Jennings, Detroit stock broker, and F. A. Hofheins, a cutting contractor. H. S. Hoover is named in the indictment as a co-conspirator.

Americans Will Smoke 6 Billion Cigars in '42

Americans will smoke more than 6 billion cigars this year, H. W. McHose, acting director of the Cigar Institute of America, reported yesterday to the National Association of Tobacco Distributors in the Palmer House. The association's 10th convention will close today. "In wartime men smoke more cigars," McHose asserted. "Cigar consumption is at the highest level in 11 years."

Lumber Production Rises, but Runs Below Year Ago

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—The National Lumber Manufacturers association reported today that lumber production for the week ended Jan. 10 totaled 192,866,000 feet, 32 per cent above the preceding week, and 14 per cent less than the corresponding week a year ago. Shipments aggregated 210,969,000 feet, up 5 per cent for the week, and down 14 per cent from last year.

PEOPLE AND EVENTS

Malcolm R. MacDonald, Chicago district manager of the priorities field service, OPM, will address members and guests of the American Society of Engineers Management Division Friday evening at the Medinah club. MacDonald will give a general outline of the priorities system and will conduct a question-answer period at the close of his address.

Col. Willard Chevalier, vice president of the McGraw-Hill Publishing company and editor of Business Week, will discuss the effect of war on industry at a dinner meeting of the Illinois Manufacturers Costs association Tuesday evening at the La Salle hotel.

HOLD FURNITURE INDUSTRY ABLE TO HELP IN WAR

Will Make Laminated Wood for Planes.

Joint studies by government officials and representatives of the furniture industry within the last several days have disclosed that more than the previously estimated 27 per cent of the industry's facilities can be devoted to war production, Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the American Furniture Mart said yesterday.

"It has been found that more of the industry can be utilized for the manufacture of laminated wood [wood pressed into thin layers] to be used in the production of aircraft," Whiting said. "This would include the manufacture of fuselages, propellers, and other vital parts."

Price Increase Unlikely.

Whiting said the government and manufacturers are going ahead with more plans for adjusting the furniture industry as much as possible to production of war materials.

He told representatives at the National Furniture and Home Furnishings show in the mart that there probably will be no price increases in furniture for the first six months of the year, and little likelihood of any after that period.

"Having been designated by the government as the nation's No. 1 consumer goods industry, the furniture and home furnishings industry is set to go ahead in supplying the public's needs," Whiting declared.

Predicts Rising Latin Trade.

"The market which closes tomorrow finds the industry in balance and well able to care for both national defense needs and civilian requirements. Trade with Latin American countries is certain to increase, also," Whiting said.

Reports from many exhibitors at the show reveal that both sales and attendance are about normal, it was said. Registration of buyers thru yesterday was estimated at 10,750, less than last year's total. The total number of manufacturers represented has not declined, it was said.

EASTMAN NAMES WATERWAY CHIEF FOR WAR TRAFFIC

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—Joseph B. Eastman, defense transportation director, today established a division of inland waterway transport, headed by Edward Clemens of St. Louis, Mo.

Clemens entered railroad service with the Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis in 1901 and served in various positions with that company until 1936 when he became vice president of the Mississippi Valley Barge Line company, a position he still holds.

Eastman also announced appointment of Henry F. McCarthy as associate director of the division of traffic movement. He had been passenger traffic manager of the Boston and Maine railroad since 1933.

CHICAGO MILK PAYMENT FOR DECEMBER DIPS

Milk producers in the Chicago federal milk marketing area will receive a blended price of $2.60 per hundredweight [46.5 quarts] for all milk delivered during December, A. W. Colebank, acting marketing administrator, announced yesterday.

This price is 5 cents less than the November price, and 66 cents more than the blended price for December, 1940.

The amount of milk reported by handlers for December showed an increase for the first time since May. A total of 176,861,040 pounds was delivered last month compared with 159,807,564 in November.

WAR INSPIRED WAVE OF BUYING SETS NEW RETAIL SALES RECORD

New York, Jan. 16 (AP).—Biggest dollar volume of retail sales for this time of year in history was experienced by the nation's stores this week as consumers rushed to stock their homes with needed goods for fear of higher prices, shortages, and new taxes later, merchants said today. Dun & Bradstreet reported sales averaged 13 to 20 per cent above a year ago for the country as a whole.

"Retail trade had more of the character of fall than of January," the credit agency said. "The first month ordinarily is one of the dullest months of the year. But helped along not only by clearances and special sales but also by consumers' stock-up purchasing in some lines, dollar trade averaged the best for the period on record. In many instances retailers found evidence of an anticipatory buying movement comparable to that of last August.

"Department stores and specialty shops which had an important share in the 'shortage' buying were doing better than average in sales results. Wool and rubber goods accounted for substantial sales volume."

DECEMBER RAIL INCOME SHOWS 23 PCT. INCREASE

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday that preliminary figures from 87 class 1 railroads representing 82.7 per cent of total railroad revenues showed an aggregate operating income of $390,305,161 in December, an increase of 23.6 per cent over the $315,685,275 reported by the same roads in the 1940 month.

Freight revenues of these 87 companies in December amounted to $317,006,193, compared with $253,753,130 in the preceding year, an increase of 24.9 per cent. Passenger revenue for December was $44,093,310, against $34,648,997, an increase of 27.3 per cent, the association stated.

NEW 3 MILLION SUIT FILED IN BALL RAIL CASE

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 16 (AP).—Another damage suit, this one for 3 million dollars, was brought today against George A. Ball, millionaire Muncie industrialist, in connection with his disposal of the railroad empire built by the late M. J. and O. P. Van Sweringen, Cleveland brothers.

Attorneys for Robert R. Young and Allan P. Kirby, eastern financiers, who bought the Van Sweringen properties from Ball, filed the action in federal court here. It seeks damages for alleged losses on miscellaneous securities which figured in the transactions by which Ball disposed in 1937 of the rail empire, of which he had gained control.

In a previous suit, still pending, Young, Kirby, and the Seaboard Company, Ltd., asked 5 million dollars for alleged losses on Alleghany corporation stock.

Today's suit further asks appointment of a receiver for the Ball Foundation, alleging that the foundation is "threatening to dispose of a substantial part of its assets."

Juror Ill, Utility Trial at St. Louis Is Adjourned

St. Louis, Jan. 16 (AP).—Illness of a juror today caused adjournment until Monday of the trial in federal court of the Union Electric Company of Missouri and its former president, Louis H. Egan, on charges of violating the corrupt practices section of the holding company act of 1935.

GRAIN MARKETS LITTLE AFFECTED BY FEDERAL PLAN

Prices Ease a Bit in Face of Crop Goal Hike.

BY PHILIP WARDEN.

Grain prices closed fractionally lower in Chicago yesterday as the markets showed little response to the government's plans to expand farm production materially. Soy beans advanced about a cent a bushel but the gain was lost as traders awaited the outcome of the congressional conference on price controls.

Wheat finished unchanged to ⅛ cent lower with the May contracts at $1.31 a bushel. Corn closed ⅛ cent lower; oats, unchanged to ¼ cent lower; rye, ¼ to ⅝ cent lower, and soy beans, ¼ to ½ cent lower. Lard closed 2½ cents per hundredweight higher to 2½ cents lower.

Corn Sale Plans Studied.

Government plans to sell approximately 60 million bushels of corn to distillers, for production of alcohol to be converted into munitions, attracted attention inasmuch as this would account for almost half the remaining supply of corn held by the Commodity Credit corporation.

The grain men reported purchase of small amounts of corn from the Credit corporation yesterday and small amounts of wheat outside Chicago. However, the cautious attitude of awaiting price control developments prevailed in the cash markets as well as in the futures.

Call Bean Floor Too Low.

The grain dealers expressed some doubt as to whether the plans of the department of agriculture to stimulate production of soy beans by supporting the market at $1.60 a bushel will prove successful. They estimated that the farmer could get about $10 to $15 per acre more by planting corn than he could if he raised soy beans on his land.

The grain trade, which has been worried about the outlook for the futures markets found some solace in section 2 of the senate's version of the price control bill. They pointed out the act stated "nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize the prohibition of futures trading in any agricultural commodity subject to the provisions of the Commodity Exchange act, as amended."

HOGS WIN BACK PART OF RECENT PRICE DECLINES

The hog market rose sharply at the stock yards yesterday as the selling wave of underweight stock subsided and lend-lease pork buying for shipment to England increased.

Lend-lease purchases of pork and lard totaled 32,456,116 pounds, the fourth largest since last May, and an increase of 700,000 pounds over last week.

Advances of 10 to 20 cents were general in most classes of hogs. Weakness prevailed in the lamb market after a steady to strong opening. Best steers and yearlings held steady, but other cattle weakened.

ILLINOIS RETAIL GROUP FAVORS U. S. SALES TAX

Urges Levy Be Put Directly on Buyer.

Directors of the Illinois Federation of Retail Associations went on record yesterday in favor of a federal sales tax, provided the law imposes it directly on the consumer instead of the retailer and that present luxury taxes at the retail level are removed.

J. T. Meek.

At their meeting in the Palmer House the directors opposed further manufacturers' taxes and enforced pay roll deductions, arguing that such assessments in their ultimate effects would prove inflationary.

Their approval of the retail sales tax came as congress, in preparing for the 1942 revenue bill, studied the question of whether new excise taxes should be placed at the manufacturers' or the retailers' level.

Opposed Sales Levy in Past.

The recommendations will be forwarded to the American Retail federation and will guide the association in its recommendations to Illinois congressmen, J. T. Meek, executive secretary, said. Meek asserted the association represents either directly or thru affiliated groups about 40,000 merchants in all branches of retailing.

Past opposition by retailers to the general sales tax has been justified, the association said, on the grounds that such taxes violate the principle of "ability to pay," that they "siphon off purchasing power at the very base of our economy" and that other avenues of taxation were sufficient to meet necessary governmental requirements.

Ability to pay, the directors said, no longer is a major factor because broadening of the tax base is necessary "if any substantial percentage" of the huge war expenditures is to be financed by taxation.

Few Inequalities Seen.

"Broadly speaking, taxes on the great masses of consumers must be based either on the individual's income or his purchases," the directors continued. "Such a large percentage of the income of the masses is converted into purchases that no great inequalities would develop between individuals whether the government collects the taxes directly from income or thru taxing purchases."

Pay roll deductions, either by taxation or enforced savings, not only would be inflationary but would create "great maladjustments" between groups, directors said. The burden would fall heaviest on such persons of fixed income as the white collar worker who receives little benefit from arms expenditures.

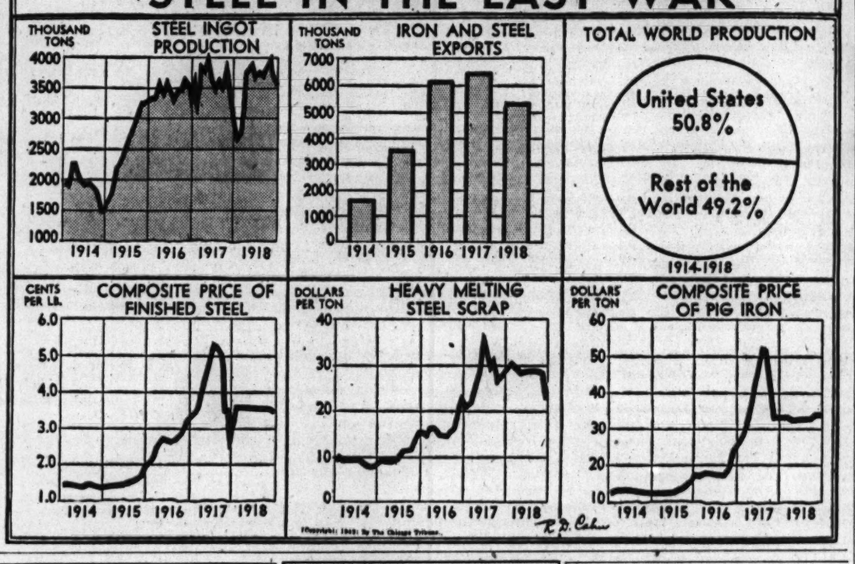
Would Cause Wage Spiral.

"Organized labor would, no doubt, demand and obtain pay roll increases in proportion to, or perhaps even in excess of, pay roll deductions," they said. "These wage increases would go into the cost of goods, forcing prices upward."

The association said manufacturers' taxes also go into the cost of goods and therefore are inflationary.

A general retail levy, the association said, would produce 500 million dollars of revenue for each 1 per cent of the tax.

STEEL IN THE LAST WAR



Senator Flays Cut in Income Tax Exemption

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—Chairman Walter F. George [D., Ga.] of the senate finance committee said today he was opposed to any reductions in the present individual income tax exemptions of $1,500 for married persons and $750 for single persons.

Sen. W. F. George.

There have been reports in congressional circles that the treasury might suggest that all single persons with incomes of $500 yearly and married persons with $1,000 incomes be sugjected to direct federal taxes, thus broadening the sources of revenue in an effort to raise $9,000,000,000 in new levies requested by President Roosevelt.

Suggests Sales Tax.

"If we are to impose taxes on the people who make only $500 a year," George told reporters, it ought to be done indirectly by some other method—a sales tax or some sort of withholding tax—and not by forcing them to file income tax returns.

"The revenue from such sources necessarily would be small and the cost of collecting income tax from such persons would be relatively high."

George said he had suggested to the treasury that individuals and corporations in the higher income brackets be permitted to purchase government bonds, up to a fixed, small percentage of their income, and make an equal deduction in their current tax payments.

Urges Cut in Local Taxes.

Earlier Chairman Robert L. Doughton [D., N. C.] of the house ways and means committe asked states and municipalities today to consider reducing their tax levies so that individuals could better bear the burden of new federal levies to help finance the war program.

Preparing to start committee consideration of President Roosevelt's request that congress enact a new 7 billion dollar general tax bill— to be followed by a 2 billion dollar boost in social security levies—Doughton said:

"The federal government is going to economize on nondefense expenditures and the states, counties and municipalities should do the same thing. That would lighten the burden on many individuals and would help absorb some of the big taxes they are going to have to pay to their federal government."

Would Drop Sales Levies.

Doughton suggested, for instance, that state sales taxes could be reduced or eliminated to make way for a general sale tax which has been suggested as one method to raise part of the new revenues. Rep. Harold Knutson [R., Minn.], another ways and means committeeman, recently suggested that state and federal sales taxes be consolidated, but primarily to reduce collection costs.

Some congressmen, however, pointed out that almost all states expected their revenues from gasoline and motor vehicle license taxes to decline because of the rubber and car rationing programs, and for that reason the legislators were none too sure that other state levies could be abandoned or reduced without interfering with essential functions of local government.

ASKS FULL DATA ON MATERIALS TIED UP BY WAR

Members of the Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday were requested to furnish the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago with all available data regarding materials which have been immobilized as a result of the war. Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer of the association, urged members to mail their information direct to C. S. Young, president of the reserve bank at La Salle street and Jackson boulevard.

Young said that investigations by the treasury department have already uncovered many millions of dollars worth of materials "highly useful in our war effort."

"We know from recent inquiries there is a large quantity of additional materials now tied up on docks, warehouses, and in factories," he said. Information sought includes description of materials, value, present location, and destination.

CHICAGO MEN'S CLOTHIER SHOWS LARGER PROFITS

Alfred Decker & Cohn, Inc., Chicago manufacturer of men's clothing, had larger profits and sales in the fiscal year ended last Oct. 31 than in the preceding year, Alfred Decker, chairman of the board, informed stockholders yesterday in his annual report.

Decker, while asserting that war conditions make the future uncertain, said that "there is a good probability that at least a portion of our production facilities will be required for the manufacture of vital war materials."

Net income for the year increased to $165,323, from $4,971 in the preceding year. The earnings were largest for any year since 1929. Sales rose "substantially," Decker said, and selling and general and administrative expenses were a shade lower than in the preceding year. Bookings for the 1942 spring season are larger than a year ago, Decker reported.

U. S. EXPORTS AVERAGE 579 MILLION DOLLARS IN EACH OF 2 MONTHS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—The commerce department reported today that exports of war supplies and other merchandise reached a monthly average of 579 million dollars in October and November.

Total shipments for the first 11 months of 1941 were $4,492,000,000—the highest figure for a similar period since the first World war. The figure was 21 per cent higher than corresponding figures in 1940.

Imports of merchandise averaged 292 million dollars in October and November, bringing the 11 month total to $3,002,000,000, the highest since 1937.

Under wartime restrictions, the department said no further details of foreign trade, particularly the nature of the commodities bought and sold or the countries involved, would be given out.

U. S. TO REOPEN OLD TUBE PLANT, REPORT IN GARY

Reports were current in Gary yesterday that the government plans use the old plant of the National Tube company, which adjoins the steel mills of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, for arms production. Carnegie-Illinois officials refused to comment on the reports.

Work on the big mills of National Tube, which is a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, was started in 1922 and completed in 1926. The first pipe was produced in 1925—before the plant was completed. The plant produced welded and seamless pipe.

Since the depression—in 1932—the plant has been idle, altho some of the National Tube buildings have been used for warehouse purposes.

PLAN FORMATION OF 3D NATIONAL GROUP OF UNIONS

Newark, N. J., Jan. 16 [Special].—A movement was under way in New Jersey today to organize a third national labor group of independent unions, with the object of resisting pressure by the AFL and CIO and to win recognition of independent groups on government chosen industry labor boards.

Eleven New Jersey employés associations forming the nucelus of the campaign have chosen Edward Foerst of the employés associations of the Tidewater Oil company, Bayonne, as temporary chairman. Foerst said delegates would meet Jan. 29 in Newark to make plans for recruiting an estimated 200,000 members of independent unions in New Jersey.

Chicago Asks for Synthetic Rubber Plant

With the Reconstruction Finance corporation committed to the financing of plants which will increase American production of synthetic rubber from about 40,000 tons a year to 400,000 tons, Chicago interests yesterday mentioned the advantages possessed by the Chicago area as a plant site. The Chicago Association of Commerce was among the groups lined up to try to get Chicago a rubber factory.

This city's chief claims for the location of one of the new plants is its proximity to raw materials out of which synthetic rubber is made. This is particularly true of the type known as Buna "S," said to be the only type suitable for use in the manufacture of automobile tires.

Has Needed Raw Materials.

Two of the essential raw materials are hydro-carbon gases, such as are available in the process of refining gasoline and benzol, a by-product of the coke manufacturing process. The Chicago area is one of the most important refining districts in the world, insuring a plentiful supply of the hydro-carbon gases, and it has the vast coke ovens necessary to the steel industry.

One authority on the manufacture of Buna "S" said yesterday that the factories probably will gravitate to the natural gas areas of the country and to the refining centers. The hydro-carbon gases are said to be available in huge amounts in the natural gas fields of Texas and Oklahoma. The Illinois fields were said to be producing natural gas in too small amounts to warrant establishment of plants adjacent to them.

Four Plants Already Planned.

However, it was said that to fill the production goal of 400,000 tons of synthetic rubber a year would require the shipment of only about 10,000 or 15,000 barrels of raw materials a day. [The average tank car holds 250 barrels.] This comparatively modest bulk of raw materials, it was said, should lighten the task of choosing synthetic rubber plant sites.

So far four plants have been planned—three near Akron, O., and one in Connecticut. Meantime, discussions are reported to be under way in Washington as to other plant sites.

Two Eastern Brokerage Firms Plan to Merge

New York, Jan. 16 [Special].—Townsend, Anthony & Tyson and F. L. Dabney & Co., members of the New York Stock exchange, today announced they plan to merge on Feb. 2 under the name of Townsend, Dabney & Tyson.

U. S. ARMS PLANT TO BE OPERATED BY LINK-BELT CO.

Link-Belt company, Chicago manufacturer of material handling and labor saving equipment for industry, will operate an armament plant to be provided by the government, it was learned yesterday when the Illinois secretary of state announced that a charter had been issued to a new subsidiary of Link-Belt. The subsidiary is Link-Belt Ordnance company.

The parent company has been extensively engaged in production of armament items. Officials of the company and of the Chicago Ordnance district offices refused to divulge any information concerning the additional factory.

Chicagoan Named Chief of OPM Telegraph Branch

Appointment of William F. Sloan, Chicago, to head the telegraph and cable section of the Office of Production Management's communications branch was announced yesterday at Washington by Leighton H. Peebles, chief of the branch. Sloan is a member of Sloan & Cook, consulting engineers with offices at 120 South La Salle street. In the last war Sloan was an air corps captain and later communications adviser to the postmaster general.

Asks Illinois Oil Buyers to Keep Purchases Down

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 16 (AP).—G. C. Curtis, state superintendent of the oil and gas conservation division, said today that he had asked buyers of Illinois crude oil to refrain from increasing purchases to keep within the 386,400 barrels daily January quota established by Harold L. Ickes, federal petroleum coördinator. He said December oil production averaged 387,732 barrels daily.

'HIGHEST COURT' ROLE IS PLANNED BY LABOR BOARD

New Body Won't Act Till Others Fail.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—The new National War Labor board set itself up as a supreme court in employer-employé disagreements today by deciding to act only for the "final determination" of disputes "which cannot be settled by mediation or voluntary arbitration."

The 12 man panel announced it would not, for the present, participate in mediation but would delegate that task to associate board members, not yet appointed, representing industry, labor and the public.

Chairman William H. Davis reported that the four board members representing the public expected to devote full time to their work. Labor's four members and the four representatives of industry agreed that they or their alternates would be continuously available.

To Name No Umpires.

At its first meeting today, the board named six of its members, two each from its public, labor and industry representatives, to serve as a committee to work out problems of organization and procedure.

The board decided against the appointment at this time of "umpires" to handle labor disputes. It had been suggested previously that Wendell L. Willkie, James A. Farley, Alfred E. Smith, Charles Evans Hughes and others of national prominence serve as umpires.

Some labor sources suggested that the board employ examiners to conduct hearings in labor disputes and submit recommendations. This system is used by the National Labor Relations board and several other government agencies.

William Green, president of the AFL, told a press conference that altho the board had no authority to force arbitration it was "inconceivable" that either labor or management would refuse "because public opinion is so strong."

Objection from the CIO.

The United Mine Workers Journal, CIO publication, criticized President Roosevelt's appointment of Davis to head the War Labor board. The Journal said Davis and others on the old National Defense Mediation board had been guilty of "asinine reasoning and conclusions" in the captive coal mines strikes last fall.

Labor, a publication of the railroad brotherhoods, applauded President Roosevelt's action in giving the War Labor board full authority to settle all disputes, including those involving the closed shop issue.

Seven cases involving the closed shop issue were certified to the board today by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

Army Gives Auto Plants Vast Contracts Since Jap Attack

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—The war department announced tonight it had entered into contracts with the automobile industry for 3½ billion dollars worth of military supplies since the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941. Production already has been started on many of the orders placed, according to an announcement by Robert P. Patterson, undersecretary of war.

[President Roosevelt appointed W. S. Knudsen director of production for the war department in a shakeup that makes D. M. Nelson "dictator" of the arms program. Details on page 1.]

In addition to this initial sum, large additional orders have been placed with subcontractors and with automotive accessory manufacturers, Patterson said.

Most for Military Items.

The bulk of the orders cover strictly military items, such as armored cars, plane engines, cartridge cases, carbines, fire control directors, fuses, machine guns, gun mounts, armor piercing shot, tanks, transmissions, optical instruments, gun carriages, pontoon equipment, as well as aircraft parts and anti-aircraft parts.

The remainder of the orders are mostly for army trucks.

The contracts have been allocated as follows among the three main purchasing branches of the army:

Air corps, 1 billion 39 million; ordnance, 1 billion 530 million; quartermaster corps, 890 million dollars.

Patterson said that the total of contracts since the Pearl Harbor attack was equal to or in excess of the total net sales of the automobile companies during three of the five years preceding 1941.

He said that a large proportion of the orders will be produced in existing facilities of the industry already converted, or in the process of conversion, for the production of war supplies.

Rubber Crisis 'Needless'

Cleveland, O., Jan. 16 (AP).—The government and the public brought about the rubber shortage that has led to tire rationing, a rubber executive declared today.

"If the public and the government had acted sensibly, we wouldn't have to worry about tires for three years," President William O'Neil of the General Tire and Rubber company, Akron, told the Cleveland Advertising club.

"The United States entered this war with eight times as much rubber as Hitler had when he started." He added that the government's advance announcements of curtailed automobile production resulted in a buying rush that required 17 million new tires.

There will be no prolonged tire shortage if motorists take care of their present supply, he declared.

Reports Nazis Found Small Firm Essential

German small business originally was sentenced to death on a wholesale scale under the Nazi economic mobilization plan, but the pressing need for more industrial facilities forced the Nazis to adopt subcontracting, Dr. Herbert Block, New York economist, disclosed yesterday. Writing in the February issue of Social Research, Dr. Block, economic research associate of the graduate faculty of the New School for Social Research, said:

Dr. Herbert Block.

"The German plan of economic mobilization originally provided for the most far reaching concentration of industrial production and for wholesale closing down of small industrial enterprises.

Recognition Finally Given.

"Altho the economic policy of the Nazi régime clearly favored the development of large scale industry, at the same time it was compelled to assign important tasks to the small and middle sized firms. It required their productive capacity, and had to recognize their essential advantages."

The advantages Dr. Block described as principally these: Workshops and small factories scattered thruout the country are less vulnerable to air attack than big centralized production districts and craftsmen of smaller plants "are less susceptible to enemy propaganda than workmen."

Small plants have been woven into the German industrial fabric for war by two methods: Direct awarding of government orders to groups of small firms, and by subcontracting handled by large firms or by organizations representing many small owners, the economist said.

Subcontracting Expensive.

Conceding the difficulty of appraising German success with the subcontracting method, Dr. Block commented:

"The subcontracting firms are as a rule small, and less efficient in technic and organization. Defects in the products and delays in delivery are bound to cause friction. Subcontracting raises the level of prime costs, and can be economically justified only because it saves the supplementary costs which would be involved in any expansion of industrial capacity."

Dr. Block is a German writer, editor, and educator who specializes in monetary, financial, and economic problems. He is rated by associates as an expert on German economics. He edited a Berlin scientific magazine from 1926 to 1931, and lectured at the University of Madrid and other Spanish educational institutions.

LIVING COSTS HIGHER IN 56 OF 68 CITIES DURING LAST MONTH

New York, Jan. 16 [Special].—Living costs for wage earners and lower salaried clerical workers increased from November to December in 56 of the 68 industrial cities it surveys each month, the National Industrial Conference board reported today. Living costs were unchanged in four cities and were lower in eight.

The largest increase was 1.3 per cent in Akron, O., and Grand Rapids, Mich., and the largest decrease was 1.0 per cent in Newark, N. J.

The cost of living in the United States as a whole rose 0.5 per cent in December over November, and it was 8.7 per cent higher than in December, 1940. All of the 61 cities showed increases for the year, the largest being 16.6 per cent.

PREDICTS FARM PRICE RISE OF LESS THAN 5 PCT.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—The bureau of agricultural economics said today it expected the general level of farm prices in 1942 to rise only about 5 per cent above present levels.

This forecast was based upon known present and prospective factors affecting supply and demand and government price control operations, likewise both present and prospective. A somewhat smaller increase in the level of prices of industrial products was predicted.

"The greatest anti-inflationary influence on farm prices," said the bureau, "will be the higher level of production in 1942."

AGREE TO PLACE BUSINESS UNDER PERMIT SYSTEM

Licensing Restored to Price Bill.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—A plan to place business under a licensing system was reported to have been agreed upon today by senate and house conferees trying to reconcile differing versions of the price control bill.

Senators said house spokesmen on the joint congressional committee indicated they will accept this senate provision, altho it previously had been rejected by the house.

Both senate and house leaders reported they were deadlocked over the controversial senate farm price provisions, with indications that no agreement can be reached until next week, altho the group scheduled a Saturday session.

Opposed by Industry.

The power to place business affected by price controls under licenses was requested by Leon Henderson, defense price administrator, before the senate banking committee. It drew sharp protests from business and industry spokesmen as involving the power of "life or death over business." The idea is that firms refusing to abide by price ceilings would be in danger of losing their licenses to do business.

Senators were told that more than 2,500,000 retail and wholesale concerns might be required to obtain licenses and that policing of these groups would require an immense staff.

As finally approved by the senate, any concern affected by price maximums would be entitled to a license if it requested one. These licenses then could be revoked only by state or federal courts, after a first violation and a warning by price administration officials.

Agree on Rent Ceilings.

Sen. Prentiss M. Brown [D., Mich.] and Rep. Henry B. Steagall [D., Ala.], leaders of the joint conference committee, said the conferees had agreed upon general purposes of the bill and upon authority to fix maximum rents in "defense housing areas," described as any area where the defense and war programs had caused rent increases or threatened to do so.

Among the provisions previously approved was one by Sen. Walter F. George [D., Ga.] which would require price fixing officials to appoint a national "industry advisory committee," with regional units if necessary, whenever a substantial portion of any industry subject to price maximums requested this action. This advisory group would coöperate with price fixing officials on orders, regulations, and enforcement.

The conference group also approved a "business practices" section which sponsors said would assure exemption of advertising methods and similar

STOCK TRADERS HEDGE AGAINST WEEK-END WAR

Prices Fade as Many Even Up Their Accounts.

New York, Jan. 16 (AP).—The stock market generally turned downward today as many traders withdrew commitments as a week-end precaution against international eventualities.

The list was only moderately irregular until after mid-day when prices began to fade. While real selling pressure was absent, the drift carried many favorites fractions to more than three points lower.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks finished with a net decline of .4 of a point at 37.9. The composite has shown only two advances since Jan. 6.

Volume Continues Small.

Except for a brief flurry after noon, dealings were negligible thruout. Transfers totaled 477,000 shares compared with 446,770 Thursday.

On the bullish side were estimates of a broad climb in this week's retail spending as customers rushed to stock up in fears of rising prices and shortages. Persistent tax doubts remained as a market handicap.

Some chemical shares developed heaviness as the thought occurred that companies in this line might be adversely affected if congress should alter the excess profits tax base.

CHICAGO PRICES SAG.

Prices closed unevenly lower on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday in transactions of 19,000 shares. Twenty-four issues advanced, 38 declined, and 26 closed unchanged.

Armour & Co., which closed ⅛ lower at 3⅞, was the volume leader with 1,050 shares traded. Of other heavily traded stocks, Middle West was unchanged, General Motors declined ⅜, and Hupp Motor Car advanced 1-16. Commonwealth Edison declined ⅛ in the half hour after the New York close, and was down ⅝ for the day.

RAILS, UTILITIES SHOW GAINS IN BOND MARKET

New York, Jan. 16 (AP).—Narrow price swings and a slightly irregular trend predominated in the bond market today. A selected group, notably rails and utilities, drew enough support to break away from the main list and establish gains of major fractions to around a point but these were exceptions and failed to balance the large number of small losers and those ending unchanged.

Delaware & Hudson refunding 4s again were among the most active loans on reports in financial circles concerning possible redemption of the issue. On total sales of $349,000 the bonds rose to 61¼, a new 1941-'42 high, before easing off to close at 60¾, up ⅝.

Only one government bond issue out of the large number listed on the stock exchange was traded on that market. It was the 2½s of '67 which gained 2/32 of a point at 100.10 on sale of 17 bonds.

RESERVE DISTRICT EMPLOYMENT AT NEW PEAK IN '41

More Workers in Area Than Ever Before.

Expanding industrial production in 1941 provided work for more persons in the five state 7th [Chicago] federal reserve district than ever were employed in any prior year, C. S. Young, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, reported yesterday in a survey of business conditions.

As industry speeded up operations under the impetus of armament spending, pay rolls in the district rose to an all-time high mark, with rising wage rates as well as increased employment rolls playing a part, Young said. Trade surpassed all previous records.

Triumph Over Shortages.

"Notwithstanding the dislocations caused by priorities, material shortages and limitation programs, 1941 was a banner year for 7th district trade, industry and agriculture," the review stated.

The average level of employment for the year was estimated at 135 per cent of the 1935-'39 average. The peak was 146 per cent in September. The 1941 average for pay rolls was 161 per cent of the 1935-'39 average.

"Steel, on which so much production depends, held to a schedule that contributed greatly to district activity," Young said. "Altho handicapped by a scrap situation beyond their control, the mills in the Chicago area maintained steel ingot production above 100 per cent of rated capacity thruout most of the year, and at no time fell below 93 per cent. A high mark of 104 was reached in the week of Dec. 21. Pig iron production was 25 per cent larger than in 1940.

Big Year for Auto Industry.

"The automobile industry, largest single user of steel, completed one of its most active years, producing the largest volume of cars and trucks since 1929 and also turning out an undisclosed quantity of armament items.

"District furniture factories, producing 40 per cent of the nation's output, stepped up shipments 44 per cent over those of 1940. The value of contracts awarded in the construction industry rose to 900 million dollars, the highest since 1929 and 37 per cent more than in 1940. Department store dollar sales rose 15 per cent over 1940 levels and were within 5 per cent of the 1929 record."

PERSONAL INCOME TAX—5.

For the average taxpayer there are five basic steps in computing personal income tax:

1. Determine gross income for the taxable year.
2. Subtract deductions allowed by law. The remainder is net income.
3. Deduct personal exemption and credit for dependents. The balance is known as net income—the figure subject to the various amounts of surtax.
4. Subtract earned income credit from surtax net income and the result is normal tax income—the figure subject to the normal tax rate of 4 per cent.
5. Add surtax and normal tax and obtain the total income tax.

The remainder of this article and subsequent articles will discuss these steps in detail.

Gross income includes the following:

1. Wages, salaries, commissions, bonuses, fees, tips, and any other compensation for services in 1941. Christmas gifts of cash from employers should be included. Sums deducted from salaries and wages for social security taxes, hospital benefits, group insurance, and pension funds must be counted as gross income. Pensions are considered payment for past services unless paid from a fund to which the recipient contributed part of his wages. Retirement pay similarly is taxable.
2. Dividends from stock and interest on bank deposits, loans, notes, mortgages, corporate bonds, and certain government obligations.
3. Profits from a business, trade, partnership, or syndicate. Income from trusts is taxable to the beneficiary under certain circumstances, depending upon the way in which the trust is set up.
4. Profit from rents and royalties.
5. Profit from the sale or exchange of property.
6. Prizes, rewards, and winnings from gambling, games, contests, lotteries, sweepstakes, and raffles. Gains from illegal businesses and rackets are taxable.
7. Jury fees in federal and state courts, notary fees, offerings, fees and other contributions received by a clergyman for such services as marriages, funerals, and masses.
8. The taxable portion of annuities. Fire insurance proceeds in excess of the value of the property destroyed, unless the additional proceeds are spent in replacing the lost property.
9. Compensation in the form of stock, bonds, or property. The fair market value of such compensation is used for tax purposes.

[The above list of gross income items is not complete. Specific inquiries on items not covered will be answered by mail. Dividends and interest will be discussed in the next article.]

EGGS AT 18 YEAR HIGH; POTATOES ALSO REACH PEAK IN BRISK TRADE

Eggs and potatoes advanced to new peaks in brisk trade on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Egg contracts sold at the highest levels in 12 to 18 years and potatoes were at new tops for a year or longer.

The advance came as dealers read into the government's newly announced 1942 farm production goals a vastly expanded export demand for eggs, chickens, and potatoes. The advance in eggs amounted to around ½ cent a dozen with January contracts closing at 33.3 cents.

Potatoes closed 6 to 13 cents per hundred pounds higher with January contracts at $2.90. Butter futures gained early as the plan reiterated a larger demand for milk, but fell back to close unchanged to .05 cent lower. January butter contracts closed at 34.3 cents. Wholesale butter and egg prices were practically unchanged.

AGREE TO PLACE BUSINESS UNDER LICENSE SYSTEM

Price Control Held Up by Other Snags.

practices from the far reaching powers of the price administrator.

In addition to the dispute over the levels to which farm prices could rise before controls would apply, the conference faced a decision as to the method of administration—by a single administrator or a board—and the question of giving the secretary of agriculture a veto power over farm price ceilings.

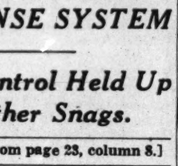
The White House announced that two farm leaders had told President Roosevelt that the majority of farmers were "placed in a false light before the public" by the price controls passed by the senate.

A telegram from James G. Patton, president of the National Farmers' union, and M. W. Thatcher, president of the National Federation of Grain Coöperatives, asserted that the measure sought price increases which the farmers never had asked for.

"Patriotic and unselfish farmers do not seek personal gain thru unfairly high prices to the disadvantage of national defense and the public," the telegram said.

NAME PRIORITIES SUPERVISOR FOR 11 STATE AREAS

Priorities field service offices in 11 states yesterday were placed under the supervision of Bruce W. Burroughs, regional director, with headquarters in Chicago. The offices supply priorities information to business men in their areas and aid in the enforcement of priority regulations.



Bruce W. Burroughs.

District manager of the Office of Production Management priorities field services in Cincinnati since last July, Burroughs will direct field offices in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, North and South Dakota. He has just returned from Washington, D. C., where he conferred with priorities officials on policy and administration.

Before entering government service Burroughs had been employed since 1919 by the Ford Motor company in various executive capacities. During the last war he was an ensign in the navy.

SECURITIES MEN ELECT TEXAN AS NATIONAL HEAD

New York, Jan. 16 [Special].—H. H. Dewar of San Antonio, Tex., today was elected chairman of the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc. He succeeds Robert W. Baird of the Wisconsin company, Milwaukee. Francis A. Bonner, of Blair, Bonner & Co., Chicago, was the first NASD president.

Lee M. Limbert, of Blyth & Co., New York City, was named first vice chairman, and Francis F. Patton of A. G. Becker & Co., Inc., Chicago, was named second vice chairman.

William A. Fuller of Fuller, Crutteden & Co., Chicago, will succeed Laurence M. Marks as chairman of the finance committee.

Reliance Electric to Vote on New Stock Issuance

Reliance Electric & Engineering company disclosed yesterday that its stockholders will vote Jan. 26 on a recapitalization plan providing for issuance of 7,500 shares of new $5 convertible preferred stock. Proceeds would provide additional working capital made necessary by war orders.

WARN RETAILERS OF SHORTAGE IN STORE WORKERS

Untrained Personnel Will Create New Problems.

New York, Jan. 16 [Special].—An acute shortage of store workers arising from the expansion of the country's armed forces was forecast today by Dr. J. C. Wright of the United States Office of Education before the closing session of the annual convention of the National Retail Dry Goods association.

Urging retailers to look for new employés, Dr. Wright suggested that full time workers might be recruited from extras, contingents and other part time store employés from older men and women who formerly had worked in retail stores; young married women in rural and suburban areas, recent graduates of high schools, young people and unmarried older persons living in nondefense areas, and young persons studying retailing in secondary schools.

No Way to Save.

Dr. Wright expressed the opinion that altho the loss of man power in nondefensé industries might be compensated for thru the invention of labor saving machines it would seem more difficult to apply the same principle to the distributive trades.

Pointing out that the "employment of untrained personnel may result in inefficiency, higher operating cost, poor service, and customer dissatisfaction," Dr. Wright said he believed the problem of personnel would become "increasingly acute in the weeks, months, and even the years that are ahead."

Another Viewpoint.

Bishop Brown, director of the Research Bureau for Retail Training, Pittsburgh, told the retailers "that the lack of some kinds of commodities, the probable curtailment of customer services, and the shortage of man power will eventually dislocate the usual smooth functioning of all distributive organizations."

"If inexperienced employés are engaged for full time jobs," he said, "they will need help by means of organized classes or thru individual training. Older men with little or no retail experience and a minimum amount of education will not make training easier."

Another speaker, Mrs. Marion T. Lyndon, associate professor of distributive education, University of Tennessee, asserted that "we do not mind restrictions, but we all mind being kept too much in the dark."

OPEN ADDITION TO UNITED AIR LINES BUILDING

With the completion of a wing to the general office building of the United Air Lines at 5959 South Cicero avenue, more than doubling its former space, the company has what is said to be the largest airline headquarters structure in the world. The floor area of 81,500 square feet accommodates 500 of the company's 900 Chicago employés. There are 115 individual offices, a medical department, an auditorium, an employés' cafeteria and kitchen, and a commissary kitchen where meals are prepared for service aloft aboard the company's planes operating thru Chicago.

"Our action in doubling the size of our Chicago headquarters is evidence both of our decision to strengthen our position as Chicago's own airline and our faith in the long range development of air transportation," said W. A. Patterson, president of United.

"Completion of our building, like the recent enlargement of the municipal airport, is indicative of Chicago's progressive growth as an air traffic hub of first importance."

STOVE COMPANY NEARING OUTPUT OF CARTRIDGES

Florence Stove company soon will start production of cartridge cases for the army and navy at its Kankakee, Ill., plant, the Illinois Manufacturers' association said yesterday.

Expansion of the plant's facilities for the cartridge case job includes the construction of a new building, 160 by 300 feet, scheduled for completion March 1.

"The contracts will affect little the present problem of unemployment in the plant because operations in the new unit will be entirely separate from the process of making stoves and will require labor skilled in that particular work," said William L. Cooper, plant manager.

Rep. Zientek Put on Board of Metropolitan State Bank

State Representative Joseph Zientek, 15th district, Chicago, yesterday was elected a director of the Metropolitan State bank, succeeding William S. Brenza, who resigned to enter the navy.

Carole Lombard and 20 Aboard Airliner Missing in Nevada—Killer Sawicki Dies in Chair
